Navy's Story of Philippines Battle; 6 U. S. Warships Lost

PATTON NEARS SAAR IN DRIVE NORTH OF METZ

Simpson Beats Off Nazi Tank Charge.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 17.—Four American armies today continued to blast their way thru Germany's prize defenses, manned by the finest troops the enemy was able to muster.

These were the gains they scored: Lt. Gen. Hodges' army advanced 1st two miles, capturing Gressenich and another point six miles from Duren in a thrust that carried 14 miles into Germany thru enemy defense works dug or constructed to patch up the Siegfried line which was torn wide open in this area weeks ago. Farther west heavy fighting was going on for Stolberg, two-thirds of which was ours before nightfall.

[The American broadcasting station in Europe, Absie, reported last night that the 1st army had cleared Stolberg and advanced five miles beyond the town.]

Two Miles from Saar.

Units of Lt. Gen. Patton's army advanced in a new drive north of 3d Metz to a point 10 miles east of Koenigsmacher, capturing Remeling, two miles from the border of the Saar industrial basin. Other troops a mile north of this area were assaulting Manderen and farther northwest fighting was going on for Rustroff, one mile from the German frontier. Buding and Reinange, seven miles east and four miles southeast of Thionville, also were captured. At Metz, 3d army forces were a mile from the city on the north, south, and west.

Lt. Gen. Simpson's forces successfully repulsed a strong enemy counter-attack northeast of 9th Aachen supported by artillery and Tiger and Panther tanks, knocking out 11 of 45 tanks. They captured more than 1,000 prisoners, so far.

Near Belfort Gap.

Lt. Gen. Patch's army, in the south, made a mile gain north of 7th the Doubs river. Fighting was in progress in the area of Hericourt which is five miles southwest of Belfort and about the same distance from Montbeliard.

[A front dispatch said the 1st French army captured Montbeliard and swept up a number of villages on the approaches to the Belfort gap.]

British 2d army troops were consolidating territory west of the Maas [Meuse] river in eastern Holland—about 50 square miles — which they have wrested from the Germans since Nov. 14. They were bombarding enemy positions across the river facing the German border and broke across the Zig canal north of the Maas stronghold of Roermond.

It was disclosed that a barrage from more than 1,000 guns, firing 20 tons of projectiles every minute for an hour, preceded the attacks by the 9th and 1st armies in the Aachen area yesterday. This bombardment continued when 1,200 8th air force Liberators and Flying Fortresses also blasted the enemy

Britain's Air Chief Lost on Way to Asia

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP).—Air Chief Marshal Trafford Leigh-Mallory, the British tactician who provided the aerial umbrella for the allied invasion of western Europe and who was to direct the air strategy in a new stepped-up offensive against Japan, has been lost en route by plane to his new southeast Asia command. Missing with him is his wife.

Leigh-Mallory.

The special plane in which they were traveling has not reached its destination, said an air ministry announcement tonight. It was disclosed that a widespread search has yielded no trace of it.

Flew on Alone.

The craft had flown to the Mediterranean area and, after dismissing its escort, continued alone. It was flown by a veteran R. A. F. crew picked personally by the air marshal to accompany him to his new command and work with him there.

The 52 year old flying knight was en route to take up, under Adm. Mountbatten, supreme commander of the SEAC, a task which he had performed brilliantly under Gen. Eisenhower here. He was named allied air commander in chief in southeast Asia on Oct. 15.

Headed A. E. F. Air Forces.

He was named air commander in chief of the allied expeditionary air force when it was constituted at the end of 1943. In that command he controled history's greatest assembly of air power. Previous to that he was air officer commander in chief, R. A. F. fighter command.

A veteran of World War I., he was in the R. A. F. ever since. He rose to prominence in this war when he took command of one of the R. A. F.'s busiest fighter groups in the battle of Britain. He directed a wing which destroyed 150 German planes in seven engagements.

WORKERS' CLUB BURNS UP $675 IN WAR BONDS

Miami, Fla., Nov. 17 (AP).—The nation's debt to 27 war bond owners went up in smoke today when members of the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft corporation's "bond fire club" voluntarily tossed $675 worth of certificates into a blaze.

Pretty girls in slacks and their masculine co-workers whooped merrily as the flames licked crisp $25 E certificates from their fingers.

The idea for the "bond fire club" originated amid the clatter of rivet guns and drop hammers of the assembly line by "spontaneous combustion," said Edward Vines, civilian inspector for the navy.

The result was the founding of the country's first "bond fire club," which Vines hopes will have chapters in every part of the nation.

A treasury department spokesman said there was no legal prohibition against the burning of war bonds.

VOICE, EYES O. K.; FEET FAIL TENOR

Singer Wins Applause in Diverse Roles.

The melodious voices of the Holy Gospel quintette filled the auditorium of the Wendell Phillips High school at a revival meeting Thursday night. The audience was spellbound.

So quietly did its members sit that the ticking of the clock on the wall could be heard during pauses in the Negro spirituals. The quintette was great, but it was obvious after the first number that big Bennett Smith was the greatest.

Handsome, more than 6 feet tall, and weighing over 280 pounds, he was the group's high tenor. The eyes of the audience, particularly those of the ladies, were fastened on him as he sang the strains of that famous old spiritual, "I Looked Over Jordan."

". . . and What Did I See?"

Mr. Smith's voice rang out clear and golden above the other singers. He took it solo when he came to the words: "I looked over Jordan and what did I see?" His eyes seemed to pop out of his head as he sang that rhetorical query. Then his voice broke.

His colleagues picked up the next bar, then they stopped singing. Mr. Smith was gone. He had vaulted the platform rail; he was running toward an exit.

In a body, the audience turned to look. Panting down an aisle in close pursuit went Lifus Lyons, 250 pound Negro policeman from Gary, Ind.

In Lyon's pocket, bulged a warrant which he had carried for 18 months in a search for Mr. Smith. The policeman was in earnest. He increased his speed and Mr. Smith, glancing over his shoulder, saw he couldn't reach the exit in time. He dashed into an aisle. Lyons doubled back. The hall was in an uproar with the revivalists shouting, "Go boy, go."

Partisans Bowled Over.

The chase went up one aisle and down another. Then Bennett and Lyons ran thru a rear door and down the stairs into the boiler room. Puffing heavily they reappeared a moment later and charged down the center aisle toward the main door. Several of Mr. Smith's cheering partisans were bowled over.

For the audience the pursuit ended when the two men burst thru the rear door and out into the night, but it was four blocks away that the puffing policemen collared the gasping singer.

Smith, the colored Caruso, whose home is in Cleveland, O., was taken to the county jail at Crown Point, Ind., pending trial on charges that he obtained $2,000 from Mrs. Rena Walton, 52, Negro, of 245 Adams st., Gary, on a fraudulent promise of getting her a restaurant concession in a war plant.

Wants $3,000 for Wings.

Outside the jailhouse yesterday, passers-by heard a high tenor voice in the plaintive strains of "If I Had the Wings of an Angel." Blending in the sad refrain were the voices of other members of the quintet who had gone to the jail to plead for the release of their first tenor. But the jailer was adamant.

"There's only one thing that can give wings to your warbler," he said. "That's $3,000 for bond."

Big Navy Show Opens Today; Reveals Pacific War Secrets

BY HARRY McCLAIN.

Adm. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet at noon today will officially open the navy's 6th war loan exhibition, "Pacific Theater," to the public.

Last night thousands of Chicagoans thronged the exhibit area, drill hall, and docks of Navy pier for a preview of the huge display of equipment used by seven branches of the navy, the marine corps, and coast guard. The show will be open daily from noon until 10 p. m. thru Dec. 3.

First Public View.

Show visitors last night found great interest in three invasion craft moored at the pier. This is the first time the public has been permitted to see the interior of the tank landing ship, the medium landing craft which carries troops and a few vehicles, and the infantry landing craft, carrying troops only.

Three other seagoing craft are open to visitors. They are a patrol craft escort, a high speed rescue ship, and the training ship Wilhelm. Four coast guard patrol craft are on display and may be viewed from the deck of a near-by ship.

Naval aviation's contribution to the show includes the latest model shipboard fighters, including a dive bomber, torpedo plane, training plane, and hospital ship. In addition to the aircraft on the pier the navy has nine planes at the Chicago airport which will be flown in daily demonstrations.

The outstanding plane at the airport is a Hellcat fighter, equipped for jet assisted take-offs. This permits the plane to carry a heavier fuel load or rockets suspended from the lower side of the wings.

Rockets Are Shown.

Rockets launched from planes also are on display for the first time, as well as those launched from racks of landing craft, used to lay down beach barrages just before troops are put ashore. The rockets are part of the ordnance display that includes every type of ammunition, from small arms to two ton blockbuster bombs.

For the radio minded the navy is showing more than a score of radio receivers and transmitters, from small emergency types to standard shipboard equipment. Depth finders, fire controls, and other electronic devices also are part of the exhibit.

In naming the show "Pacific Theater" the navy desired to draw attention to the fact that the war in the Pacific is expected to be long drawn out and to demonstrate the kind of fighting encountered there.

To give a realistic idea of jungle fighting the marine corps has built a jungle scene in which veterans of the Pacific fighting show how they fought Japs.

Beach Landings Set.

The mariner also will participate in another important part of the show by giving seven demonstrations of beach landings from Lake Michigan. The first landing will be made on the Foster beach at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Four more will be made on the Foster beach and two in Jackson park, all part of training for overseas duty.

Many pieces of the equipment on display are in operation and may be worked by show visitors. There are numerous moving pictures which show every phase of navy life and operation.

HOW TO GET THERE.
Take Grand av. street cars to Navy Pier. Special buses will be operated from noon until 10 p. m. daily from Michigan av. and Randolph st. to the pier.

Germans Put Minimum Price on Hitler Pictures

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—A Berlin dispatch in the Swedish newspaper Tidningen said that under a new decree pictures of Hitler "may not be sold for less than 45 reichsmark [$11 pre-war rate]." The dispatch said the measure was taken since offers to sell Hitler pictures "have been particularly numerous during recent weeks."

Ormoc Road Cut; M'Arthur Destroys Japs

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., P. I., Nov. 18 [Saturday] — (AP). — Rain drenched doughboys straddled Ormoc highway with a strong road block a mile south of Limon today. They trapped remnants of a Japanese regiment, as elements of the United States 32d division were thrown into the battle of Leyte for the first time.

A bulletin announced completion of a double envelopment movement by two units of the 24th division, cutting the highway. Limon is four miles from Pinamopoan at the northern end of Ormoc corridor, the Japanese escape route to the enemy held port of Ormoc to the south.

Japanese supply columns attempting to break thru to Limon were destroyed. The inference was also that enemy forces caught in the gap were cut off from escape, except for small, scattered bands.

Drive Wedges into Strongpoints.

The 32d division, commanded by Maj. Gen. William H. Gill of Denver, Colo., sent units into the battle line north of Limon. Already they have driven a deep wedge into isolated Japanese strongpoints.

Earlier it had been reported that American troops had fought to within 1,000 yards of Limon on the west. Other units advancing on the eastern side were held up by the Japanese who were entrenched in ravines and gullies.

East of Ormoc road, action in mountain fighting around the Mount Minoro-Badian area was limited to mopping up of enemy pockets by the dismounted 1st cavalry division and elements of the 24th division.

"Several suicidal charges by enemy parties were wiped out," the bulletin said.

American artillery continued to pound Japanese positions in the Ormoc corridor.

Repel Japanese Attack.

The American 7th division repulsed a Japanese attack at Tabgas, 11 miles south of Ormoc, the final goal of the American squeeze from the north, east, and south. This is the third assault smashed by the 7th on the coastal road leading to Ormoc, including the beating off of a landing attempt.

American fighter planes, based on Leyte, attacked small Japanese ships on the island's west coast and bombed shore installations south of Ormoc.

Approximately 30 Japanese planes attacked American ground installations in the Dulag area, near the island's east coast. They were intercepted by American patrols and 15 were shot down in aerial combat, with three more falling to anti-aircraft fire.

"Our losses were negligible," the bulletin said.

Wipe Out Jap Remnants.

Occupation of the Mapia Islands, off the coast of northwest New Guinea, proceeded satisfactorily. Gen. MacArthur announced that Pegun, the first of the island group to be invaded Wednesday, had been completely occupied. His forces then spilled over to adjoining Bras Island, where enemy remnants were being eliminated.

The purpose of the Mapia invasion is to remove enemy observers who have kept a close watch on allied aerial operations. The islands are unimportant except as observation outposts.

HOW 2 AMERICAN FLEETS BEAT THREE JAP ARMADAS

Sea Victory Assures Gen. MacArthur Re-enforcements; Enemy Loses More than 60 Vessels.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (Special).—The navy today gave a graphic picture of the battle of the Philippines, in which two American fleets defeated three Japanese armadas. That battle cost the enemy more than 60 ships.

A bulletin of nearly 3,000 words audited the books. On the credit side was written: Assured supply and re-enforcements for Gen. MacArthur in the Philippines; less casualties for the future, and 48 Japanese warships sunk, probably sunk, and damaged plus an undetermined number of destroyers.

The tabulation of enemy victims did not take into account the ships which were bombed by Gen. MacArthur's land-based flyers who brought the total up past 60.

Identifies Lost U. S. Ships.

The navy, in disclosing the tactics with which Adm. Halsey of the 3d fleet and Vice Adm. Kinkaid of the 7th fleet whipped the Japanese, identified six American ships lost in the series of engagements beginning Oct. 23.

They were the light carrier Princeton, named previously; two escort carriers—the Saint Lo and Gambier Bay; two destroyers—the Johnston and Hoel; one destroyer escort, the Samuel B. Roberts.

Other American losses were reported as "a few lesser craft," including at least one submarine.

The number of damaged ships was not disclosed, the navy said, for security reasons. Some of them have been repaired and are already back on duty. "The Japanese are still wondering what hit them," the navy said.

Lists Japan's Losses.

The navy gave this list of Japanese ships sunk, probably sunk or damaged by the American naval forces which turned back a three pronged attack by the enemy in an attempt to prevent American landings in the Philippines:

SUNK—Two battleships, four carriers, six heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, and an undetermined number of destroyers. Total 14 plus the destroyers.

SO DAMAGED that they may have been sunk—One battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, seven destroyers. Total 13.

DAMAGED—Six battleships, four heavy cruisers, one light cruiser, 10 destroyers. Total 21.

Tokyo Believed Flyers' Lies.

One of the events which led to the defeat of the Japanese were lies which enemy aviators, scouting the American fleet, told their superior officers. They said the American fleet had been defeated, and Tokyo believed it.

The alertness of American submarines, PT boats, and flyers also paved the way for the American victory. They spotted the enemy approaching the Philippines.

Taking part in the battle were five American battleships the Japanese had said were destroyed in the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. They were the West Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, California, and Pennsylvania.

One of the best results of the American success was comtained in this paragraph of the navy's bulletin:

"The victory not only made possible the continuing supply of men and munitions to Gen. MacArthur's successful invasion forces, but by its magnitude can conservatively be said to have greatly reduced future casualties in both men and water borne equipment."

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Here is partial text of the navy's recapitulation of the Oct. 23-27 battle of the Philippines:

"Like all battles, this one did not just happen. The engagements, in one of which surface ships slugged it out against each other, and in which the far ranging carrier borne United States aircraft both intercepted and pursued enemy ships with conspicuous success, were preceded by a series of other actions which fall into a definite, strategic pattern when reviewed in order.

Japs Kept Off Balance.

"Preliminaries to the showdown battle can be said to have opened with the landings on Peleliu and Morotai, southwest of the Philippines, on Sept. 15. These landings in themselves were preceded by a two weeks' series of feints and thrusts, by Vice Adm. Mitscher's carrier task force of the 3d fleet, which kept the Japanese forces off balance while whittling down their aerial strength by some 900 planes.

"These successes indicated the feasibility of advancing the date for the invasion of the Philippines, and the date of Oct. 20 was set by Gen. MacArthur in consultation with Adm. Nimitz and approved by the high command.

Bombard Marcus Island.

"However, a great deal of hard, tough work had to be accomplished first. As much damage as possible had to be inflicted upon the enemy over the widest available area guarding the Philippines. Additionally, by hitting the Japanese hard, again and again, the enemy was to be confused, and kept confused, as to the ultimate objective of our far ranging forces.

"On Oct. 9 surface forces bombarded Marcus Island, and on the following day a carrier task force struck at Okinawa, in the Nansei Shoto group, about 1,500 miles to the westward. The Japanese defenders were caught off base each time, losing 82 planes at Okinawa and 46 ships, not counting 11 probably destroyed.

"On Oct. 11, while the enemy was still trying to figure out what had

China Graft Ridden, Briton Charges

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 17 (AP).—Inefficiency and graft are depriving the United States and Britain of most of the help they might otherwise be getting from China in the war with Japan, Gerald E. Stockley, new British consul in Seattle, said today.

Stockley, fresh from 19 years in Britain's consular service in China, added in an interview that it was his personal belief that differences between Gen. Stilwell, former American commander in China, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek were based on the American commander's continual vigorous protests against graft in high places in China.

Sell Goods to Japs.

"The friends of China have drawn pictures colored with wishful thinking," Stockley said. "They have not told the truth. They have not been good friends to that extent.

"They have not told you that there are nasty stories about generals selling ammunition and supplies to the Japanese. They don't tell of the Japanese agents who have been allowed to honeycomb the country.

Little Chinese Help.

"China has great qualities. It will not go down, but, on the other hand, it cannot win its war. The war must be won by America and Britain and without much Chinese help."

Stockley related that during an air raid near his post he clearly saw the lights of the Chinese signaling the enemy planes and that the Japanese and Chinese trade freely across their front lines. He was consul general at Kweilein, since taken by the Japs, before being assigned to the Seattle office.

3 YEARS OF JAP 'PROSPERITY' CRUSH MANILA

Nipponese Plan Bared; All Take, No Give.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LEYTE, P. I., Nov. 18 [Saturday].—Manila is a stripped city, the threadbare capital of a once thriving nation, economically wrecked by the Japs in less than three years.

The stores are bare. Food has vanished into the black market. A scanty restaurant meal costs 70 pesos [$35], twice the average Filipino monthly wage. The Japs have commandeered the hotels and other housing.

Railroads run only occasionally because of a coal shortage. Bus and car transport has broken down. Only spies and puppet government officials get gasoline or alcohol for their cars. A new tire sells for 30,000 [$15,000].

Two Tell of City Today.

This is Manila today, the new Manila whose story was told by two men who, a few weeks ago, took to the hills to escape starvation and disease.

"The trouble with the Jap coprosperity sphere is that it's all take and no give," one said. "Only the Japs have prosperity; every one else suffers. The Jap army lines up virtually everything."

The story told by the two recent residents of Manila was:

At first the puppet government under Jap army orders attempted to set up government warehouses. They bought almost all the food, clothing, and other essentials at prewar prices with the Japanese phony money. Trade in American or Philippine pre-war money was prohibited.

The government promised that the supplies would be sold under rationing. Each person was to be allowed to buy 3.15 quarts of rice a week, seven ounces of soap a month, and a box of matches each month.

All Proves a Dream.

But the government stores never operated. The army took the supplies. The government announced price ceilings on new production but made no attempt to enforce them. The Jap army, backed by presses turning out money by the basketful, was the worst offender. At times when it resorted to buying it paid many times the ceiling price.

"They printed money and then threw it out the window," one of the refugees said. The result was that black market prices soared to astronomical heights. A yard of cotton cloth costs $200 to $250. Rice that once sold for $1 now costs $100. a pair of shoes costs thousands. Cigarets at $25 are a bargain.

Sugar is almost unobtainable altho the Philippines are one of the biggest sugar producers. The Jap army confiscated the bulk of the crop for distilling into alcohol for their cars and trucks.

"Our guess on why the Japs are short of gasoline in spite of their seizure of the East Indies and the oil there, is that the refineries are a failure because of the Japs' inability to keep them running," the refugee said.

Service—And Not Sudden.

The Japs tried to maintain telephones and cables. One neutral business man sent a cable to his home office in February of 1943 and received an answer a year later. About the only mail that goes in goes by way of the Tokyo embassy. Outgoing mail is handled the same way and the only words of communication permitted are "I am well."

Disease is widespread. Most of the hospitals were seized by the Japanese No work has been done on the water, light, gas, or sewer systems, and the city is filthy. Buildings show neglect.

The Japs attempted to open schools using the Jap language but the attendance was small.

Secret Police Everywhere.

A midnight curfew was ordered at first. Night clubs are jammed with Jap officers and collaborators watching entertainers imported from China. Raw whisky and gin flowed. The curfew has been advanced now to 8 o'clock.

A secret police system has been established. There has been no formal registration, but Jap military police can tell to the smallest detail exactly what a person has done for days. "In Manila you dare not open your mouth," said the refugee.

Most neutrals and the Filipinos in Manila have tried to go to other places in the islands, but shortages of food and clothing exist everywhere.

"So what can one do?" the refugee asked. "Just wait."

CHINESE SURROUND BHAMO, JAP BASTION IN NORTHERN BURMA

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 17 (AP).—Chinese troops of the 36th division isolated the Japanese stronghold and Burma road feeder junction of Bhamo and scored other gains in the North Burma offensive to clear a land route to China, Adm. Mountbatten's command announced today.

Striking from east of Bhamo, the Chinese advanced southwestward and reached the Irrawaddy river, cutting off the last Japanese route to the south, a bulletin announced. Other Chinese forces already had crossed the Irrawaddy and thus the town was surrounded.

In northwestern Burma, Indian 5th division troops made new gains toward the Chindwin river town of Kalewa.

Vet Information Center Director Is Appointed

C. Edward Thorney, 1525 Westview rd., Highland Park, a veteran of World War I., yesterday was appointed director of Chicago's veteran information center at 105 W. Adams st. A. A. Sprague, chairman of the center's board of directors, who announced Thorney's appointment, said the center is designed to provide a one-stop information service to the city's returning ex-servicemen.

BATAAN KIN TELL F. D. R.: PROMOTE OUR BOYS, TOO!

Steps to provide super ranks for top generals and admirals without promoting American fighting men held prisoners by the Japanese since the fall of Bataan and Corregidor drew a protesting letter yesterday from officials of the American Bataan Clan of Maywood, addressed to President Roosevelt.

"The promotion of top ranking officials would please only a few, whereas promotion of these men of Bataan would give honor and pleasure to more than 50,000 relatives and to more than five million of their friends," wrote A. C. McArthur of Villa Park, president of the Maywood organization.

"To us it seems unfair that our government can be so liberal to others and yet be so penurious when it comes to conferring such a small honor upon these men who fought in that delaying fight that saved Australia, and possibly our own western shores. The battles of Bataan and Corregidor will go down in history alongside Bunker Hill and San Juan, and will outrank many another battle of historical record. It would seem little enough to give this promotion to these heroes."

JACKIE HELLER HERE; LONG WITH YANKS IN PACIFIC

Jackie Heller, radio and vaudeville entertainer, returned to Chicago yesterday after 17 months of trouping with his partner, Lew Parker, for the united service organizations in the Southwest Pacific. On the day after he landed on the west coast Heller was informed that his brother, Sgt. Louis Heller of Pittsburgh, Pa., was killed in action in France. Heller and Parker played to thousands of audiences in the jungles and mud of the Solomons, New Guinea, and other Pacific islands. They began an appearance in a loop theater yesterday with the Margaret Faber dancers, who toured with them at Hawaiian military posts.

CHICAGO BOYS JUST ROLLING IN DOUGH ON LEYTE

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LEYTE, P. I., Nov. 17.—A company preponderantly from Illinois is making plenty of dough on Leyte these days, but the boys aren't exactly getting rich.

The company, commanded by Capt. Elmer Stoddard, whose wife lives at 3500 Lake Shore dr., Chicago, turns out 20,000 loaves of bread daily to help feed the 6th army.

Blackouts in air raids have been a production problem, but the bakers have solved worse ones.

Bread Rises to Occasion.

When yeast ran out in New Guinea they made the bread rise by using dehydrated potatoes. When the potatoes ran out they used coconut milk that had been placed in the sun.

On Goodenough Island they ran short of bread pans and cut lard cans in half as substitutes. At Aitape and New Guinea they packed the baked loaves in flour tins and dropped them from planes to hungry troops.

Two-Thirds Are Illinoisans.

Capt. Carl H. Balsinger, member of a Kansas City, Mo., baking family, supervises the baking on Leyte. The 6th army's bakery personnel, about two-thirds Illinois men, includes these Chicagoans:

Sergeants Chester Hildebrant, 3000 N. Whipple st.; Leroy Jensen, 3132 Kilpatrick av.; Herman Kuebler, 1911 Cornelia av.; Herb Cole, 6336 Wayne av.; Leo Wojnarowski, 3142 W. 42d st.; Corporals Tommy Sarrell, 2847 W. NAZIS BLOW UP PORT, SHIPPING AT ROTTERDAM

SOMEWHERE IN HOLLAND, Nov. 7 (AP). — Rotterdam, once a great commercial city, is only one of the many places in Holland where German demolition squads were so thoro that years may be required to restore conditions to normal. The huge drydock capable of handling ships up to 30,000 tons was sunk square across one of the main portions of the harbor at Maashaven.

Thousands of barges which formerly plied the Rhine river deep into German territory were filled with machinery ripped from major factories and taken to the ship canals and sunk.

Sgt. Irving Loeb with his wife and son, Monte, at Jefferson barracks, Mo., yesterday.

Irving Loeb, 20, discharged army lieutenant who disappeared from his home at 3347 Madison st., leaving his wife and baby son, was found yesterday, after 11 days' absence, at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., where he had reënlisted in the army as a sergeant.

Loeb left home stating he was going to sell his uniform. He had returned recently from service in the Panama Canal zone. When he failed to return a search was begun that ended with his wife and son traveling to Jefferson Barracks to see him.

Capt. George Ihlenfeld, public relations officer at the barracks, said the army had not know Loeb was the object of a search and did not plan to question him on his reënlistment as his papers were in order and he had a 15 day option to become a sergeant in the army. Loeb told a St. Louis newspaper reporter he found it too hard to readjust himself to civilian life.

32D DIVISION HAS WISCONSIN AND MICHIGAN UNITS

The 32d division, first mention of whose appearance in the fighting on Leyte Island in the Philippines was made in Gen. MacArthur's war summary yesterday, is composed of former Wisconsin and Michigan National Guard units.

The Red Arrow division was organized at Camp MacArthur, Tex. [named for Gen. Arthur MacArthur, father of Douglas], in August, 1917.

The division established its fame in the battles of the Aisne-Marne, Oise-Marne, and Meuse-Argonne in World War I.

The present 32d division is a veteran of some of the toughest battles in the southwest Pacific jungles. The entire division was flown over the Owen Stanley mountains of New Guinea to wipe out a large Japanese force at Buna in 1942. Later the division fought at Saidor and at Aitape. On the way to the Philippines the division's transport ships were attacked by Jap planes but there were no losses.

The Red Arrow division has been overseas nearly three years and there have been many personnel changes in that time. Maj. Gen. William H. Gill is in command, succeeding Maj. Gen. Edwin F. Harding.

Luczak in Fillmore Street court yesterday when convicted of slashing his estranged wife, Angela, 40, of 1225 S. Christiana av., with a pocket knife on Aug. 9. Espinosa contended his wife cut herself with a butcher knife with which she was pursuing him.

WHEELER GETS STILWELL POST IN ASIATIC ZONE

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 17 (AP).—Appointment of Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler to succeed Gen. Stilwell as deputy commander of the allied southeast Asia command was announced today, along with a new set of British commanders from European theaters to direct the allied land, sea, and air efforts.

Lt. Gen. Wheeler.

Gen. Wheeler was principal administrative officer under the theater commander, Adm. Mountbatten, and will continue to serve in that capacity. He heads the American section of this headquarters and, as senior American officer here, handles lend-lease to all allies in this theater.

Gen. Leese Arrives.

The new command has been completed with arrival of Lt. Gen. Leese from the 8th army in Italy to succeed George Giffard as commander in chief of the old 11th army group, which he is reorganizing as the allied land forces of southeast Asia.

As commander in chief of the allied land forces in southeast Asia Gen. Leese heads all allied troops in India and Burma, including Americans and Chinese successfully pushing toward the Ledo road thru the vicinity of Bhamo under Lt. Gen. Sultan, commander in chief of United States forces in the Burma-India theater.

Fraser Heads Fleet.

The eastern fleet command was taken over last summer by Adm. Bruce Fraser of the British home fleet from James Somerville.

Gen. Wheeler of the class of 1911 at West Point is 59. He served first in Panama, was with Capt. Douglas MacArthur at Vera Cruz in 1914, and commanded the 4th engineers of the 4th division in France in the first World war. He left the United States in 1941 to rush supplies to Russia and China by way of Iran and Iraq and India.

JAPANESE ARMY SEIZES WALLED CITY OF ISHAN

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 17 (AP).—Japanese forces captured the walled city of Ishan, 43 miles northwest of fallen Liuchow, the Chinese high command announced today. The Japanese pushed up the Kwangsi-Kweichow railway in an apparent thrust toward Kweichow province and the provisional capital of Chungking.

A military spokesman denied rumors that Chinese authorities had ordered evacuation of nonessential civilians from Kweiyang, capital of Kweichow province, 140 miles northwest of Ishan.

Some observers expressed belief that the Japanese intended to invade Kweichow.

ARMY TO FREE 1,000 MEN FOR WAR JOBS HERE

Drastic Action Taken to Ease Man Power Crisis.

BY CHARLES BALLENGER.

In a drastic move to relieve critical man power shortages in the Chicago area, the war department announced yesterday that 1,000 men would be released from active military service on the condition that they take jobs in specified high priority foundries and forges.

This is the first time that the army has been willing to release soldiers for the sole purpose of speeding up war production. It was indicated that a similar plan might be followed to break other industrial bottlenecks if civilian workers still fail to take essential jobs.

Why Step Was Taken.

The step was taken, the war department said, because of the urgent need for increased production of heavy artillery, artillery ammunition, tanks, and military trucks.

"The success of our present offensives in Europe and the Pacific depends on an immediate increase in the production of these items," a war department spokesman said. "But a thousand men will not satisfy all the requirements of the war production program. Civilian workers will have to fill the other jobs."

The soldiers to be released must be over 30 years of age and have previous experience in forge and foundry work. No soldier who belongs to an infantry unit or who has been alerted for overseas duty will be eligible for release. The released soldiers will be sent back into industry as civilians, and the army will exercise no control over their wages or bargaining arrangements. The army retains the right, however, to recall the men to active duty if they do not keep their jobs.

Designated by Army.

Col. Dan A. Hardt, army representative on the war man power priorities committee, said nearly all the released soldiers will be sent to take jobs in forges and foundries in the Chicago area which have been designated by the army. Civilian workers, he said, will have to fill the critical man power requirements of other foundries and forges and other industries.

At the Teletype corporation, 1400 Wrightwood av., sole manufacturers of the teletype machine, a high speed automatic communications apparatus which sends and receives messages in a manner similar to the operation of a typewriter, more than 300 workers are needed, Col. Hardt pointed out.

Behind Their Quotas.

Because this company and its subsidiary parts manufacturers are behind their quotas, he said, a vital radio teletype station in Dakar, West Africa, broke down and important war messages were delayed for four days last week. When the machine broke down repair parts were not available, he said, and they had to be flown by special plane from Chicago.

The Teletype company already is 10 per cent behind its contract quota, and is in danger of falling further behind if additional help is not found, said E. F. Peschek, employment manager.

About 75 women and 45 men are needed as machinists and 25 men as tool and die and detail makers. About 125 men and women are needed for general labor.

NATION SHOWERS YULETIDE GIFTS ON STRICKEN BOY

Nubbins' Plight Stirs Christmas Spirit.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 17 [Special].—Santa Claus, in the person of hundreds of well wishers thruout the United States, today continued to pack an already bulging bag of Christmas presents—including a cocker spaniel puppy—in preparation for Sunday's special Christmas party for tousle haired Forest [Nubbins] Hoffman, 3, who is not expected to live until Santa's Dec. 25 trip.

Nubbins, whose physician has told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hoffman, that an incurable bladder disease may end his life before Christmas, played in his bed today. He scanned the skies outside for snow, while mail carriers and expressmen beat a path to the Hoffman home.

His parents found it hard to keep him from opening the packages.

"Lemme see inside, lemme see," Nubbins pleaded. His mother smilingly refused.

Railroad Sends Gifts.

W. M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad, for wnom Nubbins' daddy is a baggage handler, telephoned from Omaha, Neb., to say that the railroad is providing dozens of presents—including a pre-war model automobile—and turkey with all the trimmings for Nubbins' party.

The cocker spaniel puppy is the gift of an anonymous friend, who heard that Nubbins' mongrel pet, Parky, had been killed by a city bus a year ago.

Typical of the spirit of Nubbins' unknown friends was that of a small youngster, who rapped at the Hoffman door.

Hands Box and Vanishes.

"Would you put this under the tree?" he asked. He handed in a large, beribboned box and disappeared before the Hoffmans could learn his name.

Among the gifts that will greet Nubbins when he awakens Sunday morning will be a little blue music box, which plays the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" while pictures of wooden soldiers parade across a screen. The gift is one of a score sent by air mail express by a newspaper in Miami, Fla.

Soldiers, Civilians Killed as V-Bomb Blasts Bus

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP).—Some soldiers and civilians were killed when a German V-bomb fell recently on the front of a building, blowing to pieces an approaching bus, it was disclosed today. Several bodies were recovered. Only pieces of the bus engine remained in the street. Two women more than 90 years old were rescued from a nursing home. Only a few patients were injured when a bomb struck.

UNION STEWARD IS AQUITTED ON CHARGE OF RAPE

After less than two hours' deliberation, a jury of eight women and four men late yesterday returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Howard L. McGarvey, 36, charged with the rape and mistreatment last Sept. 17 of the young mother of a small daughter. He is chief steward of the CIO automobile workers' union at the Studebaker plant, where he has been employed as a lathe operator.

Judge Peter H. Schwaba, before whom the verdict was returned in Criminal court, set Dec. 1 for hearing of two other charges against McGarvey, crimes against nature involving a boy and the youthful mother.

Mrs. Helen Anton, 18, of 532 W. 45th pl., testified that McGarvey had raped her twice and further mistreated her after forcing her to accompany him to his room at 6129 S. Rockwell st. by threatening to kill her with a hunting knife.

McGarvey denied he had mistreated the young mother, but admitted he had been intimate with her after he said, she voluntarily went to his room with him.

HERE IS NAVY'S STORY OF BATTLE FOR PHILIPPINES

Fighting Is Traced from Start to Finish.

hit him to the northward, the airplanes of one carrier group swept over the northern part of Luzon, main island of the Philippine commonwealth, while the other carrier forces were refueling. That strike cost the Japanese 10 to 15 airplanes destroyed on the ground. Enemy opposition was inconsequential.

"Three times, in as many days, the United States forces had struck at three different and widely separated strongholds of the enemy. On the fourth day, Oct. 12, a fleet appeared in the enemy's own backyard, off the Island of Formosa, from which the aerial attack against the Philippines had been launched by the Japanese nearly three years before. Our objectives were the 25 to 30 first class military air fields on Formosa, the airplanes based there, and, of course, any other military establishments on shore and the enemy shipping in the harbors.

55 Jap Vessels Destroyed.

"Our fleet maneuvered in the vicinity of Formosa for three days, Oct. 12, 13, and 14. Fifty-five enemy vessels of all kinds were certainly destroyed, and 32 were probably sunk, while approximately 396 airplanes were destroyed in the air or on the ground. On the last day, and on Oct. 16, Formosa was additionally the target of United States army B-29s, flying from China.

"The effrontery of the attack on Formosa from the sea provoked the Japanese into immediate counteraction. Strong units of bomber and torpedo planes swept down from the islands of the empire, to be met and broken up by fighters from our carriers. Two Japanese planes which forced their way thru found targets in a couple of United States medium size ships, which were damaged by torpedoes, but which successfully retired to the eastward.

"Now comes one of the most fantastic chapters of the war. The Japanese aviators who managed to reach home reported an amazing victory, and Tokyo was quick to claim—for the fifth or sixth time—that the naval strength of the United States had been rendered puny. But, this time the Japanese believed their own propaganda, that at least 15 carriers had been sunk and varying quantities of other warships.

Jap Fleet Runs Back.

"A task force of the Japanese navy was sighted leaving the empire to give the American fleet its coup de grace, but when the astonished pilots of the enemy scouting force saw the size of the healthy opposition deploying to receive them, the Japanese expedition wheeled and ran back to the safer waters of the empire. Adm. Halsey ironically observed that his ships sunk by Jap radio announcement had been salvaged, and were 'retiring at high speed toward the Japanese fleet.'

"On Oct. 10 our carrier planes began working over the Philippine island of Luzon, and the lesser islands of the archipelago to the south and east, in order to come into immediate support of the amphibious forces approaching for the invasion. Only about 85 enemy planes were bagged in the sweeps over approximately 100 air fields up to the time our carriers, both the large and fast ones and the smaller escort ships, converged in support of the landings of the United States amphibious forces on Leyte. The strategy had succeeded, and the landings were effected by Gen. MacArthur's forces in complete surprise.

"The invasion of the Philippines employed a grand scale use of all arms of modern warfare; land and amphibious forces, surface and subsurface ships, and, of course, a tremendous air coverage.

"A look at the chart will show the confusion of islands upon whose perimeter the initial assault was made. They form a maze of channels, of which the two providing the best egress to the Pacific are San Bernardino strait in the north, between Luzon and Samar Islands, and Surigao strait in the south, between Leyte and Mindanao.

"One of the precautions our forces took against a Japanese incursion from the westward was to post submarines on the opposite side of the archipelago. Early on the morning of Oct. 23, before daylight, two of our submarines flashed the word to the invasion forces that a strong Japanese fleet was headed northeastward from the South China sea into Philippine waters—and characteristically reported, also, that they were moving in to attack. They sent four torpedoes in each of three heavy cruisers, two of which reported to have been left sinking, and the third heavily damaged. The enemy forces scattered, and in the pursuit one of the submarines ran on a reef in the middle of the restricted channel and had to be destroyed, after all of the crew was removed to safety.

Carriers Extend Search.

"Later that day other contacts with the enemy were reported, in Mindoro strait, south of Luzon, and off the mouth of Manila bay, where the reporting submarine badly damaged another heavy cruiser, which managed, however, to limp into the bay.

"Thus alerted, the carrier forces immediately extended their patrol searches westward over the Visayan sea and the Sulu sea. On Tuesday, Oct. 24, two large enemy fleets were seen making their way eastward. One in the Sulu sea was obviously headed for Mindanao sea and its exit into the Pacific, Surigao strait. It consisted of two battleships, Fuso and Yamashiro; two heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, and eight or 10 destroyers. Our carrier planes attacked and inflicted some damage on the battleships, one of the cruisers, and two of the destroyers, but the enemy continued doggedly on the way to the strait, at whose mouth, where it debouched into Leyte gulf, a surprise reception committee was being assembled.

"The larger enemy force of the central prong of attack was initially composed of five battleships, the modern Yamato and Musashi, and the Nagato, Kongo, and Haruna. In support were seven heavy cruisers, one light cruiser, and from 13 to 15 destroyers. This task force was also engaged as it steamed thru the Sibuyan sea by the carrier force of the 3d fleet. One of the Japanese battleships and two of the cruisers were heavily damaged and most of the other vessels in the group received hits. After engaging in a running battle, the Japanese turned back upon their course as if decided not to attempt to force San Bernardino strait.

Defeat Two Jap Forces.

"While these carrier strikes were being made against the two enemy fleets, our own ships and landing forces were being subjected to a very heavy air attack by hundreds of land-based planes darting out from the Philippines' 100 or more air fields. During these attacks the Princeton was hit and set on fire, and so damaged that the carrier had to be destroyed.

"Among the attacking Japanese planes was one group of carrier-based aircraft which flew in from the north, so search groups were dispatched from the 3d fleet to track them down. At 3:40 in the afternoon of that same Tuesday, Oct. 24, two enemy forces were detected coming down from the northern tip of Luzon to join battle. They included two battleships, the Ise and Hyuga, four carriers, including one large ship of the Zuikaku class, a heavy cruiser, three light cruisers, and six destroyers. The 3d fleet, upon receipt of this information, turned to meet the oncoming enemy.

"The United States forces aiding and protecting the landing on Leyte were now the target for three converging Japanese groups totaling, without estimating submarines, nine battleships, four carriers, 13 heavy cruisers and seven light cruisers, and 30 odd destroyers. The stage was set.

"Shortly after midnight, our PT boats off the southern approaches to Surigao strait detected and reported the approach of the enemy's southern force, the one that had been battered but not deterred. The PTs reported that two of their torpedoes had probably struck as many ships, but still the enemy came on. Three hours later, United States destroyers on picket duty in the strait discovered the Japanese coming thru in two columns, making about 20 knots.

U. S. Destroyers Attack.

"The destroyers attacked, and almost simultaneously, the battleships and cruisers stationed at the mouth of the strait opened fire. The enemy was caught in narrow waters, and caught in the fire, too, of five battleships, he had accounted as lost in the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor—the West Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, California, and Pennsylvania, all modernized and more powerful than ever.

"The Japanese columns slowed indecisively to 12 knots, and then, as shell after shell from the American vessels found their marks, the enemy tried to reverse course and escape. Of the two battleships, two heavy cruisers and two light, and 10 destroyers, all were sunk except one battleship, one or two cruisers, and perhaps half the destroyers. The next day our aviators discovered the battleship and a fugitive cruiser, badly crippled, and finished them off.

"Our losses in the entire action were one PT boat sunk and one destroyer damaged.

Locate Northern Force.

"While the southern prong of the Japanese attack was being obliterated by surface action, the northernmost had been located from the air during the night—and it promptly swung from a southeasterly course to a northerly one. Hot pursuit resulted in a new contact early in the morning of the 25th. The Japanese carriers had few planes on their decks—they had sent their aircraft against our ships the day before, and the planes apparently had to refuel on Luzon before returning to their mother ships. Indeed, the Japanese airplanes came in to rejoin their carriers while the United States bombers and torpedo planes were sending three of the four ships to the bottom and making the deck of the fourth no fit landing place for anything. Twenty-one of the homing Japanese airplanes were intercepted and destroyed by the fighter cover of the United States forces.

"Not only did the aerial assault sink three of the four carriers and damage the fourth, but two of the Japanese destroyers were sent down. The enemy force turned and made their way toward Japan, with some of our ships crowding on all steam to catch them—the remainder of the 3d fleet units turned south at full speed for a reason about to be made clear. Our cruisers and destroyers quickly overtook the surviving but crippled Japanese carrier and sent it down without effort. During the night, one of our submarines intercepted a damaged cruiser, and finished it off with torpedoes.

"What had caused Adm. Halsey to divert part of his force southward was the report that a group of our escort carriers operating in support of the landings on Leyte was being threatened by superior enemy forces. The anti-submarine patrol of this group of six escort carriers and seven destroyers and destroyer escorts had detected in Wednesday's dawn an approaching Japanese force of four battleships, seven cruisers, and nine destroyers. They were apparently the surviving elements of the enemy task force which had been attacked from the air in the Sibuyan sea and forced to flee westward. During the night the group had traversed San Bernardino strait.

Japanese Close In.

"The escort carriers, silhouetted against the dawn, came under heavy fire from the Japanese force which, in the western gloom and with the Philippine hills providing further concealment, possessed every advantage of position and firing power. The carriers, converted merchantmen, headed off to the eastward into the east wind at the top of their limited speed, launching aircraft to attack the enemy. But the enemy's superior speed and gun power swiftly told.

"The Japanese continued to close in, hauling around to the northward and forcing this carrier group to head southward, under continuous fire from the enemy's 16 inch, 14 inch, and 8 inch shells. Japanese marksmanship was poor, and American seamanship excellent, however, and altho frequently straddled, our ships were not heavily hit during the first part of the engagement. By 9 o'clock, tho, despite a sustained air attack on the enemy and the best efforts of the destroyer support with smoke screens and forays against the Japanese, the carriers began to take considerable punishment.

Japs Pay High Price.

"One of them was sunk. Two destroyers and a destroyer escort which courageously charged the Japanese battleships went down under the enemy's heavy shells. Nevertheless, the Japanese paid an exhorbitant price for their success, such as it was. Two of their heavy cruisers were sunk, and one—perhaps two—of their destroyers went down under the concentrated counter-attack from surface and air.

"Still the enemy pressed his advantage, and by 9:20 the carrier group had been jockeyed into a situation with the Japanese, only 12,000 yards distant, and in position for the kill.

"Then, suddenly, the enemy ships hauled away, gradually widening the distance and, to the astonishment of the battered American forces, broke off the battle with a final and harmless spread of torpedoes before steaming over the northern horizon at high speed, trailing oil from pierced hulls as they fled.

"What happened can be reconstructed from the events already reviewed. The Japanese admiral, with a costly local victory in sight, received word of the destruction of the southern force in Surigao strait and the utter rout of the northern force with the destruction of its carriers. He had to get back thru San Bernardino strait, or face annihilation.

Attack Jap Fugitives.

"Further, tho the Jap may not have known it, we had a battleship and cruiser force—a part of the 7th fleet—in Leyte gulf for the purpose of protecting the transports and landing craft from any enemy force attempting to destroy them. This was the force which so completely defeated the Japanese southern force before daylight in the southern part of Leyte gulf, almost annihilating it—and which was still available—almost unscathed—to prevent the entrance of the central force.

"The vanguard of the returning 3d fleet units caught one straggling enemy destroyer before it reached the strait and sank it. Early the next day air groups from our carriers ranged over the Sibuyan sea and continued attacks on the fugitives, probably sinking one heavy cruiser and a light cruiser.

"Back at the scene of the attack on the carriers, the Japanese continued to harass the American ships with land-based planes, resulting in the sinking of a second of the CVEs [escort carriers], but the second battle of the Philippines was over and decisively won. The enemy fleet had sustained losses and damage which materially weakened their over-all naval and air strength against the final drive of the United States forces against the empire.

"We must not, however, allow ourselves to feel that this victory effectively prevented any reenforcement of the Jap forces on Leyte and Samar, because he can still, by the very nature of the geography of the islands which afford protection and hiding places for short, fast transportation runs, continul his reenforcements at an increasingly diminishing rate. He cannot, however, prevent our own reënforcement and supply of Gen. MacArthur and his gallant troops. Our naval and air forces will continue to insure the control of these sea approaches to the Philippines and the effective support and supply of our troops."

PUPILS CLAIM CREDIT FOR 25% REDUCTION IN YOUTH DELINQUENCY

Adults who wondered what teenage youngsters could do to help Chicago and Cook county curb juvenile delinquency had their answer yesterday when the Chicago Youth conference met in the council chambers of the city hall. It was the announcement that delinquency had decreased in this area 25 per cent and the young people claimed credit for much of the showing.

"The side-line critics need not imagine for a single instance that we haven't helped meet the issues," said William Ehler, De La Salle High school pupil. "Because of us many social agencies have stepped up their programs, churches have expanded recreational activities, and at least some parents have been made to realize their home responsibilities."

It was the fourth meeting of the group since it was organized in February, at the recommendation of the Chicago Conference for Youth. About 400 delegates, representing some 175,000 high school students attended.

AUSTRALIA ADVISED TO REJECT PLAN FOR JEWISH SETTLEMENT

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

CANBERRA, Australia, Nov. 17.—A committee of commonwealth officials has advised the Australian government to refuse permission for the establishment of a Jewish settlement in the Kimberley division of northwestern Australia. It is known that Prime Minister Curtin and other senior ministers disapprove of the establishment of large foreign communities anywhere in Australia, feeling that they would tend to create racial and foreign speaking minorities. There will be no discrimination against Jewish immigrants, but all immigrants will be settled under conditions encouraging them to merge with the native born population.

REDS ADVANCE ALONG 65 MILE HUNGARY FRONT

Bring Miskolc in Range of Their Artillery.

LONDON, Nov. 18 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian troops advanced up to four miles on a 65 mile front and hurled the enemy back yesterday into the Matra and Bukk mountains northeast of besieged Budapest, capital of Hungary, Moscow said last night.

A Russian bulletin announced the capture of Fuzesabony, Hungarian rail junction. Fuzesabony is 60 miles northeast of Budapest. Its fall gave the Russians control of a 27 mile section of the Budapest-Miskolc railway, which also has been cut 10 miles east of Hatvan, a junction 26 miles from the capital. Hatvan was reported under attack from three sides.

Russian tank and infantry forces were fighting their way slowly along invasion paths to Austria and Czechoslovakia in a flanking maneuver pivoting on Budapest's outskirts. No change was reported in the battle along the fringes of the capital.

Reds Flank Miskolc.

At the top end of the front the Russians climbed 1,000 feet up the Bukk mountains near the Czechoslovak border and seized the village of Huta in a flanking movement on Miskolc, Hungary's fifth city. This placed them within two miles of the enemy's westward escape route out of Miskolc.

In northern Yugoslavia, the Germans reported, the Russians carried out a number of thrusts from their bridgehead on the west bank of the Danube near Batina, 107 miles south of Budapest. Moscow has never confirmed this crossing.

Marshal Tito's headquarters said that Yugoslav troops driving north from Skoplje, Yugoslavia, had captured Gnjilane, 30 miles north, and Kacanik, 17 miles northwest.

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN.

Berlin's broadcast summary said yesterday:

"In southern Hungary repeated soviet attacks from the Danube bridgehead at Batine were smashed. Enemy attempts to cross the river were foiled by our air force. East of Budapest and south of the Matra mountains and in the Plain of Miskolc the defense battle grew to the utmost ferocity. German and Hungarian formations launched a counter-attack against enemy forces which broke into individual sectors. On the whole the soviet attacks were frustrated in a heavy struggle."

ZIONISTS MUST END TERRORISM, CHURCHILL SAYS

Call on All Ranks to Balk Assassins.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Prime Minister Churchill in the house of commons today called on all Jews to destroy the Palestine terrorists blamed for the assassination of W. E. Guinness [Lord Moyne], British minister resident in the middle east.

Churchill said that without the wholehearted coöperation of the entire Jewish community, which the British government was "entitled to demand and receive," British police and military authorities would fail to smash terrorism in Palestine.

Describing himself as a "consistent friend of Jews and a constant architect of their future," Churchill warned: "If our dreams for Zionism are to end in the smoke of an assassin's pistol and our labors for the future are to produce a new set of gangsters worthy of Nazi Germany, then many like myself may have to reconsider the position we maintained so consistently so long in the past."

Zionism's Future Seen at Stake.

"If there be any hope of a successful future for Zionism," he went on, "all these wicked activities must cease and those responsible must be destroyed, root and branch."

Palestine authorities in a campaign against the Stern gang of extremists, which has been blamed for the killing of Guinness in Cairo, Egypt, have arrested hundreds of suspects and deported 251 in fear of a mass attempt to release them, Churchill disclosed.

Churchill emphasized that the chief responsibility for smashing the terrorists rested with Palestine authorities under the British government. He referred to an appeal by Jewish leaders to the community to drive terrorists out of all refuge and shelter, to resist their threats against the authorities, and to eradicate terrorist organizations.

Wait for Action.

"These are strong words," the prime minister said, "but we must wait for them to be translated into deeds. We must wait to see that not only the leaders, but every man, woman, and child in the Jewish community does his or her best to bring terrorism to a speedy end."

Churchill said that two Jews seized after the shooting of Guinness were under Egyptian authority and that their trials would be conducted "with all dispatch and correctness." If the two men prove to be deserters from the Palestine military forces, however, he said, they will be tried by British court martial.

CHURCHILL PROPOSES TO FURLOUGH 80,000 IN DISTANT WAR ZONES

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP).—A chance for a four week holiday at home for a small percentage of Britain's fighting men on distant battle fronts was held out today by Prime Minister Churchill as a compromise of demands for reduced periods of overseas service.

He disclosed in commons a plan to grant four weeks of home leave to 80,000 men in a year, bringing back 6,000 or more a month.

The plan would be applied to soldiers in Italy, North and East Africa, the middle east, Persia-Irak [Mesopotamia], India, and Southeast Asia, subject to the war needs in each theater, with the commanders empowered to suspend it if necessary.

Churchill said the arrangement would not affect those serving on Europe's western front because every one was needed there now.

PAASIKIVI IS NEW PRIME MINISTER IN FINN SHAKEUP

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 17 (AP).—J. K. Paasikivi, a leading exponent of Finnish friendship with Russia, was named prime minister of Finland today in a cabinet shakeup which saw 10 new ministers named to President Mannerheim's cabinet. Among the 10 new ministers named to the 18 man cabinet was Y. Leino, a Communist, appointed to the assistant communications post. C. J. A. Enckell remains as foreign minister.

The aging Paasikivi, who participated in the negotiations which led to the armistice between Finland and Russia, succeeds Erhu Castren, who has served since the armistice was signed. Paasikivi served as premier once before, in 1918, and later was minister to Moscow.

[Soviet organs recently have criticized the Castren regime for its handling of problems arising from the armistice.]

THREE RESIGNED BELGIAN CHIEFS YIELD ON ARMS

Greek Deadline Set

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 17 [Reuter].—An agreement has been reached to dissolve all armed partisan organizations, and the date has been fixed by the government as Dec. 10, it is stated in both left and right wing government circles here.

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP).—The Brussels radio announced tonight that the allied mission in Brussels had won a promise from three resigned Belgian ministers that they would support Prime Minister Hubert Pierlot's government in its effort to disarm the country's resistance groups and "do everything in their power to maintain order."

The three former ministers—Communist Albert Marteaux, and Raymond Dispy and Ferdinand Demany representing the resistance—who had walked out of the cabinet in opposition to its decision on the Maquis issue yesterday, gave their promise to Maj. Gen. G. W. E. J. Erskine, chief of the allied mission to Belgium, after a conference this evening.

Yield to Allied Wishes.

An announcement broadcast after the conference said the former ministers still opposed the decision, but that they were yielding now "to wishes of the government and the allied armies."

"Gen. Erskine asked the ministers to do everything in their power to avoid acts which might provoke friction with the allied forces," the announcement said.

"The ministers took note of this and agreed to do everything in their power to respect the laws and maintain order. On the question of laying down arms the ministers will do everything in their power to have this gesture made, in order to follow the wishes of the government and the allied armies."

Army May Rule.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 17 (AP).—Premier Hubert Pierlot's internally assailed government, setting a Saturday midnight deadline for 40,000 of the resistance "White Army" to surrender their arms, said today that if any major difficulty arose, Gen. Eisenhower's allied supreme command would take over.

The situation was tense as marchers shouted "resign" in front of Pierlot's home. Deputy Premier Henri Fayat told newsmen that it was "not yet proved" it would be impossible to disarm resistance groups without calling in allied aid.

Cite Pro-Axis Groups.

Aside from opposition to currency regulations initiated by Pierlot's government, the resistance groups contend that pro-axis collaborators still have not been smashed, and object to what they term an attempt to break up their own organizations.

Fayat declared emphatically that the government "intends to make a thoro purge of collaborationists and has no intention of disbanding or separating patriots who fought bravely" but "the government, on the other hand, cannot permit unauthorized persons to bear arms." He explained that the government could not take the Forces of the Interior into the Belgian army as a solid group "because then you would get a political army and a force for rebellion."

Socialists Back Premier.

Disciplinary action already has been taken against Belgian police who failed to obey rigid instructions to prevent a mass meeting of resistance groups last night.

The executive committee of the Socialist party, second largest political organization in the country, is supporting Pierlot's stand.

HIT NAZIS WITH 50,000 TONS OF BOMBS IN 17 DAYS

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP).—More than 50,000 tons of explosives already have cascaded on the reich this month from the bomb racks of 16,000 Fortresses, Liberators, Lancasters, and Halifaxes, which await only a break in the weather to pass the 100,000 ton mark.

Britain based bombers and fighters were grounded today, but American planes from Italy swarmed over southern Germany in a follow up punch to yesterday's 6,000 plane onslaught.

Seven hundred 15th air force heavy bombers raided oil plants and other targets in southeastern Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Yugoslavia, doing most of the bombing by instrument in bad weather. They were escorted by 350 fighters. Flying Fortresses attacked rail yards at Salzburg, in former Austria, a junction of lines between Munich, Vienna, and Italy.

Fifty-one planes are missing from the allied force of 6,050 that went into action yesterday.

GERMANS QUIT TOWN IN ITALY WITHOUT FIGHT

ROME, Italy, Nov. 17 (AP).—British and Indian troops, closing on the highway center of Faenza, southeast of Bologna, occupied the road junction of Modigliana, nine miles south of the city, without a fight. They also gained up to a mile in the last 24 hours along route 9 from Forli, it was announced tonight.

Alternate rain and hailstorms and temperature in the low 20s virtually stalled other allied forces on the Italian front, including American troops in the mountains south of Bologna.

Bowing to British-Indian pressure, the Germans withdrew from Modigliana secretly after defending it fiercely for a week.

YANKS 14 MILES IN REICH; PATTON OPENS NEW PUSH

3d Army 2 Miles from Saar Border.

in tactical support of the ground forces.

The 9th air force pilots reported that Duren, Julich, and other communications centers on the road to the Rhine were completely obliterated by our artillery fire. Our heavies dropped more than 5,000 tons of bombs on the towns yesterday.

[A Berlin radio commentator declared that the 1st on the second day of its attack had torn a breach in the German line in this area. Duren is 20 miles southwest of Cologne on the Rhine.]

The American 1st and 9th armies were fighting side by side where the Germans have massed their greatest strength on the edge of the Cologne plain fearing a breakthru to the Ruhr.

The 1st was believed to be less than four miles from the flooded Roer river, greatest natural barrier between the Americans and the Rhine.

Several German villages were overrun but the count of German prisoners was low, with only about 150 taken on one of the hottest sectors of the front.

A front dispatch said the enemy hurled his flying bombs in increasing numbers at the American positions.

U. S. 9th Nears Roer.

The 9th army northeast of Aachen was believed to be only a little farther from the Roer after beating off the tank led counter-blow. They were driving toward Linninch, on the Roer 29 miles west of the Rhineland industrial city of Cologne.

More tanks and convoys rumbled thru the hole in the Siegfried line—originally battered by the 1st army—to meet the German attack.

On the 3d army's southern flank, the United States 7th army was closing in around flaming St. Die, enemy supply center for the Vosges region. St. Die at the entrance of St. Marie pass was set afire by the Germans. Thirty-five miles east of St. Die lie Bavaria and the Rhine.

[The Germans said the 3d army also was thrusting out on its right flank and was three miles from the German base of Falquemont, little more than 10 miles south of the Saar frontier.]

In southwestern Holland, British patrols crossed the Maas at a point east of the destroyed Moerdijk bridge, touching off violent enemy artillery reaction.

CHICAGO YANKS HELP TO OPEN 1ST ARMY DRIVE

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT A U. S. 1ST ARMY OBSERVATION POST, Germany, Nov. 16 [Delayed].—As the long lull on this front came to an end today, the swirling American activity could be seen from this observation post.

Others at the post included three Chicagoans, Chief Warrant Officer Seymour Motel, 5516 W. Monroe st., Lt. Carl Fliessbach, 915 Thatcher av., River Forest, and Lt. Col. Keith Haycraft of Lombard.

Along a twisting muddy road where shells from both sides whined overhead, we could see the infantry in long lines waiting to move forward. At a crossroads atop a little knoll a mortar platoon crouched busily over their weapon, pouring shells into the tube and holding their ears as each shell was fired. Lt. Frank McGill of La Fayette, Ill., was in command of the unit which was firing upon Germans about 800 yards down the road. Others of his unit included Corp. Carmen Michelli, 1737 W. Polk st., and Sgt. Charles H. Fredo, 2324 Wentworth av., both of Chicago.

LACK OF DIGGERS DELAYS BURIALS IN BRITISH TOWN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Tho it still isn't too difficult to get killed in Britain, it's a problem to get buried, it developed tonight. Briadford is short of grave diggers. Often mourners must wait six days before they can bury their relatives.

Undertakers are reported to be helpless in the face of the labor shortage. Clergymen are distresed by the inconvenience and heartbreak caused families.

FALL OF METZ IS NEAR; YANKS ONLY MILE AWAY

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY IN FRANCE, Nov. 17.—Capture of Metz for the first time in its modern history appeared imminent tonight as American infantry men battled almost in the fortress' outskirts on the north, south, and west.

One mile west, 5th division troops slugged their way from hangar to hangar at the Frescaty air field. Other forces were preparing to attack Fort Queleu, which is virtually on the southeastern city limits. Units of the 95th division surrounded Fort Gambetta, a mile and a half northwest, and advanced to within a mile of Metz.

Chicagoan in Drive.

The 378th and 379th regiments of the 95th division—which includes 1,400 Chicagoans—drove south from Ay-sur-Moselle to the vicinity of Malroy, three miles north of Metz.

The important forts of Sommy and St. Blaise, five miles southwest of Metz, were being attacked from behind at close quarters as American loud speakers urged their garrisons to give up the fight.

Among the prisoners taken today were many older men taken from administrative or office work and thrown into the defense of the city. Their uniforms were clean but their fighting spirit was poor.

Prepare for Finish Fight.

According to the prisoners, the defenders of Metz have only two choices—fight or surrender. The prisoners of war said that SS [elite guard] troops and Gestapo men were stationed along the roads thru the "escape gap" on the east which now has been narrowed to less than four miles, with orders to shoot any German troops attempting to flee the beleaguered city. The prisoners also said that the Germans within the city were feverishly digging anti-tank traps and erecting barricades in preparation for a house to house fight.

The fort at Chesny, three miles southeast of Metz, was captured as 5th division troops in this area recovered 18 American tanks lost six weeks ago.

POLES REQUEST UNRRA TO SEND SUPPLIES BY AIR

LONDON, Nov. 17 [Reuter].—The Polish government in London, dissatisfied with the delay in united nations relief and rehabilitation administration supplies for Poland, today asked Herbert Lehman, the director general of UNRRA now in London, that such supplies should be dropped from the air.

In a letter to Lehman, the Polish deputy prime minister, Jan Kwapinski, who is also Polish delegate to the UNRRA council, said: "Poland is under the pressure of the sixth winter of the war, and there is complete lack of medical supplies, foodstuffs, clothing, and the primary necessities for existence."

The suggestion of dropping supplies from the air followed the indication given by Lehman at his press conference yesterday that the Russian government will have certain veto power over UNRRA supplies for Poland, since they must pass thru soviet territory.

I must have gotten up on the wrong side of the bed this morning.

SEN. LA FOLLETTE AND REP. CHURCH ACT IN RAIL STRIKE

Sen. La Follette [P., Wis.] and Rep. Church [R., Ill.] both interested themselves yesterday in attempts to bring to a halt the week old strike of trainmen which has tied up services on the North Shore and Aurora-Elgin railroads. The strike was called when the trainmen were denied a 9 cent an hour pay increase which they contended had been granted by the national railway labor panel early this year.

Sen. La Follette.

La Follette's action was a request for full information concerning the extent of injury the war effort has suffered in Wisconsin as a result. He addressed it to Atty. H. William Ihrig of Milwaukee, representative of the North Shore Independent Bond Holder's committee, who had written the senator urging Presidential action to terminate the strike.

Rep. Church addressed a telegram to the President asking prompt action on behalf of thousands of service men at Great Lakes and Fort Sheridan, and war workers and the general public in the Chicago area who had appealed to him. Approximately 1,000 nonoperating employes have been laid off by the railroads because of idlness created by the walkout of 504 trainmen.

British Court Orders Vet Rehired, Pay Doubled

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.—In one of the most unusual reinstatement verdicts yet handed down, a Liverpool tribunal today ruled that a firm not only must rehire a discharged soldier but must more than double his weekly wages. The committee decided a former service man who was a $7 a week junior worker in an undertaking establishment five years ago now has reached senior status and is worth $16 a week.

GREENLAND GIs HELP 'KEEP THEM FLYING' OVER SEA

Finds Morale High Among Isolated Troops.

BY FRANK CIPRIANI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. AIR TRANSPORT COMMAND BASE in Greenland, Nov. 17.—Far from the civilized world, in a land of perpetual snow and ice, American forces here perform their daily job under rigorous conditions without complaint.

Operations here were studied by 12 correspondents who are traveling aboard an air transport command plane on a tour of various ATC bases in the North Atlantic division.

Morale in the various services is substantially high altho Greenland, despite its beauty, is not the place in which the boys want to settle and raise a family. There's no corner drug store nor neighborhood movie for them to visit. A four or eight hour pass isn't worth asking for. There is no such thing as a near-by town.

Planes on Schedule.

Plane movements are frequent and on schedule, and the base rates as a prime link in the movement of aerial traffic between home and European battle fronts.

This base sits on a level at the end of a fiord some miles inland from the sea. Landing flights must follow the fiord. It is banked on both sides by high walls.

The landing field is long, the runways wide and smooth. Near-by are operational and other vital quarters. Scattered around, but in fundamental military manner, are the living units. Most of them are iron huts. These are low, rather long, and resemble a loaf of bread. All are heated individually with modern stoves. Because of heavy winds, most stoves are chained to the floor to prevent them from falling over.

The men's quarters are "typical barracks." The girls fare better. Twelve army nurses and four Red Cross girls are on duty here. Their spirit also is high.

Recreation Limited.

Recreation is limited. Reading takes first place, with radio next. Bowling, darts, and in good weather normal outdoor games are popular. Ice fishing has many devotees, even among the nurses and Red Cross girls. A large lunchroom and a large post exchange provide meeting places for the men.

Because this is primarily an air base, weather figures every second in its operations. Located on Greenland's southern extremity, its weather is not as cold as Chicago's. The lowest record at this point since the American occupation was 15 below. Temperatures farther north drop to more than 40 below.

Wind and muck and fog create the problems; and sometimes, hazards. Planes travel in bad weather as well as good, but when ceilings drop, and fierce winds lash the land, groundings are automatic. In some seasons, flying delays because of weather total eight or nine days a month.

Defeat Bad Weather.

Yet the ATC and its army components are defeating bad weather. Brig. Gen. Lawrence Fritz, ATC North Atlantic commander, has proved that planes can fly the North Atlantic "in winter as well as in summer."

Weather reporting stations are scattered in strategic spots thruout Greenland. The boys who man these stations make weather readings hourly and transmit them to the base weather office where they are analyzed. These analyzed reports are flashed to flyers in the air or on other bases.

The troops at the isolated weather stations are young. Most of them were trained back home; some at the University of Chicago, some at Chanute field, Ill. They are not compelled to go on weather reporting missions. It is largely a voluntary matter, and the volunteers are more numerous than the needs.

Alone for Six Months.

The volunteers go away for at least six months. It may be more nearly eight, and in some cases even longer than a year. But for half a year at least, these weather reporters live hundreds of miles away from base, along lonely and uninhabited coasts.

In the summer they are supplied by boat, in the long winter season by aircraft via parachute. In that season of short days and long nights their only visitors are an occasional flyer overhead or Eskimos who seek to exchange ivory craft for cigarets, money, or other commodities. Reading, the radio, cards, and fishing form their main recreation.

Probably the greatest thrill of these men is the mail. Letters from home are delivered regularly by plane. Sending their letters home is a different process. The boys write at least one a week. Then, at the end of their assignment—six, eight, or 12 months—the letters are mailed in one batch. Corp. Daniel A. O'Neil, Portsmouth, O., wrote 21 letters, seven pages each, in 6½ months.

Of the men who have served in the weather outposts, only one reacted emotionally, and then only temporarily. Curiously, he was the one who wrote an article on living in an isolated spot. He titled it "Isolitis."

Officers Are Considerate.

Everything possible is done for the men's comfort. Officers are considerate. The general spirit is more sympathetic. Capt. Kenneth M. Gearhart, a chaplain, said the men are better men up here.

Most of the men are from the northeast and far western states. One Chicagoan was found, Lt. Seymour Greenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Greenberg, 5007 Monticello av. He is a communications officer. Lt. Greenberg was 1942 tennis champion of the Big Ten at Northwestern.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

THE QUESTION.

How would you maneuver an elopement?

WHERE ASKED.

120 S. La Salle bldg.

THE ANSWERS.

Jeanette Alderden, clerk, 7258 Lowe av.—First of all I'd want to get my folks out so I could carry my suitcase away. I'd ask a friend to invite them over for the evening. Then I would write a short note telling them I planned to spend the week-end with a friend. That would give me time to complete my plans.

Jennie Wallin, clerk, 7953 Langley av. — I live with my sisters. Quite often I go out of town to visit a girl friend. It would be easy for me to get away. For instance, if my friend were returning to the United States and landed at San Francisco I could meet him there and send a wire home telling them about it.

Phyllis Tompkins, secretary, 9211 Loomis st. — It would look suspicious if I packed a big suitcase and then said I was spending the night with a friend. So to allow for the big case I'd say that my friend wanted to borrow it. In addition to that I could take a small overnight bag to have room for more clothes.

Lois Ragsdale, clerk, 651 3d av., Joliet, Ill. — If no one were at home I'd simply pack and leave. But if, while packing, mother should walk in and inquire where I was going I'd laugh and say, "I'm going to elope." She wouldn't believe me and would assume I was to stay with a friend. I wouldn't want to lie to her.

Beatrice Carney, clerk, 525 W. 69th st.—I think I'd tell my mother and father that I had my vacation changed to now and that I decided to go on a trip. We could stay away on a honeymoon for two weeks and no one would know it. Then if I chose to return to work after my vacation I could do it and let every one know later.

Asta Larsen, book shop manager, 1938 N. Kilbourn av.—My friend is so sensible he'd never want to elope. He'd prefer a church wedding. But if he changed his mind I could tell my folks I was going to visit a friend in Rhode Island. She's always inviting me, so all I would have to do is accept the supposed invitation.

STRIKE CRIPPLES PHONE SERVICE IN 10 OHIO CITIES

Columbus, O., Nov. 17 (AP).—A strike by union telephone operators, which began in war busy Dayton, crippled communications in nine other cities tonight, and threatened to spread across the state as operators in city after city voted to support the walkout.

Dayton operators, serving the army's Wright and Patterson fields, left their switchboards in protest, unionists said, against the Ohio Bell Telephone company practice of hiring out of town operators at salary plus expense account. The operators are members of the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers, an unaffiliated union.

The stoppage spread quickly to Columbus and Toledo, among larger cities, and also hampered long distance service and manually operated local telephones in Xenia, Tiffin, Findlay, Wellsville, Winchester, Sandusky, and East Liverpool. Local dial telephone service in the three larger cities was unaffected.

Others to Vote Today.

Springfield's 100-plus operators voted to join the strike at 7 a. m. tomorrow, and at Akron 380 approved strike action but voted to stay on the job pending strike ballots tomorrow by locals at Cleveland, Canton, and Youngstown.

Ohio Bell spokesmen said "skeleton crews, manned by maintenance men, company officials, and non-striking operators, are maintaining service as well as possible." In Columbus an official said all incoming toll calls and "90 per cent of the outgoing calls" were being handled.

Company officials said the girls brought to Dayton from other cities received approximately $18 as living expenses, in addition to their regular salaries. Average pay for operators in Dayton, they reported, was $27 per week.

Strikers Defy WLB Order.

The war labor board, given the case by Secretary Perkins, referred it to its regional office at Cleveland, which sent a back to work order to R. G. Pollock of Cleveland, president of the federation.

When this was not complied with, the board ordered Pollock and Jeannette Reedy of Dayton, president of the federation's southwest area council, to appear for a "show cause" hearing at Cleveland tomorrow.

10 Day Strike by 1,000 Men Ended at Taylor Works

Approximately 1,000 employes of the Taylor Forge and Pipe works, 4735 W. 14th st., Cicero, on strike for 10 days in protest against a company instituted time check system, voted to return to work yesterday, a company spokesman said. The men, members of a union affiliated with the Confederated Unions of America, ordered the picket line withdrawn. The company is engaged in the manufacture of steel forgings for naval equipment.

REPUBLIC STEEL STRIKE CALLED OFF BY UNION

A strike involving some 2,000 workers in the South Chicago plant of the Republic Steel corporation was called off last night, two hours after the last two mills closed down.

The end of the walkout, which started Thursday when 13 employes quit as a result of a dispute over payment of operational wage schedules, was announced by Sam Taylor, field representative of the United Steel Workers [CIO], after a meeting with officials of the local union at the plant.

Plant executives ordered operations resumed with the 11 p. m. shift, but said the interruption would make it difficult to return to full production until today or perhaps tomorrow.

The South Chicago plant manufactures steel which is urgently needed for war planes, shells, and other military equipment, and the swift spread of the strike caused its officials to make frantic appeals to government agencies.

The 13 men involved in the original dispute were joined in the strike by other union members in sympathy with the grievance.

F. D. R. DEMANDS YEAR'S TRAINING FOR U. S. YOUTH

Evades Questions on the Nature of Service.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—President Roosevelt announced today that he would press for legislation, probably in the new congress next January, requiring every American youth to give one year of service to his government.

Mr. Roosevelt's evasion of questions inquiring whether he meant military training only during the year of "service" aroused comment among the reporters with whom he discussed the subject at his press conference. It was recalled that Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the President's wife, had always opposed military training in the CCC camps.

Asked if "universal training legislation" was on the program in the near future, the President said he hoped so; that he had been for it right along. The degree and kind of training is up to congress, he added.

Family Circumstances.

What we want, Mr. Roosevelt continued, is one year of service, out of the life of every boy between the ages of 18 and perhaps 23, dependent upon family circumstances, to his own government.

"Will it be confined to military training?" he was asked.

Would you call cooking or carpentry military training, the President parried with a smile. His questioners persisted, asking if it would be "essentially" military training.

In military camps, it takes you six months to know your right hand from the left, Mr. Roosevelt answered. There are an awful lot of boys, he continued, who have never been taught to brush their teeth and an awful lot who have never been taught to live with men in a camp.

Mothers Realizing It.

The percentage of people in this country who were turned down for physical reasons under the selective service system was appalling, the President said, and the mothers of the country were just beginning to realize it. There are lots of things that boys can do for their country, he added, with what his hearers regarded as evasion of the direct question concerning military training.

The President was emphatic in stating that National Guard supervision of the youth training program would not work. A veteran reporter recalled how sentiment swung against universal training after the last war was ended and asked if the President would "press for it now." The President said yes, this winter, probably not in the dying congress but in the incoming body which meets in January.

Opposition by Bishops.

In the speculation which followed the press conference, it was noted that the Catholic bishops of the United States at their annual meeting here yesterday adopted a resolution opposing "immediate passage" of legislation looking toward compulsory military training of all the male youth of the United States.

The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America also has gone on record in favor of postponing the question until after the war. The American Federation of Teachers' Commission on Educational Reconstruction [AFL] recently adopted a resolution opposing "hasty or ill-considered action" on the question.

Last August, the President at a press conference, proposed public study of a one year government training program, "not necessarily military," in the post-war period. He said at that time that youth between 17 and 22 should receive training of a type to teach them discipline and how to live in harmony with other persons. He indicated then that the program he had in mind was closer to that of the old civilian conservation corps than to direct military service.

"No, we cannot leave now! You know your daughter wants to make a good impression on that quarter back!"

Two Views on Future of Rationing

The Congress of Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO will continue its campaign for the return of most meats and processed foods to the rationing list, it was disclosed yesterday in a press conference by Mrs. Faye Stephenson, president of the congress, which will open its fourth annual conference on Monday in the Stevens hotel.

Mrs. Stephenson said the war food administration has not been guided by the principle that food rationing must be maintained until it is possible to know when the danger of food scarcity is over. She said she viewed with alarm the growing tendency to remove war time controls as the end of the war approaches.

Mrs. Stephenson said the removal of all war production board controls will endanger the whole stabilization program in the critical post-war period by permitting hoarding by manufacturers of scarce raw materials and creating serious additional pressures for price increases.

The Congress of Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO represents 6 million American homes and is made up of wives, sisters, daughters, and mothers of CIO members.

Relaxation of rationing controls after the defeat of Germany was predicted last night by Marion W. Isbell, office of price administration director for the Chicago metropolitan area, at a meeting in the Bismarck hotel of the city's 50 ration board chairmen.

Isbell said that the OPA's policy is to remove controls whenever the quantity of commodities makes such action feasible. Food rationing is expected to be affected favorably with the fall of Germany, if the enemy's defeat occurs soon enough. If it is delayed until next fall and a short crop intervenes, rationing will continue, he said.

He estimated the annual cost of the OPA's operation in Chicago at 65½ cents for every man, woman, and child, but added that the agency's prevention of runaway prices more than compensated for its cost.

"We now pay $1.50 for a dinner which might cost us $3 under uncontroled prices," he said. "The individual's saving under price control is a thousandfold in food alone, not to mention rent control and other savings."

ARGENTINA ACTS TO CALL ALL FOR TOTAL DEFENSE

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Nov. 17.—Vice President Peron today announced a new "organic law of the army" declaring it the duty of all Argentine citizens over 12 years old regardless of sex to prepare themselves for the defense of their country. Actual military service is reserved for boys and men and is divided into three periods, called pre-conscription, conscription, and post-conscription.

Pre-conscription of boys begins at age 12 and continues till age 20 when conscription begins for a maximum of two years. On discharge from the army, civilians will be subject to post-conscription duties until they are 50. Girls from age 12 first will be prepared for and later incorporated in various women's auxiliary services. Col. Peron disclosed also that Argentine aviation will be established as a separate and independent arm of the fighting services.

THIS IS NO TIME TO BOOST TAXES, SEN. TAFT WARNS

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Chairman Taft [R., O.] of the Republican senate steering committee warned today against further increases in the American taxpayer's burden.

Sen. Taft told newspaper reporters after a meeting of the committee that he personally favors the proposal to halt the automatic doubling of the present 1 per cent social security tax, scheduled for Jan. 1, altho the matter was not discussed at the committee meeting.

Chances of preventing the increase, which will fall upon wage earners and employers alike, were becoming slimmer, however, since the proposal to freeze the rate at its present level will have to be attached as an amendment to a revenue bill originating in the house. No revenue bill is at present contemplated by the house during the life of the present congress, which will expire the first of the year.

Sees No Need Now.

Taft said social security tax rates will eventually have to be increased, but that there is no necessity for the increase at present, and he thinks it would be unfortunate to add to the current high war taxes.

While the Republican steering committee was considering the legislative program for the rest of the session, a senate education subcommittee headed by Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.] began hearings on Pepper's resolution to place congress on record as recognizing anything less than 65 cents an hour as a substandard wage.

Emil Rieve, general president of the Textile Workers' union and a vice president of the CIO, told the subcommittee that 11 million American workers, 40 per cent of all the nation's workers, are earning less than 65 cents an hour.

Plea for "White Collars."

Rieve and other witnesses urged that the pay of these wage earners, many of them in the white collar class, be raised to 65 cents to prevent deflation of earnings after the war, when, Rieve anticipated, much overtime work will be eliminated.

Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] of the senate foreign relations committee said his committee will probably begin consideration of the British-American oil agreement in January. He was unable to predict when any concrete proposals regarding an international organization to maintain the peace will be presented to congress.

The senate expects to begin consideration of the 992 million dollar flood control bill on Tuesday. The house is expected to start work on the 1½ billion dollar post-war highway construction bill.

ATLANTIC CITY WELCOMES US, SAYS OPA BOSS

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Daniel P. Woolley, regional administrator of the office of price administration, said today that an OPA rent conference would be held in Atlantic City, N. J., "as scheduled" Nov. 26 despite the objections of Gerald R. Trimble, president of the Atlantic City Hotel association.

"A number of the outstanding hotels, all of them members of the Atlantic City Hotel association, have voluntarily informed us today that they would be happy to house the conference," Woolley said in a statement.

Confirming Trimble's statement that the OPA had canceled reservations at the Hotel Claridge, which Trimble manages, Woolley said there was "a definite rule that the OPA does not enter into any dealings with firms under investigation for violation of OPA regulations." The Claridge, he added, "was involved in an audit disclosing overcharges."

"No one but a magician could fail to have technical violations of the OPA rent regulations," was Trimble's comment.

THE POLITICAL OFFENSIVE.

Gen. Eisenhower's offensive against the Nazi west wall is proceeding efficiently, and, to date, successfully. If success continues, it can be the last great battle of the war in Europe. It is intended to be that.

The prospect of its ending the war would be better, however, if there were a political offensive against German national morale proceeding apace with the military drive; if the German people had been softened by realization of the inevitability of defeat and by allied assurances that it is unnecessary to continue resistance in order to escape national annihilation. Then military collapse in the west would be followed by a collapse of the German home front that would make further organized resistance impossible. The political offensive, however, has not materialized.

There have only been some American and British broadcasts to the Germans, seeking to draw a line in German understanding between the people of that country and their Nazi rulers, and stressing the strength of democracy against the weakness of fascism. That is good enough as far as it goes, but it is as if Gen. Hodges and Gen. Patton had left their Long Toms and dive bombers behind and were trying to breach the Siegfried line with rifles and mortars.

The failure to get the big guns firing in the political offensive possibly results from the failure of the leaders of the three principal allies to agree on a program for Germany. Their only official pronouncement has been the demand for unconditional surrender made nearly two years ago. Nothing officially has been promised the Germans as to what will happen to them when they surrender unconditionally and, meanwhile, fantastic proposals for revenge have been put forward, some of them by authorities high in the allied governments, which have permitted Goebbels to convince the German people that they may as well fight to the last man because they face annihilation in any event.

A sound political offensive would have told the German people at least what they need not fear if they surrender. Within the framework of an unconditional surrender they could still be told that while they will receive a hard peace, it will be a just one. They could be told that while the war criminals are to be punished, the ordinary German will be safe in his life and his family. The German army could be told that while war criminals within its ranks may expect to share the punishment reserved for the Gestapo, the soldier, of whatever rank, who has only fought for his country and observed the rules of war is not going to suffer.

The German nation could be told that while it must restore what it has stolen and repair what it has destroyed, within the limits of its capacity, it is not going to be destroyed economically merely for revenge. It could be told that while economic and political measures will be taken to make sure that Germany does not have the military or industrial capacity to start a third world war, Secretary Morgenthau's notion of transforming the German people into a nation of starving peasants is not to be adopted.

The Germans could be told that the crackpot idea of supervising their educational system to decontaminate their minds of Nazi ideas will not be carried out. If they have not learned from the bitter experience of two defeats that the dream of world conquest is a futile one, they certainly will not learn that lesson from alien schoolmasters.

German workers could be told that while the world they have attacked is not going to deny itself in order to raise the living standards that Hitler broke down, the Germans will be given the opportunity to raise those standards by their own effort in as orderly an economic system as can be devised for post-war Europe.

All of this could have been told to the German people without retracting the demand for unconditional surrender. It should have been told them, authoritatively, by Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin. The failure to conduct such a political offensive has made the military offensive unnecessarily difficult. Every further delay in getting it under way will be paid for with the lives of American soldiers.

WELCOME, STRANGER.

This department has never shared the late Arnold Bennett's desire to go into the hotel business and certainly nothing we have ever heard about it from the lips of Mr. Ernest Byfield was calculated to change our minds. Still running a hotel has its compensations these days, as an item from Atlantic City reveals.

It seems that a hundred of the OPA's more exalted functionaries from half a dozen eastern states had decided to hold a convention in Atlantic City. It seems, also, that the burocrats made their arrangements in somewhat sketchy fashion. They couldn't quite make up their minds when they were coming or which hotel they would honor with their presence. It seems, finally, that OPA had been picking on some of the hotel proprietors in Atlantic City, accusing them of violating war time regulations.

The same thing has happened to a lot of other people not in the hotel business, but these gentlemen have had to take it. They had no means of dropping their persecutors into a hole and asking them how they liked it. That peculiar advantage seems to go with the hotel business.

As a matter of fact, the proprietors gave the burocrats only the mildest of a number of treatments that might have been administered. The word went out to the gentlemen of OPA that nobody wanted their business. That was insulting but not fatal. The mind reels at contemplation of what might have happened if the convention had been made welcome.

In a hotel kitchen there are always gallons of soup that can be poured by accident, a plateful at a time, on unsuspecting heads. There are maids to gather up loose papers. There are valets to lose a pair of pants. There are barber shops in which some towels are hotter than others and some razors duller than others. There are elevators that can get stuck between floors. There are loud speakers that can go out of whack. There are switchboards that can give wrong numbers. There are house detectives. A hotel proprietor has an armamentarium the like of which cannot be found outside an otolaryngological clinic, and in the hotel there are no anaesthetics.

The more we think about it, the more evident it becomes that the gentlemen of the OPA got off lightly.

AUSTRALIA'S PART.

A Tribune editorial, the other day, called "Some Absent Allies," discussing the fact that Australia, among other allies, had not sent its forces with Gen. MacArthur's into the Philippines, served a most useful purpose. It provoked a response directly from David W. Bailey, director of the Australian information bureau, whose letter was printed in the Voice of the People. That was followed by a statement from Frederic Eggleston, Australian minister to the United States, defining what assignments Australia is to take on in the Pacific.

Both Mr. Bailey and Mr. Eggleston were compelled to agree with THE TRIBUNE'S thesis—that Australian ground forces are not now in action with Gen. MacArthur or anywhere else. Both did mention that at least one Australian warship was damaged during the landing at Leyte. Mr. Bailey said that "the present inactivity of the Australian army is no more than a very necessary breathing space." But that there is inactivity he did not dispute.

Both of the Australian spokesmen say that the job which is to be taken on by the Australians is that of cleaning up Jap garrisons bypassed by American offensives in the Southwest Pacific. The Rabaul area of New Britain and the Wewak area of New Guinea specifically were mentioned. Inasmuch as these territories are mandated to Australia, it was assumed that the job would be Australia's, even if it were not the policy of the British empire to get back its own. After all, it cannot always be expected that British agents can walk in after the American amphibious forces, as at Guadalcanal and Tarawa, and hoist the Union Jack with the job all done for them.

The declaration that Australia is to employ its forces to some purpose in the Pacific in future is welcome, even tho it apparently means that Australia is to work on the periphery while American soldiers, sailors, and marines carry the major offensives to the Japanese. We know now just how much we can expect. The statement of Acting Prime Minister Francis E. Forde to the Australian house of representatives that 95 per cent of the Australian volunteer defense corps is to be placed on a reserve basis because "allied victories have removed a Japanese threat to Australia" indicates that we are not to expect anything more than is at present in prospect.

THE BEST AIR LINER.

A spokesman for the Bristol Aeroplane company of England has said that his firm is going to turn out the best air liner the world knows anything about. It will be bigger, faster, and more luxurious than anything the American factories are planning. It will carry 50 passengers and two tons of mail at 250 miles an hour.

Of course, all designing and manufacturing skill is not concentrated in this country. Our transport planes and the engines which power them are well regarded, but no one can doubt that vast improvements will be made in the years to come, and nothing is more probable than that many contributions will come from foreign designers and inventors. They may even take our present leadership from us.

American manufacturers are willing to risk competition with the rest of the world on the international routes. We could wish that the other nations were equally prepared to take their chances. It almost looks as if the delegation representing Britain at the air conference here doesn't put any faith in Bristol's claims.

The British thesis has been that half the business between America and Britain should move in American ships and the other half in British, even tho most of the traffic will originate in this country. If the Bristol ship is going to be superior, the British government need have no worry about getting the business.

In the long run, no country will gain by giving artificial protection to inferior service. Each country wishes to have a well developed airplane building industry engaged in manufacturing commercial planes with a view to rapid expansion of production if war comes. The factories will then have their corps of trained designers and mechanics to place at their government's service in time of need. Obviously, however, the value of this nucleus will depend largely on its quality and protection from competition will almost inevitably lower quality. The absence of competition will discourage experiment and adaptation and encourage inefficient factory operation. A nation which wants big production of the best war planes when they are needed ought to invite the hardest kind of competition for its peace time airplane building industry.

Incidentally, the insistence of the various governments upon protecting their own airplane industries to meet the contingency of war is itself an evidence of a lack of faith by these governments in the current schemes for permanent peace. Any government which really believes that the problem was solved at Dumbarton Oaks will not regard the possession of an airplane industry as essential to its security.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

MR. PEPYS' QUIET LIFE.

18th Nov.—Went to the harvest home dinner at my senior club, and after the company had partaken of roast pig and other nourishing viands an entertainment in the form of a medicine show was announced. "But," said I, "having seen too many shows in my life of dalliance, I will go home now, while I am feeling cheerful." So I slipped away, but learned the next evening that this had been a mistake, for Matt Schulien, the wizard of Willow st., had been on the program, astonishing the intellectuals with sleight-of-hand tricks. He was introduced as the greatest magician in the world, but he declined the honor, saying he was merely the biggest, and I am told his weight is 325 pounds.

Am having no trouble about the cigaret famine, for I stopped smoking the things many years ago in favor of pipes. A cigaret on the lip while one is using both hands at a typewriter is not my idea of pleasure, for hot smoke gets into the eyes with tearful results. But my relatives at home say to me every day, "Try to find some cigarets," so I pop into drug stores and tobacco shops like a stricken addict, and come out empty handed. Only once have I found a few packages on sale, and immediately afterward my astonishment was increased by the sight of a great ball of fire in the skies, perhaps a portent of coffin nails for Hitler.

Now to hover over the broadcast of the Northwestern-Notre Dame football game, and to celebrate my birthday with customary nonchalance.

STARS BEYOND OURS.

We stood in darkness, in a world gone blind,
As bare, gaunt trees around a mountain slope
Betrayed no light on earth, and sight declined
A single gleam on which to found our hope.
And then our eyes turned upward, and beheld
The starry multitude ranged steep on steep
In moonless clarity that somehow swelled
The legion of their host, their myriad sweep.
These stars beyond our stars we only spy
When dark communion snuffs our candle's glow;
Dust of the infinite, powdered on high,
Deeper than deepness, past all we may know.
This be the comfort our midnight has sown;
Black tho the hour, we are never alone!

Memoirs of an Ageing Boy.

The boy grew older—very old. Ol' Hoss gone, kid circuses forgotten, business cares now occupied the mind. At 7 in the morning one swept out the family "Fair store." Then, swinging a big feather duster, Main st. dust was knocked from toys to plush albums, Bohemian vases to mustache cups, wax dolls to Swiss music boxes, or across the aisle to the book and news counter. In winter the hot air furnace required attention; in summer a daily struggle with the outdoor display of velocipedes, hobby horses, doll carriages, and tables of bargain glass and chinaware built up the budding biceps.

Morning chores done, there was leisure to sit behind the mechanical peanut roaster and almost under the upraised tomahawk of Chief Pain-in-the-Face, our Indian cigar sign. With that threat overhead, one hung onto his scalplock while gasping over the adventures of Danite Dan or Calamity Jane in Beadle's Dime and Half Dime Library. Also, now and then, there was a sly peep into the pink world of the Police News or Gazette.

A fascinating place, that store, with one or two drawbacks. The family bought too much china and glassware, and too many brass hanging lamps that needed too much cleaning. Flies love a shining mark. Even today, in chancing upon an antique shop or hobby show, one shudders and hurries by. Too many grimy, gritty, fly-specked ghosts haunt such places. Chiggers.

RONDEAU OF WINTER.

When winter comes, and gardens die
Beneath a stern and leaden sky,
When winds and waters tell the end
Of summer, old and treasured friend,
When birds to kinder regions fly,
How can our hearts but grieve and sigh—
As to the flowers we say good-by?
Back to our hearts our way we wend,
When winter comes.

And yet, why grieve? That will not I!
Tho golden gardens prostrate lie,
There wait crisp days, as keen winds send
The snow, a mystic spell to lend;
And Yuletide waits, with joys piled high,
When winter comes.

Thomas Curtis Clark.

Along the line of Mark Twain's remark about the weather, one might say, "Everybody talks about cigarets but nobody smokes any."

I was not depressed because of the landslide. I felt sorry and prayed: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they did."

A. P. writes: "My brother-in-law died in a veterans' hospital, and my sister says he has a number of bonus bonds left unsigned. She doesn't know what to do with them to get the money."

Have your sister write to the treasury department, division of bonds and loans, Washington 25, D. C., and ask for Form P. D. 1049. In her letter, she should explain that her husband is a deceased veteran. After she completes the form and mails in the bonds, she will receive a check.

H. W. H. asks: "If a man enlisted in the army in February, 1941, and was discharged in October, 1941, due to a physical disability, is he entitled to the mustering out pay?"

No. He must have been discharged on or after Dec. 7, 1941.

C. J. B. writes: "I am a veteran of World War I., but never applied for the adjusted compensation certificates. Can I apply now if I am qualified?"

No. The period of grace was extended by law several times, the last time to February, 1940, but after that date no more claims could be considered.

POOR EATING HABITS ENCOURAGE ILLNESS.

THE commonly accepted statement that the children of these United States are undernourished is wide of the mark. No survey, no matter how critical, has revealed any large group who are on the verge of starvation or anywhere near it.

It is true enough, many will be encountered who are suffering from bad eating habits. Foodstuffs are available but they are not employed. The neglect of breakfast is a national health sin. A cup of coffee and a roll cannot sustain a 10 year old until lunch time. What is required is a campaign of education to help parents understand that hit and run repasts may be far from nourishing. Furthermore, they are breeders of digestive disorders, including peptic ulcers.

When we realize the large number of individuals who possess unsound teeth, with signs of decay beginning in childhood, we may well be concerned. No one will deny that the state of health influences the resistance of the bony structures. But diet is not the only consideration. In other words, we cannot ascribe caries to this factor alone. Dentists have seen countless little ones with damaged "ivories," who are under complete and adequate nutritional supervision. Failure to absorb certain essentials, anemia, inflammation of the tonsils, or infection in some other important organ may be responsible. The sum total means reduced resistance of the dental equipment. In consequence, deterioration becomes evident.

We know full well that more sugar is used by our children than they can well utilize. Not infrequently, it constitutes a substitute for more substantial articles. Sweets are wholesome and a certain amount should be provided. Generous allotments of candy between meals, however, are unnecessary.

The thing we must keep in mind is a program which includes all the basic nutriments. We will thus be able to withstand disease, including the decay of teeth. A balanced regime has been worked out which is ideal not only for youngsters but adults as well. It is based upon long experience and, if followed with reasonable accuracy, will supply all of the elements. If it is not efficient, we must look to digestion and absorption, as some failure on the part of the dissolving apparatus may defeat even a model schedule.

In every 24 hours, we will need to include a pint of milk for adults [a quart for children]; enough meat, eggs, or fish to take care of growth and replace worn out muscle cells; at least two varieties of fresh vegetables or one plus potato; and a serving of fruit. Sometimes extra vitamin D will be demanded and a good grade of cod liver oil, in the absense of generous doses of sunshine, will suffice. Edibles must not only be well prepared but eaten. The "picky" tot who consumes only a quarter of his standard allowance may be expected to develop trouble. Hunger is a great energizer of appetite and plenty of outdoor play will bring Johnny into the house as voracious as a bear.

But let's not blame the menus for some infection or failure on the part of a vital organ. The whole matter of food must be considered but it is not the only criterion of good health.

TUBERCLE BACILLI.

X. W. M. writes: Is the tubercle microbe which infects humans the same as that which attacks cattle and poultry?

REPLY.

Cattle are afflicted with the bovine type; fowls, with the avian. Either of these may be communicated to human beings.

COLD REPELLER.

Mrs. A. B. writes: Is there any vitamin that will help to ward off repeated colds?

REPLY.

All have been recommended but none has been proved to be effective. A balanced menu and plenty of rest are our best safeguards.

DEPENDS ON AMOUNT.

P. S. writes: How long does it take to cure lead poisoning?

REPLY.

Under proper treatment, the acute symptoms should disappear within a few days. Much will depend upon the length of exposure.

TABES.

T. H. writes: What are the symptoms of locomotor ataxia?

REPLY.

Darting twinges involving almost any part of the body; so-called girdle pains; later, unsteadiness while standing or walking are some of the manifestations.

War Time Waiting Room.

The sit-up train to New York is about to leave, and the battered old La Salle street station, its outer walls black with the soot of years, its inner walls stretching from the force of the war time crowds always within it, is teeming. At every door the hurried and the harassed tumble out of cabs, snatch their luggage, and race for the steps leading to the train platform.

The hatless, wild-eyed girl in slacks and a shabby coat emits a low moan as she gets as far as the ninth step with her three bags and a paper sack that looks as tho it contains sandwiches. A sailor and a soldier, each with a barracks bag slung on his back, pause beside her. "Come on, kid," the sailor says, grabbing for one of her bags. "Sure," says the soldier, and he takes another.

Many of the boys in uniform on the platform are here merely in transit, like wild geese. You know because they are alone or with a buddy. The others have families or girls or wives, who stare at them with hungry, proud eyes and cling and cling as the moment of train time nears. The tiny, withered, white haired woman runs a last caressing hand over the sleeve of the young private, the marine lieutenant gives his wife a last lingering kiss, and the apple-cheeked sailor with the ambling stride of the farm boy says to the man who seems to be his father, "Yeah . . . yeah . . . sure, I'll write."

Mingling with them, but somehow remote and alien in a world dedicated to the departure of youth, are the businessmen with brief cases, the stiff-faced lady with orchids who is telling the gateman what she thinks of railroad tickets that cause her to miss her train, and the priest striding up and down with book in hand. They, like the murals of America, will be there always, and as the crowd gets heavier but, strangely, never impatient, they are lost in it. Then you notice suddenly that only two persons in the great throng are smoking, a woman with a cigaret, a man with a cigar.

Too soon the gates are open, the crowd is pouring thru and on its way, the gateman is shouting "All aboard" again and again, and again and again he has to open the gate so a service man can get thru. Apparently every laggard makes the train, for none comes back. Then there is nothing left but the mothers, the wives, and the sweethearts who stand looking thru the dividing panes of glass long after he has passed from sight. He can't see them, nor they him, but they wait until they get a final, vanishing point perspective of the train that is carrying him away.

It is at this point as you, too, gaze abstractedly down the now empty track that a smiling, plump sergeant, his chest covered with starred service ribbons, the medallion of the 20th air force [the B-29 group] on his shoulder, pauses before you. In his hand is that silly toy known as a worry bird, the slogan of which is "Let me worry for you." "Touch this," the sergeant grins, "and it'll be all right."

And now, for the first time in two hours, the vast station seems quiet. No trains are coming in. No trains are going out. In the waiting room proper, a tag on him, a box of toys beside him, sits a Junior Commando, his eyes riveted worshipfully on a young R. A. F. flyer on the next bench. Nearby a Negro M. P. walks up and down, his face dreamy, his thoughts far away. In the service men's lounge a young Chinese soldier sits writing letters in pencil, and a sailor, both legs in steel braces, sleeps on a couch. In the women's lounge a WAC, her sleeves rolled up, her feet on a chair, smiles as she reads a comic book, and nearby two long benches are full of mothers and babies. The cry of one baby is the only sound breaking the silence, but it quiets as a sailor, venturing into what hitherto was no-man's-land, dangles it aloft. While its young mother, her red slacks smudged, tries to put wet diapers and eight milk bottles into a duffel bag too small for them.

For 10 minutes the station was somnolent, inert, waiting. Then, suddenly, the cabs began to unload downstairs, the crowds to rush upstairs, the train on the track to work up steam, and another race was on.

MODERATE DENMARK.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Viewing "Germany's future," when its day of earthly judgment comes around, THE TRIBUNE says, "Denmark can probably be persuaded to accept a change in her southern frontier which would give her additional territory in Schleswig-Holstein and perhaps restore the frontier as it stood some 80 years ago, before Bismarck altered it, to Prussia's advantage, by war."

At the peace conference following the former World war some such offer was intimated but was declined. Denmark didn't want to retrieve a lot of largely German minded subjects, but would gladly see its boundary line set far enough south to include territory where an impartial plebiscite proved the majority of the people had remained pro-Danish. And so it came to pass, resulting in comparatively little Irredentist friction and no lack of mutual respect until Hitler's war machine "needed" and occupied Denmark.

But had other German neighbors followed the sober Danish example at Versailles, the one main "excuse" for aggression would have been precluded.

THEFT FROM SERVICE MAIL.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—I am the wife of a soldier, Pvt. Carter Ray Green, who has been fighting in France for a year. It gladdened his heart to be able to send his wife a package for Christmas. He sent 18 articles in the package. Out of the 18 sent and inspected and passed, I received two, one a pair of field glasses without the original lens, and a few foreign coins. Sixteen articles precious to him and to me were not sent to me. I only hope wherever they are they bring the happiness they were meant to bring me.

MRS. CARTER GREEN.

A PROFITABLE RECEIVERSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—As one of the poor stockholders of the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin Railroad company I hope the trainmen win their raise.

For years Sprague and Fallon have taken the cream of the profits and the poor investors are left out. Why doesn't the government clean up this mess? We all know this interurban service pays big profits, but who gets them?

POOR WIDOW.

ELECTION BET.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—As you journey around Chicago you see a lot of campaign posters still glued to the walls of buildings, fences, etc. They certainly don't add to the appearance of Chicago Beautiful. Before each election there should be a gentleman's agreement between the parties. The members of the losing party should scrape off the posters.

JONAS PERLBERG.

THE TRIBUNE SURVIVES.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—From my knowledge of THE TRIBUNE'S history, I do not recollect that it curled up and died after any previous election, and it will probably continue to take a stand and express its opinions in many more to come. It's a great newspaper.

W. J. CAMPHAUSEN.

SOME UNEXPECTED FOLLOWERS.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—I'm surprised to know Sidney Hillman and Mr. Browder allow their clan to read the World's Greatest Newspaper.

More power to THE TRIBUNE; 22,500,000 intelligent people are back of you.

M. M.

GENEROUS VICTOR.

Racine, Wis., Nov. 14.—I would like to congratulate THE TRIBUNE for proving to the American people that even in trying times such as now prevail, freedom of the press still prevails. Altho I disagree entirely with your political point of view, you have nevertheless done much good toward keeping freedom of the press a national privilege. Some people get very angry when they see those cartoons in THE TRIBUNE knocking Roosevelt, but they forget that in this great country we are allowed to think what we please and put our thoughts in print.

I never miss a copy of THE TRIBUNE for the very reason that I am a Democrat and I want to get the Republicans' point of view also. The election is over and the better man won. Coöperate with him and victory will be ours sooner. I personally believe that Roosevelt is the greatest President this country has had since Abe Lincoln. I also believe that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is proving thruout the world that the American way works.

RUSSELL ZUNKE.

GOVERNMENT AND ADMINISTRATION.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Joseph F. C. Przybysz wants a good reason why severe punitive measures and perpetual reprisals should not become immediately instituted against THE TRIBUNE for the alleged "vicious and un-American campaign" waged against our government during the recent Presidential election.

Abraham Lincoln said, "There is an important sense in which the government is distinct from the administration. One is perpetual; the other temporary and changeable. A man may be loyal to his government and yet oppose the peculiar principles and methods of the administration."

ERWIN BAUMBUCK.

A QUESTION.

Grayslake, Ill., Nov. 9.—Your post-election editorial says, "Resources on hand can be dissipated foolishly, but the resources of the future cannot be given away." This is a cheering note that should be held up. But is it the whole story? Is not the huge debt a liability on the future?

A. T. M.

SPEAKING OF TAX RELIEF.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—I see that Ald. Cohen wants to reduce the cigaret license fee. Where has he been the last few years? How about reducing the vehicle tax for "A" card motorists? We have been taking a trimming longer than the cigaret vendors.

JAMES BLAIR.

WHAT THEY VOTED FOR.

Elgin, Ill., Nov. 14.—I would advise the men and women not to get excited about the cigaret shortage. It is just another Roosevelt emergency and 28 million people seem to want that.

CIO EXECUTIVES SOLIDLY BEHIND PAC EXTENSION

Hillman Is Redesignated National Chairman.

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.

The executive board of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, after hearing reports from CIO political action committee officers and staffmen yesterday, voted unanimously to continue and "broaden" CIO-PAC activities and redesignated Sidney Hillman, president of the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers' union, as its chairman.

Several hundred CIO-PAC constituents packed the meeting, held for three hours yesterday morning in the Stevens hotel, where the CIO executive board is preparing its report for the CIO convention which opens there Monday.

The board's decision to continue PAC was announced by Philip Murray, CIO president who, with Hillman, held a press conference following the secret meeting yesterday. The decision will be presented to the convention in the form of a resolution for the delegates' action.

Denies Forced Contributions.

Murray explained that many of the paid employes of national CIO-PAC will be dropped, and for the present emphasis would be placed on local and state PAC activities.

Flush with CIO claims of credit for the reelection of President Roosevelt and the election of 110 congressmen, Hillman emphatically denied that any CIO member had been forced to contribute to the CIO-PAC slush fund.

"In fact, we found it did not take a huge amount of money to conduct the campaign," Hillman stated. "Our success was due to the voluntary aid given by CIO members and our friends."

Frozen Fund to Be "Thawed."

Murray explained that the $250,000 collected prior to the campaign and which was frozen under the provision of the Smith-Connally law, would be "thawed" and used to carry on the new CIO-PAC activities. He vowed there were "no mandatory contributions in the past and there will be none in the future."

"We have charted our course as a thoroly independent movement not allied with any political party," Murray continued. "We have not formed a third party. CIO-PAC will seek the election of candidates to public office who are fair and who are supposed to be the friends of the common people, regardless of party. As in the last campaign, any group—the farmer, the church or business—that wishes to participate with CIO-PAC will be welcome."

Instill Vote Responsibility.

Hillman announced that CIO-PAC would have its first meeting to decide methods of operation after the convention. The national citizens political action committee, formed as an adjunct to CIO-PAC, limited to the CIO membership, will hold a meeting in Chicago on Nov. 25, Hillman said, to decide whether it would continue its existence.

Hillman labeled the success of CIO-PAC in reelecting President Roosevelt as a "definite defeat for isolationists and Fascists."

"But the greatest achievement," Hillman continued, "was that we were able to instill into the people their civic responsibility to vote, as the large registration and vote proved. Obviously we will expand and attempt to bring this civic duty to more people."

The CIO's legislative program will be determined at the convention, and it will then be the duty of the national CIO "to get as much of it passed by congress as is possible," Murray said.

OPA DIRECTORS TOLD OF PRICE, RENT VIOLATIONS

Complaints about excessive food, clothing, and liquor prices, rent violations, and lack of Negro representation on local rationing boards were made to office of price administration officials at a round table conference yesterday in the Park Way Community center, 5120 South Park way.

Some 150 civic and women's club representatives attended the conference at the invitation of the Chicago Urban league. Rae E. Walters, OPA regional administrator; Marion W. Isbell, metropolitan area director, and other officials were present.

John Sengstack, chairman of ration board 40-2, who was listed on the program as leader of a discussion on "Your community war price and rationing boards," did not appear.

Isbell pleaded for tolerance of the OPA's difficulties and promised to deal promptly with any complaints of rudeness on the part of ration board employes.

U.S. Rests $7,350,000 Case Alleging Timber Fraud

The government yesterday concluded its evidence before Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw in the mail fraud retrial of one present and four former officials of Resources Corporation International. The defendants are accused of defrauding hundreds of investors of $7,350,000 in sale of stock in a Mexican timber development.

DIES DEMANDS HOUSE KEEP FILE ON ALIEN PROBES

Sees Future Value to Government.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—A proposal for permanent and active maintenance of the voluminous files of the house committee on un-American activities was put forward today by Chairman Dies [D., Tex.].

The committee expires next Jan. 3 when the next congress meets. So also do the terms of Dies and Representatives Starnes [D., Ala.], Costello [D., Cal.], and Busbey [R., Ill.], present committee members.

The fate of the vast amount of documentary evidence gathered by the committee in its 6½ years of investigation into subversive activities in America, has interested New Dealers who have suggested turning the files over to the executive branch of the government.

Wants Them Safeguarded.

Opposing this move vigorously, Dies addressed a letter to all members of the house suggesting that action be taken by the present congress before the Christmas recess to safeguard the files and "keep their contents accessible to committees and individual members of congress."

"Let me emphasize," he wrote, "that these files are original documents which can never be replaced and which pertain to all forms of subversive activity, Nazi, Fascist, and Communist."

Rep. Dies suggested the files should be maintained by one of the standing committees, so they would be available to both congress and government agencies.

The files in question, Dies said, are contained in hundreds of file cabinets in Washington, New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles. They were obtained principally by congressional subpena of documents in the possession of subversive organizations and have been indexed and coördinated.

"The files have been one of the principal sources of information on subversive activities for the various intelligence units of the government during the last three years," wrote Dies.

Used by U. S. Investigators.

"In the last two years, 7,511 agents from military intelligence, naval intelligence, federal bureau of investigation, state department, civil service, and secret service have called at the committee's Washington office for information."

The files contain detailed information on the communistic records of hundreds of persons in the government employ, a fact which is believed to have prompted the anxiety of certain departments in the executive branch to obtain possession of the data.

CIO UNION OFFICIAL GOES TO TRIAL AGAIN ON ASSAULT CHARGE

After eight starts since last July, one of which resulted in a hung jury, the trial on assault and battery charges of Matt Kearns, international vice president of the Transport Workers of America [CIO], got under way yesterday before Municipal Judge Edward P. Luczak.

Kearns is accused by Harold A. Cunningham, trustee of the Chicago Motor Coach Employes' fraternity, an independent union, of assaulting him last July 16 at La Salle and Quincy sts.

Kearns first appeared before Judge Jay Schiller yesterday. His attorney, Ben Meyers, requested a change of venue. Meyers named 27 judges who he said were not qualified to hear the case because of prejudice. This left a selection of eight Municipal judges.

Most of yesterday's hearing was devoted to selection of a jury. Kearns, if convicted, faces a fine of from $3 to $100.

ILLINOIS PLANS NEW ACTION TO REGAIN CONVICT

Stateville prison officials will leave for Indianapolis, Ind., next week to procure a governor's warrant for the arrest of William Applei, alias Holtzapple, a resident of that state who recently was released from the Illinois prison on a writ of habeas corpus, Warden Joseph E. Regan said yesterday. Applei's release from prison later was overruled by the Illinois Supreme court. Warden Ragen has been charged with contempt of court by Circuit Judge Ira C. Tilton of Valparaiso, Ind., because Regan ordered Applei's arrest in Whiting, Ind. A few days earlier Judge Tilton had freed Applei on the ground that there were no criminal charges pending in Indiana against him.

KING'S KITTENS MAY BECOME F. D. R.'S CATS!

Gift to White House Tied Up in Protocol.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 [Special].—A cat may look on a king, it's said, but if a couple of jolly British kittens are to look at President Roosevelt, the beastly matter of protocol is involved.

Two unwanted kittens were born in their Brittanic majesties' Buckingham palace and the domestic department of that establishment sought to find them another comfortable home. John Walters of a London newspaper cabled John Sampson, Walters' successor pro tem as New York correspondent of that paper:

"We have two kittens born in Buckingham palace seeking adoption. Would White House like one?"

Double the Offer.

Sampson got in touch with the White House 31 minutes later, but a second cable soon came from Walters doubling the offer. It read: "Will White House take our royal kittens? Domestic department of Buckingham palace asks Dumb Friends league find home for them."

Meanwhile Sampson was butting his head against protocol. First he talked with a White House secretary who said, "I'll speak to Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary, Miss Melvina Thompson."

Miss Thompson spoke to Mrs. Roosevelt, who suggested that it was a matter for the President's own staff to handle.

Finally, one of the President's own secretaries, Thomas Blake, informed Sampson:

"You see, it's a question of protocol. If this offer originated with their majesties then it's something that must be handled thru the state department."

Just Royal Kittens.

Sampson said that all he knew was that the offer came from the domestic department of the palace, that the cables didn't state the kind of kittens, whether Persian, Angora, Siamese or what have you, but just called them "royal."

"I'm afraid it's a question of protocol," concluded Blake.

Tonight, as a result, the state department was taking the matter up with the embassy in London, the White House informed Sampson.

The American Feline society meantime, is taking up the matter. The society said there are enough cats in this country needing adoption but its president, Robert Kendell, said he thought this was a worthy cause and he was willing to sponsor the kittens' trip to America.

Kendall said he would telegraph the President's daughter, Mrs. Anna Boettiger in Seattle, asking her to use her influence with Mr. Roosevelt.

As for the kittens themselves, the usual reliable sources said that all they hoped for is a saucer of milk.

FEDERAL JUDGE SHAW ADMITS DAUGHTER TO BAR OF U. S. COURTS

Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw yesterday admitted his daughter, Miss Mary Margaret Shaw, an attorney, to practice in the federal courts. Miss Shaw, 29, a graduate of the University of Chicago law school, was admitted to the bar in 1939. She served with the federal security agency in Washington, D. C., and in 1943 went to England as a staff assistant for the American Red Cross until last October. Miss Shaw lives at 1337 Touhy av.

TOLD TO MAKE PRISONER RUN, SAYS SERGEANT

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 17 [Special].—Sgt. Odus L. West, on trial for alleged mistreatment of soldier prisoners he was assigned to guard, told a court martial today that he was carrying out orders of his commanding officer when he had a soldier run along a road in front of his jeep.

Prosecution witnesses had testified that West, a former deputy sheriff, pursued Pvt. John Palmer in a jeep which he drove at 12 miles an hour and that the prisoner was forced to run to the point of exhaustion to avoid being run down.

West said his commanding officer had instructed that the prisoner be "double timed" whenever he was taken anywhere. On the occasion cited, West related, he had to take the prisoner to a near-by supply house to get bedding, clothes, and other supplies. Since there was no one else to help with the job, he said, he told the prisoner to run in front of the jeep while he followed in the vehicle with the supplies. He said the jeep wasn't traveling more than five miles an hour.

FIGHT FORESEEN ON NAMING OF PORTER TO FCC

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—A senate fight over President Roosevelt's nomination of Paul A. Porter, Democratic party publicity chief, as a member of the federal communications commission appeared imminent tonight. Porter was nominated to succeed Chairman James L. Fly, who recently resigned.

Sen. Bushfield [R., S. D.] said in an interview that he would oppose Porter's nomination if it is approved by the senate interstate commerce committee, to which it has been referred.

"If radio is to survive on a basis of justice and equality," Bushfield said, "it can't be tied to a political party as closely as these circumstances suggest. Otherwise it would become merely a party channel of communications."

Investigation of Qualifications.

Sen. Butler [R., Neb.] called for a thoro investigation of Porter's qualifications for the jöb to which the Democratic official has been named. Butler said the nomination did not encourage "the harmony program we all really want until the war is won."

Sen. Gurney [R., S. D.], a member of the interstate commerce committee, said he did not know Porter and that he hoped the appointee would be called before the committee to testify.

Sen. Austin [R., Vt.], also a member of the committee which will consider Porter's nomination, declined to comment on the nomination but said all FCC appointments should be investigated thoroly to make sure the commission is staffed with "the highest-class men."

Named Acting Chairman.

Porter, 40, altho named to fill the vacancy caused by Fly's resignation, was not designated as chairman. Ewell K. Jett, an FCC member, was designated acting chairman by the President yesterday, but it was assumed in government quarters that Porter would be given the job upon his confirmation by the senate.

Porter is a former newspaper man and lawyer who has held several government posts, including chief of the rent control division of the office of price administration, associate war food administrator, and associate director of the office of economic stabilization.

Suspended River Forest Officer Held for Jury

Police Magistrate Marvin Capouch of Cicero yesterday ordered Walter Gray, suspended acting desk sergeant of the River Forest police, held to the grand jury on three charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. Bond was set at $10,000 on each charge. Gray was arrested Oct. 13 after shooting up a tavern at 6149 Ogden av. during a drinking spree.

FRIEND, CAR, $600 MISSING.

John J. Reynolds, sales manager of the Inland Rubber corporation, reported to police yesterday that a friend he had aided and given a job with the company had disappeared and was believed to have taken his car and $600 belonging to the company.

DAD'S COMING! PATRICIA GAINS; GETS PENICILLIN

Patricia Attaway, 7, was better yesterday for the second successive day in St. Charles hospital, Aurora, where she is suffering from the usually fatal blood disease, lymphatic leukemia. Two factors—news that her father, a navy Seabee, is flying home from the South Pacific to see her and the administration of a new series of 200,000 units of penicillin—were deemed responsible.

Red Cross officials in Aurora, who located the father, Chief Petty Officer M. F. Attaway, and arranged for his leave, have not been notified of the time of his arrival. The family home is at 610 Cleveland st., Aurora.

Despite the fact that medical science never has found a cure for the disease, which destroys red corpuscles in the blood, the little girl's mother still has faith that the child will recover. Physicians, who know the history of the disease, do not give encouragement. Several blood transfusions have been given.

2 MASKED MEN SLUG CASHIER: FLEE WITH $8,643

Two masked robbers yesterday fled with $8,643 after assaulting Edward M. Ambrose, 46, cashier in a currency exchange at 3520 North av., Stone Park. The men, believed to have been Negroes, broke into the exchange after Ambrose, who lives at 5828 Madison st., arrived at 8:30 a. m. One of the men struck him on the head with a revolver. He stalled the robbers for 45 minutes, on the pretext he had to wait for a time lock to open. He finally was forced to open the safe and the men fled with the money and two revolvers.

CHURCH PARLEY URGES NEW CITY AND FARM UNITY

Conferences Between 2 Groups Advocated.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Understanding and tolerance between farmer and worker were urged in reports adopted at the close yesterday of the second annual national town and country convocation held in First Methodist church, Elgin. The report was prepared by the commission on urban and rural relations, which also asked conferences between those groups on their respective problems.

Jim Crowism and all segregation of minority groups were condemned in another report as un-Christian because they deny "the right of freedom of action and expression which is guaranteed to every member of the family of God." This report was offered by the commission on the rural church and minority groups.

Asked to Aid Adjustments.

The church was asked to aid Negroes in their new adjustments to defense areas and to seek better understanding between white and Negro people thru wholesome association, and urge that all legal restrictions not imposed on other citizens, such as Jim Crow laws, should be removed. The church was urged to help give Japanese Americans an opportunity "to choose their place of residence like all American citizens." The report also advocated that "their property be restored to them and that local churches welcome them into Christian fellowship."

The report asked the church to "seek to create good will between Jews and Christians."

Small Community Needs Cited.

Other commission reports pointed out the needs of small communities in meeting changes after the war and in receiving returning service men and women. Caution was urged in the matter of helping service personnel obtain land issued by the federal department of agriculture because "we must guard against too many people going back to the land both because of the lack of sufficient good land available and because the best equipped for agricultural life should man the farms from now on."

Service to Pay Tribute to Billy Sunday Pianist

B. D. Ackley, former piano accompanist for Dr. William A. [Billy] Sunday revivals, will be honored tomorrow night in Moody Memorial church, Clark st. and North av. Dr. Homer Rodeheaver, tomorrow's revival song leader, and Ruth Rodeheaver Thomas, will feature songs composed by Mr. Ackley for the service, and Dr. H. A. Ironside, pastor of Moody church, will deliver a sermon in which tribute to the pianist will be given.

BABY SMOTHERS IN HIS CRIB.

Bernard Paul Jr., 7 weeks old, son of an army captain stationed at Camp Lee, Va., was found dead yesterday in his home at 2120 Concord pl., apparently smothered in his crib.

Religious News Notes

Dr. Harry S. Myers' 25th annual report for the United Stewardship council discloses that in 1943 Protestant congregations in the United States and Canada gave for all purposes $441,868,327. This is the fourth consecutive year of gain and the largest total since 1931. "The sum," he said, "as reported by 23 faiths, shows an increase of 21.7 per cent for total benevolences, and 10.4 per cent for congregational expenses over the previous year." . . . First Congregational church, Union square, will begin the first of nine educational forums tomorrow night. Count Byron de Prorok will give a motion picture lecture on "The French Underground" with personal reminiscences of Gen. CROWELL WILL LEAVES FORTUNE TO CHURCH WORK

Christian works and educational projects were bequeathed the bulk of the estimated $3,100,000 estate of the late Henry P. Crowell, civic and religious leader who died Oct. 23 at the age of 89, in a will filed yesterday in Probate court by Attys. Willis D. Nance, Edwin L. Brown Jr., and W. Ayers Keplinger.

Crowell was a former president and honorary chairman of the board of the Quaker Oats company, and had served as president of the board of trustees of the Moody Bible institute, and as a director of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company. Ten years ago he gave $100,000 to trustees of the Fourth Presbyterian church.

Crowell's son, Henry C. Crowell, 1133 Sheridan rd., Winnetka, was left the late philanthropist's home at 770 Humboldt av., in the suburb, and contents of a home in Augusta, Ga., were left to the son and a daughter, Mrs. Annie Crowell Herrick of Cleveland, O. The will also set up six trust funds of $25,000 each for Crowell's grandchildren. The remainder of the estate will enhance a trust fund, created in 1927 as a memorial to Crowell's wife, Susan Coleman Crowell, to "further certain other Christian works and educational projects."

DEAN OF SENATE, 'COTTON ED,' DIES AT PLANTATION

Lynchburg, S. C., Nov. 17 [Special].—Sen. E. D. [Cotton Ed] Smith, 80, dean of the United States senate, died today of coronary thrombosis at his plantation home, Tanglewood, near here. He was stricken as he was preparing for a trip to near-by Florence.

Sen. E. D. Smith.

Smith had served 35 years in the senate, longer than any other member in history. Despite his age, he was a candidate last summer for a seventh term of six years, but was defeated for renomination by Gov. Olin D. Johnston, who was elected on Nov. 7.

The senator was a chunky, heavy set man with a gray mustache. He was a vigorous speaker and a colorful figure in Washington and his home state for many years.

Born to Dixie Tradition.

He was born to the traditions of the old south on his father's big plantation near here.

His father was a Methodist minister, his two brothers became ministers, and his two sisters married ministers, which meant, Smith often remarked, "that I had to do the cussing for the whole family."

Cotton gave Smith his start in politics and his nickname of Cotton Ed. He had served two terms in the state legislature when, in 1905, he became an organizer for the Southern Cotton association, formed to raise the price of the crop.

Many times in his early campaigns Smith would come riding into towns where he was to speak, sitting astride a bale of cotton in a wagon drawn by mules.

He was author of the cotton standards act, advocate of the government cotton loan, and the saddest mourner when the price of the staple went down.

In addition to his backing of cotton, Smith's entire political career was based on a platform of three planks, which he emphasized at every opportunity. They were white supremacy, states rights, and a tariff for revenue only.

Broke with New Deal.

Thruout his life Smith was stanch in his party regularity, but he turned against the New Deal and was one of its bitterest opponents.

Smith was married twice, to Mattie Moorer in 1902, and to Annie Farley in 1906. The only son of his first marriage, Marcus, was killed in his youth in a hunting accident. His second wife and their four children survive him. The latter are Mrs. Pierce of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Alfred Lawton of Lynchburg, Ellison Durant Smith Jr. of Washington, and Farley Smith of Lynchburg.

Funeral services will be held at Tanglewood on Sunday at 3:30 p. m. Burial will be in the family plot in the churchyard of St. Luke's Methodist church.

SUN AND MOON IN WRONG SPOT; RESULT—DIVORCE

When an astrologer told Mrs. Grace Coe Hale, 40, of College Park, Md., that the "sun and moon should be in their trine aspects to the position of the luminaries," she wrote her husband and told him goodby.

Yesterday before Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court, the husband, Charles V. Hale, 45, of 841 Windsor av., exhibited two charts she sent him to prove they were mismated. Marked "his" and "hers" respectively, the charts were sprinkled with mystic signs and symbols which suggested that the marriage of the Hales would end in "matrimonial strife."

Judge Feinberg granted a divorce on a charge of desertion when Hale, a former New Jersey economics professor, said she left him in June, 1940. Two daughters, Jean, 13, and Grace, 16, were placed in custody of Mrs. Hale. Hale, who is preparing school materials for a Chicago publishing firm, agreed to pay $10 a week for support of the children.

Two Army Officers' Weddings in Far-Off Spots Are of Interest

BY JUDITH CASS.

NEWS of the marriages of two young Highland Park army officers at far-away points is of interest today. In a quiet ceremony at 7 p. m. Thursday in All Saints' Episcopal church in Beverly Hills, Cal., Capt. James T. Aubrey Jr., of the air forces, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey of Highland Park, claimed as his bride Miss Phyllis St. Felix Thaxter, daughter of Judge and Mrs. St. Felix Thaxter of Portland, Me. A reception followed in the Santa Monica home of Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan.

Young Mrs. Aubrey, who is remembered here for her stage portrayal of Claudia, will continue her career in motion pictures. Capt. Aubrey, who has three younger brothers in service, has been stationed in Alaska.

When Capt. William M. Fischer, son of the Theodore Fischers of Highland Park, returns from duty overseas, he will bring with him an Irish bride. She is the former Eileen Ann Keaney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Keaney of Belfast, Ireland. Their marriage took place Nov. 10 in Belfast.

Capt. Fischer, who has been overseas for 16 months, was graduated from the University of Illinois and received his commission in June, 1942. His sister, Mrs. William B. Martin, and her husband now are in Highland Park awaiting his reassignment, having come from Pine Bluff, Ark., when his duties as a civilian flight instructor were completed there. The Fischers have another son, Kirk.

Paris Answers G. I. Shoppers' Gift Problems

BY ANNE BRUYERE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 17.—G. I. Joes and WACs are rushing about town with arms full of brightly wrapped packages. They are doing last minute Christmas shopping as they would like the folks back home to receive their gifts on time. Exotic perfumes, hand embroidered scarf and glove sets, and beautifully dressed French dolls head their shopping lists.

Boys on leave, Red Cross nurses, officers on missions, and WACs all line up to buy perfume. Ground crews of the bomb groups and the boys stuck out in the country don't get leave so they send army nurses with long lists of gifts to buy in Paris.

Nurse Julia Wall Gould, a director of the Aero club of the 322d bomb group, blithely ordered 40 large bottles of Chanel's No. 5 perfume for blondes and 30 bottles of Chanel's "Gardenia" for brunettes. Then she went out looking for negligees and pink satin nightgowns.

Carefully, she placed her beribboned and gaily wrapped packages in a corner of her "taxi"—a bright red push cart driven by two grinning Parisian cyclists. Tall, streamlined, and freckle-faced, Miss Gould said, laughingly:

"Our boys have thought up a great idea. Instead of the traditional Christmas stocking, they are buying wooden shoes to put their gifts in, just like the French do.

"At our Aero club there is a big shopping service book and the boys write down what they want and how much they want to pay. Most of them order big bottles of the best perfumes. Two of the officers thought fur lined dressing gowns would be just the thing for their wives. One captain chose a pink satin nightie.

"Then I have lists of toys to buy for children. Most of our men already have bought miniatures of the village we are stationed in, complete with steepled church, tiny farm houses, animals, and milkmaids. They also want to send picture books and dolls. I must find everything this afternoon as a car will be waiting for me in front of the express company office to take me back to camp tonight."

When G. I. Joe, with his $50 a month salary buys a large bottle of perfume and sends home $20, he doesn't have much left to buy anything else. After mother, sister, and the girl friend have been taken care of, there is just enough money to buy Dad an artificial silk necktie or the kid brother a pair of "Fibrane" socks. No self-respecting GI would send home presents like that so he parts with his treasures: To father goes a dagger in an iron scabbard which he took off a German he shot; to brother is sent a revolver belonging to an enemy officer, or a Nazi iron cross or steel helmet.

WACs, who don't have such precious souvenirs, buy fur lined slippers coming up to the ankles for their dads. For brothers who smoke there are huge, hand carved French pipes or monogrammed tobacco pouches provided with a self-rolling apparatus. Most WACs do their own Christmas shopping. They choose hand made lace blouses, embroidered sweaters with gloves and scarf to match, huge leather bags with short umbrellas attached to one end and, of course, beautiful French dolls for their little sisters.

One WAC from Chicago, Sgt. Lucille Verzano, 8843 S. Wallace st., likes to browse in antique shops. She has bought Louis XIV powder boxes and candlesticks as Christmas presents.

First Sgt. Harry Carlson of 954 N. Keystone av., Chicago, already had sent home perfume. He couldn't think of anything else so he went over to the Allied Enlisted Forces Shopping club where a pair of long white suede hand embroidered gloves with an evening bag to match were suggested.

The allied enlisted forces wrapping department, by the way, gets the most unusual gifts to send home for the boys. Some of the soldiers have bought long narrow French feeding bottles complete with nipples, along with lacy bibs and dresses for their babies.

One has even sent a shining baby carriage with bicycle size wheels. When he bought it he asked to have it wrapped for mailing, but French stores ran out of heavy paper and string years ago so the G. I. Joe had to wheel the buggy across town to have it properly packed.

Boys on a 24 hour leave usually have their shopping done for them by special services. They show pictures of their mothers, wives, or sweethearts and leave the money. Shoppers choose costume jewelry, bracelets, cameos and carving sets, silk souvenir scarfs, embroidered handkerchiefs, and lipstick or make-up sets.

Many married men with children ask to have French A-B-C books with pictures sent home. They admit blushingly: "We've had such a heck of a time here not knowing the language that we would like our kiddies to grow up speaking French." Besides beautifully illustrated books for children there are also sets of blocks depicting the fables of La Fontaine or the adventure stories of Jules Verne.

For children and grown-ups the WACs and Joes alike are having personal photographs made. As a matter of fact, gift pictures are so popular that American Red Cross Rainbow Centers have had to put in special departments to handle the demand.

Ybarra Tours Latin America in His Lecture

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

The fall meeting of the Chicago Junior league drew a large crowd to the ballroom of the Woman's Athletic club yesterday morning to hear T. R. Ybarra speak on "What Next in Latin America" following a brief business meeting. The speaker, whose given names were revealed to be Thomas Russell when Mrs. John L. Haverkampf III. introduced him, took his audience on a personally conducted but imaginary tour of the 20 Latin America republics, and advised his listeners to read and learn about South America and to "see that our allies in war remain our friends in peace."

The son of a New England mother and a Venezuelan father, Mr. Ybarra's imaginary tour brought to life vividly the countries that lay to the south.

Speaking of Argentina, Brazil, and Chile, "the ABC's" of the Latin American countries, he described Brazil as one of the best friends the United States has in South America. "We're their best customer," he said, "but we're not popular in Argentina, which is anti-American and pro-Argentina." He described our relations with Chile as the best they ever have been.

"Young Man of Caracas," written by Mr. Ybarra, occupied a central position in a display of books by the league's Lake Forest book shop which was arranged at one end of the ballroom to remind members that the shop is ready for Christmas business. A number of league mothers came to the lecture and stayed for luncheon as their daughters' guests, among them Mrs. Chester Cleveland and her daughter, Mrs. Dexter Fairbank. Others in the audience included Mrs. Charles S. Connell, who is elated because Lt. Connell of the navy is studying at Princeton following months of active service and will be at home for Christmas. Mrs. Richard M. Lamport, league president; Mrs. Aldis J. Browne Jr., Mrs. John B. Morse, book shop chairman; Mrs. Johnson S. Davis, Mrs. John C. Cushing, Mrs. John G. McDonald, Mrs. Hugo Vogel, and Miss Peggy Rich were others present. Mrs. Perkins Bass, speaking for the Red Cross, made a plea for more day time nurses' aids.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Langheck of Evanston have announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Lt. William Hendel Schlegel of the marines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Schlegel of Wyomissing, Pa. News of the engagement first was disclosed to a few friends at a dinner given by Lt. Schlegel's sister, Miss Margaret Schlegel, at the Wyomissing Country club. Miss Langheck, who is a Wellesley college classmate of Miss Schlegel, was Miss Schlegel's house guest at the time, and Lt. Schlegel was at home on leave from Camp LeJeune. He attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and was graduated from Cornell university.

Announcement is made by Mrs. Eric T. William Boquist of Lunt av. of the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Marjorie Constance, to Anthony Otto Vranek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Edward Vranek of Cicero. The ceremony will take place Nov. 25 in the chapel of the First Congregational church in Evanston. Miss Boquist attended Grinnell college and was graduated from the University of Minnesota. Her fiancé is a graduate of Grinnell college.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

On Jan. 8, 1942, a month after the attack on Pearl Harbor, THE TRIBUNE started the Women in War Work department to chronicle the participation of women in Chicago and vicinity in war activities, volunteer and industrial.

Daily and Sunday since then the column has informed readers of the entrance of women into virtually every field of war production and has functioned as a source of information for women desiring to obtain war jobs or to train for them.

The department was started at the time when women participated only in the war work of volunteer agencies which had begun operation under the defense program and at the time when it first was evident that the role of women would become increasingly important as the number of men in uniform increased.

"Be patient," one of the first Women in War Work articles read. "There is something you can do to help win the war, but it takes time for the various volunteer agencies to gear activities to the newness of the war." Chicago women were responding by the thousands to the call for volunteers to work in the service centers, as nurses' aids, to make surgical dressings, and to aid in recruiting.

By the middle of 1942 the need for women in industry became apparent, and the department carried frequent notices of training courses open in welding, ordnance, riveting, drafting, and inspection. It was the era of Winnie the Welder's entrance into the war. The fact that her number became indispensable legion now is history and has a prominent place in the Women in War Work files.

The year 1942 also saw the formation of the women's auxiliaries of the army and navy. Women in War Work stepped into the recruiting picture, informing eligible Chicagoans of the advantages and privileges of serving in uniform.

The department has continued to support procurement ever since, until now enlistment quotas have been met, except for replacements, in every uniformed women's branch except the WAC, which requires more members continually as it broadens its scope with each new phase of the army's participation in the war.

Essential civilian occupations in need of feminine replacements due to the departure of men for life in uniform also have been aided by this department, which has described for readers how women have taken over jobs in railroading, air lines operation, trucking and even butchering.

The earnest and successful participation of the city's women in war bond campaigns, blood plasma drives, and many other activities related to the war likewise has received in this department the publicity it deserved.

Women in War Work looks back on its three years of reporting and wishes to say to thousands of Chicago women: "Well done! Keep up the good work and hold those jobs."

After today, considering its function as a public service accomplished, Women in War Work will cease to be a daily column and instead will appear periodically as the news of women in war activities warrants. Inquiries for information still will be welcome.

Dazzling Hats Offered for Evening Wear

BY REA SEEGER.

Seductive little dinner and evening hats, confectionery tinted trifles, are flattering. Most of them are extremely small in width and thickness, but they make up for lack of size with star dust dazzle, with satin fabrics, and with decorative trim of beadwork, sequins, and feathers. Peach color, blush pink, palest blue, a few yellows, and violet shades, together with black, make a grand assortment from which to choose.

Most of the wicked looking black satins flaunt tiny motifs of black sequins, tiny snowflakes worked with white beads, or flashing multicolored beadwork. This beadwork doesn't mean circus or Indian effects, for the designs are beautifully worked. Gold and amber toned beads are used on black felts with almost as decorative an effect as the rhinestone or sequin glitter on satins.

The newest hats are those of winter white felt, felt with a definite nap, almost like thick suede. The color is known as off-white, not the stark chalk white of summer millinery. These hats are smart for wear with sleek streamlined black suits and coats, also with winter navy blue wool costumes and, as a surprise contrast, with dark brown. This white blends perfectly with winter clothes, providing a most unusual accent instead of the usual dark tones or very brilliant shades. Some of the hats are trimmed with roses and other flowers made of the same felt, others with bows and embroidery and beading.

Colleges Must Revalue Selves, Says Educator

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A prominent educator yesterday told the Executives club in the Hotel Sherman that the war has awakened American higher education from a half century snooze and that it may cease to be "a conservator of knowledge that no longer is so" and pay attention to "the individual experiment in living."

Dr. Deane W. Malott, chancellor of the University of Kansas, the speaker, discussed "Changing Guide Posts in Tomorrow's World." He blamed Charles W. Eliot, the late president of Harvard, and his introduction of the elective system for "the atrociously stupid job" done in recent years thru an attempt "to peddle knowledge and do no good to the student."

Dr. Malott said a main objective of higher education seems to have been the preservation of knowledge from one generation to another by packing the student's head full of knowledge about many things and then taking it out again at the end of a term on a blue [examination] book, thus completing the cycle.

The elective system, Dr. Malott said, has been carried so far in the average university as to be diluted by a thousand or more courses which range all the way from history of economic thought to tap dancing and equitation. He added that "our catalog lists equitation, altho we no longer have any horses."

"We were snoozing along, and then came the army and navy and they wanted to do things their own way," said Dr. Malott. "Higher education now is in a state of mind to re-appraise itself. We need more emphasis upon the qualities, rather than the quantities of education.

"It is not enough in this day of dynamic change to make storage tanks out of human minds, especially now when knowledge does not keep any better than fish. Factual knowledge is dead today."

Dr. Malott said higher education now has no common denominator and fails to get at the fundamentals. He explained that rhetoric is the only required course in all colleges and universities despite the fact that recent college graduates can neither read nor write. Speaking is more important than writing, he added, but speech courses are "snap" courses.

Foresees Enrollment Growth for Colleges and Junior Colleges

Harlie L. Smith, president of William Woods College for Women, Fulton, Mo., predicted here yesterday that college and junior college enrollment will increase greatly in the decade after the war. He spoke before a conference on terminal education of the North Central Council of Junior Colleges, which closed a four day meeting in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Summarizing discussions of the conference, Mr. Smith said junior colleges will face new problems in training of war veterans, in increased demand for vocational training, and in greater enrollment of adults taking part time courses.

He noted that college enrollment grew continuously from 1890 to 1930, when the depression interfered and said the growth will resume after the war.

White Collar GIRL

Shorten the Sentence.

Somewhere the admonition appeared not long ago: "Shorten your sentences if they run over 30 words. The reader will understand more quickly."

A busy office, burdened with more than the usual quota of long winded dictators, decided to try it for one week. The result was miraculous. The letters were improved to an astounding degree. Unnecessary adjectives were cast aside like leaves before a November gale. Unrelated statements no longer were joined by "and." Yet, the correspondence wasn't choppy. It was concise, forceful, and easy to read.

It's a good experiment. And, it doesn't cost a thin dime. It saves breath, eyesight, and nerves. Try it!

Teach Children Danger of Fire, Parents Urged

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I hope my baby won't be as crazy about fire as I was. My mother and father were absolutely fanatical about my touching a match. But when I was about 6 I used to get hold of a box of matches and go down the cellar and build little bonfires," said my young friend of 20.

Fire is magic. We're used to it, but it's magic just the same.

Think back to our primitive ancestors and how, not knowing how to create fire they never allowed it to die, preserving the precious embers from their last camp fire to kindle the next one with. No wonder there were fire worshipers in the early days of the world.

Appreciating this, is it any wonder that fire has a fascination for children? Is it surprising that their young fingers should itch to strike a slim splinter of wood and see a bright flame burst forth?

"My little boy loves to play with matches." How natural that he should. But how equally natural that it should worry us. Fire is a wonderful slave, but a terrible master, and certainly no plaything for a child. What shall we do about it?

First, we must understand the allure it has for children, and not regard the desire to strike matches or set fire to things as naughtiness.

And second, when our children are very little we must absolutely keep matches out of their reach, screen our fireplaces, guard our gas cocks, and be vigilant whenever they and fire of any kind are in any proximity.

That being agreed, what next? Two things. One is to give our small child a chance to satisfy this interest in fire, perhaps by sitting close beside him and letting him strike matches one after another—this, of course, only when he has enough skill to do so; or by his father letting him help him light his pipe. The other is gradually to teach our child that there are some things about the house which are just not to be played with, even when within reach.

An intelligently raised child seldom presents a real problem in regard to matches and fire. Nevertheless, problem or not, the personal injury may be so serious, that it is our job always to be vigilant in this regard.

'Personal and Private'

By William MacLeod Raine

(Copyright: 1944: By William MacLeod Raine.)

SYNOPSIS: John Ranger, owner of the Circle-JR ranch, and three of his men go in search of the rustlers who shot and killed Rod Spillman. On the way to the crossroads store, Sandra Ranger and her brother, Nelson, are intercepted by bandits. Sandra sees a horseman gallop down the slope. Two men, riding warily out of the hills, scrutinize the valley below and signal for the herd to move on. When night comes they will be safe. Four armed men are seen coming up the valley toward them. In the rustlers' attempt to get away, Sim Jones is killed and a stranger is taken prisoner by the ranchmen. Hans Uhlmann, known as Rhino, and Pete Sholte are anxious to hang the stranger, believing he is one of the bandits. The stranger, Cape Sloan, makes his appeal to John Ranger and Russell Hart, who agree to give him a chance to prove his innocence. Uhlmann keeps guard over the captured cowboy while the others drive the recovered cattle. A rider, flogging his mount, appears. As he slides from his saddle, Bill Hays is caught by Uhlmann. Hayes warns them of the approach of Pablo Lopez's raiders, then sinks into unconsciousness. During the encounter with the raiders, Cape Sloan escapes. Hidden behind the brush he sees a buggy driven by a red headed boy. Beside the boy sits a girl several years older.

INSTALMENT VI.

A RESCUE.

Cape Sloan had read of golden girls, but had never before seen one that fitted the mental picture he had formed. This one had honey colored hair twisted around her head in strands. Her eyes were deep sky blue, and her cheeks had a soft peach bloom. She was laughing, and he glimpsed a double row of shining ivory teeth.

The buggy dipped into a draw and after it had disappeared Sloan took the road again and followed. Before he had gone 50 yards he heard a jangle of voices; a whoop of jeering laughter, and a boyish treble raised in frightened protest. Trouble of some sort, he decided, and was sure of it when the scream of a girl reached him.

Swiftly he rode to the top of the rise and looked down. He saw four men surrounding the buggy. The girl was in the arms of one of them, flung across the saddle in front of him.

"We take you to Pablo, senorita," one of them called to her. "Maybe he hold you for a nice fat ransom. Or maybe—"

He finished the sentence with a ribald laugh. Sloan knew that these men were members of the band of Pablo Lopez.

Sloan touched his mount with the spur and charged down the slope. He knew it was a mad business, but gave that no thought. During the two or three seconds while the horse pounded down the slope his mind moved in swift stabbing flashes. The boy's head lay against the back of the seat. He had probably been pistol-whipped.

One of the bandits turned, shouted a startled warning, and fired wildly at the man on the galloping horse. Another bullet whistled past the ears of Sloan. A third outlaw fired just as he dragged his mount to a halt.

The rifle in Sloan's hands swung up and crashed down on the head of the man who had first seen him. The rider went out of the saddle as slack as a pole-axed bullock. A second raider spurred his pony against the cyclonic stranger. A knife flashed in the sun. The head and body of Sloan swerved, but too late to escape entirely. A red hot flame ripped thru his shoulder. He drew back the Winchester and fired it from his hip.

An agonized expression distorted the face of the attacker, and the knife dropped from his hand to the sand. Wide-stretched fingers caught at his stomach.

Cape Sloan lifted his voice to a shout: "Come on, fellows, we've got 'em."

The remaining two bandits wanted no more of this. One flung a hurried shot at Sloan and dragged his horse around to escape. The other dropped the girl and raced down the road at the heels of his fellow.

Sloan swung from the saddle, grounded the reins, and stepped forward to see how badly the boy was hurt. Groggily the lad stared at him.

"He hit me with a gun," the boy explained, the world still swimming before his eyes.

The girl climbed into the buggy and put an arm around him. "Are you all right, Nels? I mean—are you much hurt, dear?"

Her brother felt his head gently. "Gee, I'll say I am."

Sloan examined the lump above the temple. It had been a fairly light tap. The skin was not broken and there was no blood. If there was no concussion Nelson had got off easily.

"He'll have a headache but I don't think he is much hurt," Sloan decided.

Cape had kept an eye on both of the prostrate bandits. Now he examined their wounds. The one he had shot was dead. His companion showed signs of life. Sloan stripped both of them of their weapons.

"Where are the other men—the ones you called?" the girl asked.

"There are no others," Cape smiled. "Thought I'd encourage these scoundrels to light out before they had massacred me."

"I haven't seen you before, have I?" she asked. "You don't live around here."

"My name is Cape Sloan." He added, "I'm a stranger in these parts."

The horse of one of the raiders was grazing close to the trace. No sign of the second one could be seen.

Sloan unhitched the horse from the buggy and removed the harness. The girl's eyes followed him as he moved.

"My name is Alexandra Ranger," she said. "This is my brother Nelson. We live at the Circle-JR ranch."

"If your father is John Ranger I think I've met him," Sloan answered, his eyes grim.

She looked down at the dead man and shuddered. "It's . . . dreadful isn't it? Who can they be? What did they want," Her voice was low and held a moving huskiness.

"They belong to Pablo Lopez's gang. A mess of them are raiding this district today." He did not mention that he had last seen a dozen of them trying to kill her father. "We've got to get out of here pronto. I don't know how far away the rest of the gang are. Nels can ride this horse. You'll have to take that one." He indicated the one the dead man had been riding.

"Yes," she replied. The color had washed out of her cheeks, but she gave no evidence of hysteria. "Can you help Nels up?"

He lifted the boy to the back of the buggy horse. "You're all right, aren't you?" he asked. "Not light-headed."

"Sure I'm all right. Where are we going?"

"I don't know yet. Just now into the brush." He turned to Alexandra. "You'll have to ride astride."

"Yes. Will you help me up please? It's such a high horse."

For anything that his wooden face registered she might have been a wrinkled Indian squaw. He whipped up his left arm and said curtly, "This way."

Altho fear was still knocking at her heart, she was full of curiosity about him. The horse he was riding bore an [R] brand. What was he doing with one of her father's mounts? Why had he stiffened at mention of her name? He was a man who unconsciously invited the eyes of women because of his obvious indifference to them. The motions of his body showed an easy grace, due to the poised coördination of mind and long flowing muscles. She had never seen one more sure of himself.

They cut into the chaparral, Sloan bringing up the rear. In silence they traveled for at least a mile before he halted the little procession.

"How far is the nearest ranch?" he inquired.

"About three miles, maybe," Nelson answered. "The Blunt place. Wouldn't you say about three miles, Sandra?"

Sandra thought that might be right.

The men hunting the rustlers were to rendezvous at Blunt's.

"Let's go," he said.

"Wait," Sandra cried, pointing to the red stain on his shirt. "You're wounded. Where the knife cut you."

Sloan brushed aside her concern impatiently. "A scratch. It will wait."

Mrs. K. L. N., Chicago.—When I light our woodburning fireplace I have on hand a newspaper twisted into a long spill. Then if thick smoking occurs, due to fact that air in the flue is overly dense and heavy, I light one end of the newspaper spill and stick it quickly thru the throat opening. This causes a draft and fire starts up immediately.

Mrs. Letty H., Evanston.—I keep a small jar of cold cream and a little baking soda in my laundry room cabinet. When lipstick stains get on any article to be washed I rub on a little cold cream or lard, leave it for a few minutes, and then place article in a bowl of soap and water to which I have added a small amount of baking soda. This soda hastens removal of the stain.

Mrs. K. S., Gary, Ind.—I find that vertical partitions inserted between some of my deep pantry shelves are a big convenience when it comes to storing a host of utensils and dishes such as muffin tins, trays, platters, etc.

Movie Mystery Entertaining in a Modest Way

"THE MARK OF THE WHISTLER."

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

"The Mark of the Whistler" is a different mystery, to the extent that it has only one death and that at the end. Based on a radio program called "The Whistler," of which we blithely confess ignorance, the biggest mystery about it is to us the shadow of the whistling man which stalks the hero at critical moments of his checkered career and never intrudes on the plot in the slightest manner. Or maybe this is just another of those movies that overshoots our intelligence.

If you don't worry too much about the unexplained whistler, this is a modest little mystery by no means as bad as it might be. It's about a derelict by the name of Lee Nugent who reads a newspaper item advertising a dormant trust account in the name of one Lee Nugent, who, however, is not our Lee Nugent. Our Lee [we call him that for identification purposes only], however, gets ideas and pretends he is the other Lee, and to his astonishment and yours collects $29,010 from the bank. [We have more trouble than he did just cashing our pay checks.]

This little deception gets Lee into trouble, but not the kind of trouble you expect, in view of Hays office retribution requirements. He never really outwits Mr. Hays, tho, for Lee goes to prison in the end, but in very good humor, with a friend—who has turned out to be the real Lee—promising him a job after he's served his stretch and hinting there may be some of the dough left for our Lee.

Richard Dix is in front of the camera most of the time, looking guilty, and he is very good at it. The love interest is very incidental and, incidentally, very mild. Such as it is, is prettily handled by Janis Carter. Paul Guilfoyle does a neat job as the lame peddler who befriends our Lee and turns out to be the real Lee, and as for the villain of John Calvert, we would hate to have that baleful stare leveled at us for two-thirds of a picture.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 17.—Hollywood is missing a great bet, and that's the story of Lew Ayres. I don't believe any one here has ever had the ups and downs, praise and condemnation, boos and hisses, and come out with greater respect than has Lew. Why wouldn't his story be a natural for the screen? With Lew playing it, of course, assisted by his great friend and loyal rooter, Lionel Barrymore. . . . Nancy Coleman's first part since birth of her twins will be the nurse in "Al Schmidt, Marine." She doesn't work with John Garfield, but she has the most important reels of the picture. . . . Rita Hayworth's baby is due in three weeks. I'm hoping Orson will see fit to arrange his other activities so he can be here with her. That little girl deserves a break. . . . Frances Faye, who married Sam Farkas in Las Vegas, traveled to Chicago in a plaster cast to consult her own specialist. . . . Gregory Peck won't do "Dragonwyck," which leaves Gene Tierney without a male partner. . . . Betty Hutton arrives almost any day now. Her sister, Marion, is coming out to spend Christmas with her. Marion's 3 year old son has been living with his grandmother, who says this is the first time in seven years she'll have her whole family around her for the holidays. . . . That beautiful blonde with Artie Shaw was Peggy Maley—formerly Ava Gardner's best friend.

The Ides of March.

The battle between Don Hartman, writer, and Sam Goldwyn will be over by March. Don hopes to finish Danny Kaye's next, called "Fancy Free." Even if the picture isn't written, Don will be fancy free. You could have heard Sam scream a mile away when it was suggested that they put the name Samuel Hartman, Producer, over "Wonder Man." In "Fancy Free" Danny plays a sailor who's true to one girl. His companions use his name and date girls in every port. He doesn't know about it and is known as the great lover of World War II. Phil Rapp, who turned down Kaye's radio writing job, is Don's co-worker. They're wonderful together. Funny thing about Sam—he screams, yells, and fights one day, but the next admits he's wrong—but you've got to go to him while he admits it. He's an angel at home but a demon on the set. Even so, you've got to admit he works to make good pictures.

Nightmarish for Mr. Benny.

Jack Benny is still apologizing to officers who arrived here from the South Pacific who were present the night Carole Landis lost her jeweled cigaret lighter. That's a night Jack hopes some day to forget but hasn't been able to so far. 'Tis said the reason Miss Landis is remaining in New York is because her husband, Capt. Wallace, whom she married in London with such a welter of publicity, is still in Hollywood. . . . Bing Crosby never mentions the party he gave Gen. Eisenhower and his staff in Paris, but that's a story Gen. Eisenhower will be able to regale his buddies with for years to come. . . . Geraldine Fitzgerald is off to New York to see plays, not read 'em. She'll be back in a few weeks and hopes to do a picture with Ernst Lubitsch. . . . Cary Grant paid $125,000 for the honeymoon home for Barbara. He turned it down two years ago; said it was too cold for a bachelor.

A Few Short Shorts.

Claudette Colbert finds some dirty job in every picture. She thought she would avoid it in "Guest Wife," but her joy was over when she read a scene in which she gets caught in the midst of a football scrimmage and has her clothes nearly torn off her. . . . James Cardwell, oldest brother in "The Sullivans" then in "Sweet and Low Down" at Twentieth, didn't have his contract picked up until Lewis Milestone put him under a long termer. He has cast Cardwell in "Walk in the Sun," with Dana Andrews. . . . A bunch of pilots overseas who were entertained at Muroc Lake by Maria Ouspenskaya have written her, asking if she minds if they call her "Grandma." She's the gal they'd most like to spend an evening with on their return to Hollywood.

Electron Lens Bares Tooth's Hidden Canals

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The electron microscope, by means of which a tooth area only 1/10th the width of a toothbrush bristle can be photographed and studied in full detail, has opened up dazzling new possibilities in dentistry, according to Dr. C. H. Gerould, a research engineer with the Dow Chemical company, Midland, Mich. He spoke yesterday in the La Salle hotel before the meeting of the Electron Microscope Society of America.

"It is as tho a dental laboratory technician had been working in the dark and a flood of light had suddenly been turned on," he said. With the electron microscope, he explained, things can be seen and measured whose very existence had up to recently been in doubt.

Examples, Dr. Gerould said, were the tiny canals within the teeth—50 miles of them in a single tooth—which no eye had ever seen. He showed pictures of the surface area of a tooth, magnified more than 100,000 times, in which the openings of the canals were great craters.

The increased knowledge of tooth structure and the greater opportunity for early detection of diseases of the teeth which the electron microscope has made possible should, in Dr. Gerould's opinion, help dental researchers in the further development of methods of tooth preservation.

"Preliminary work on tooth structures," he said, "has indicated that the electron miscroscope . . . can be used successfully, thus giving the dental research worker a new tool for application in his field."

As an example of the power of the electron microscope, a scientific marvel whose advanced development has taken place in the last three years, it was asserted at the meeting that the bristle of a toothbrush can [by means of photographs of small areas of it] be blown up to the size of a giant redwood tree.

Thru the Looking Glass

"At what age do you think my young daughter should be allowed to use lipstick?" is a question that is asked frequently of this department and the answer is not always easy to put into words. We can believe that there are many bewildered mothers who don't know quite how to cope with the situation when young daughters, just entering their teens, clamor and complain if parental permission to use lip rouge is not given as quickly as they'd like. The young misses can always point out the little girl down the street, no older than themselves, who has been wearing lipstick for "ages." The implication is, of course, that the envied pal's mother is right up to date, while the forbidding parent is old fashioned and living in a bygone era.

It takes adroit handling to convince a 13 year old girl that good taste and common sense require that she wait a year or two longer before she starts embellishing her fresh young looks with artificial beauty aids. Certainly, mothers can't assume a high and mighty air and simply say, "No, and that's that." The young miss has to be impressed with the fact that her most endearing charm during the early teens is her completely natural, simply sweet self. She needs to be gently steered to the conviction that she has plenty of time to wear cosmetics but for the present she will look as ridiculous in powder and paint as she does in her mother's high heels.

As a consolation prize, the young miss may be given a pink tinted lip pomade which will give her the longed-for, grown-up feeling of using a cosmetic without making her look painted.

When finally she is allowed to use a real lipstick, select one in a delicate tint and teach her how to apply it properly and with discretion instead of smearing it on in big blobs or distorting the shape of her mouth. LOUISE DOOLEY.

It's a Smart Girl Who Is Good Listener

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Maybe you are the greatest thing since television—but let the other fellows and girls find out about it for themselves! It's an off-the-cob character who insists on starting every conversation with "Did I tell you what happened to me yesterday" or "You should have seen me last night. . . ." Learn to share the spotlight; you can't be number one pigeon in every conversation.

Every one, to himself, seems to be choice conversational material. Some tall, dark, and handy character has called you for three nights in a row and asked you for a date for the fourth, and to you that may seem to be the most important news of the day. You want to explain to every one what he said and how he said it, what you said and how you said it—and what he said after that.

But one of your friends may have what she considers equally interesting date plans and she wants to be heard, too! It is as important to be an interested listener as it is to be one interesting story teller, so divide up the conversation and learn to be both. You won't top the hit parade with any one if you insist on turning all thoughts and all comments toward your dates and your interests.

Your mother may have thought you a child strictly out of this atmosphere because you rated an A in your recent history exam, but your friends will cease to think it wonderful if you tell them about it twice a day, and every day, between now and the next exam! Other fellows and girls are smart, too—so smart that they don't bother to talk about it.

Perhaps you didn't realize that you had been monopolizing conversations. Maybe you gave out with the king sized chatter about yourself simply because you wanted more attention. But if you are attractive, if you are intelligent and if you do have three dates a week-end, you don't need to be a personal press agent to keep your friends posted. They will already know about it.

"Should veal roasts be cooked with or without a cover to get the tenderest product?"

In the case of most veal roasts—leg, loin, shoulder, breast—the method approved by meat authorities is the use of an uncovered pan. Rump roast is the possible exception. It is likely to be a better product if braised [pot roasted]. Many cooks

CHARGES TEXAS PREXY HID 'NEST' OF PERVERSION

Regent Says 10 Teachers, 15 Students Fled.

Austin, Tex., Nov. 17 (AP).—University of Texas Regent Orville Bullington today testified one of the reasons the board of regents discharged Dr. Homer P. Rainey as president was because the board believed he was not diligent in weeding out a "nest of homosexuals in the faculty."

Bullington, who was appearing before a senate committee investigating the university's administrative controversy which climaxed Nov. 1 in the firing of Dr. Rainey and resignation of three regents, said that since an investigation of homosexuality was begun 10 faculty members and 15 students have left the school.

Answering questions of committeemen, he credited Dr. Rainey with asking the state public safety department to make an investigation of homosexuality on the campus.

Tells of Eight Months Delay.

"My criticism," he said, "is letting that kind of folks get on the faculty in the first place.

"Dr. Rainey discovered a nest of homosexuals in the faculty as early as September, 1943. He did not disclose it to any member of the board until eight months later, despite rules requiring immediate reporting of such conditions.

"In July of this year we were assured by Dr. Rainey that the situation had been cleaned up and most, if not all, of the persons involved had then gone.

"The safety department indicated, however, that it was not entirely cleaned up."

Dispute on Academic Freedom.

Bullington's testimony injected a new subject into the inquiry which heretofore had dealt with matters of academic freedom, teacher tenure and differences between the board and Rainey on university administration.

After he had explained the discovery of homosexuality and the efforts to stamp it out, Bullington was asked by Sen. Wardlow Lane of Center:

"You don't mean to say that Dr. Rainey condones these things?"

"No," said Bullington. "We felt that he was not handling it vigorously enough and decided to take it over ourselves. We began to make an investigation of a list of suspects [supplied by the public safety department] and 10 days later Dr. Rainey's attack was launched on us."

He was referring to a list of 16 alleged repressive and restrictive measures which Dr. Rainey said the regents imposed or attempted during his administration.

Earlier Dr. Rainey, testifying on appointments, suggested that the committee investigate what he said were "interlocking interests" among various boards of directors of state colleges.

GREAT AIR FORCE IS KEY TO PEACE, GENERAL WARNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 17.—Air power is the key to the future, and if we are to have peace we must maintain an air force of the first quality, Lt. Gen. Barton K. Yount, commanding general of the army air forces training command, tonight said in a speech before the national aviation clinic here. Gen. Yount read the speech in behalf of Gen. Arnold, commanding general of the A. A. F.

"Never again can we allow a gangster nation to get its hands on a powerful air force," he said. "That is a lesson we have learned almost too late and at great cost. We must, as a nation, finally face the reality that love of peace does not give us strength to enforce it."

The war has brought great developments in the safety of aircraft, he said, listing radar as the greatest of all. "I think it is safe to say that the application of radar to commercial aviation will make flying quite as safe as sitting at home—safer, perhaps," he added.

Gen. Yount said great progress had been made in the field of jet propulsion, and expressed belief that no conventional fighter plane—one with a propeller—will ever again be designed.

AIR DELEGATES PUT PACT UP TO HOME CAPITALS

The international civil aviation conference marked time in the Stevens hotel yesterday while the heads of the principal national delegations submitted to their home governments some of the principles agreed upon in a revised draft of an agreement for a permanent world aeronautical authority.

The conference assigned the task of resolving various disputes about the makeup of this global body to the chief delegates of the United States, Great Britain, and Canada. The resulting preliminary draft was given over to a conference steering committee, composed of the big three and chairmen of several of the delegations from smaller nations.

Some of the items in the preliminary draft are known to have been transmitted to London by the British delegation. The United States and Canadian delegations also are believed to have consulted their governments, and there have been rumors that the propositions also were submitted to Moscow, altho the soviet withdrew its delegation while it was en route to Chicago.

OPA GASOLINE SLEUTH FINED $15 FOR SPEEDING

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 17 [Special].—James W. Carney, the OPA's investigator in charge of seeing that gasoline is not wasted or used illegally here, appeared before Judge Adalbert J. Hedding today and paid a $15 fine for speeding.

The judge looked up Carney's police record and read it to him.

"It says here that you were arrested May 12, 1938, and fined $15 for speeding 55 miles an hour," the judge said, "and you were arrested Oct. 13, 1940, for speeding and received a suspended sentence, and you were arrested again June 28, 1941, and again received a suspended sentence."

Motorcycle Policeman Victor Wehrwein testified that he clocked Carney driving 48 miles an hour Saturday night between N. 13th st. and 9th st. He said that Carney explained he was trying to get to a cleaning shop before it closed.

Carney, who is 37 and lives at 831 N. Prospect av., told Judge Hedding he was an OPA investigator assigned to the district fuel division.

BELIEVES G. O. P. SHOULD SPURN PROGRESSIVES

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17 [Special].—The Wisconsin Republican party, Chairman Thomas E. Coleman of Madison said here today, will "protect" itself against invasion and infiltration into G. O. P. ranks of Progressive party members with political ambitions.

In the Nov. 7 election the Progressive party—founded by the La Follette family of Madison in 1934 and comprised of disgruntled Republicans—captured only 6 per cent of the total votes cast.

Coleman declared he personally would not welcome La Follette back in the fold.

"I consider Bob La Follette's principles to be anti-Republican. The executive committee does not intend to offer the G. O. P. party organization as the vehicle for the election or reelection of members of other parties, including the Progressives," he said.

"We will welcome Progressive voters but not Progressive candidates who hold anti-Republican views."

TIE-IN CIGARET SALES AROUSE OPA OFFICIALS

Two office of price administration officials yesterday conferred with United States Atty. J. Albert Woll and Earle C. Hurley, head of his criminal division, on the possibility of bringing federal action against dealers who allegedly have used "tie-in" sales to take advantage of the cigaret shortage.

Tie-in sales, in which the purchaser is required to buy some other product along with the one he wants, are in violation of OPA price ceiling regulations. Some dealers have been accused of selling a 10 cent pipe and a package of cigarets for 50 cents.

Woll told the OPA officials that evidence they had gathered was not sufficient for criminal action, but urged them to get further evidence which could be presented to the grand jury.

FINED AFTER DENYING 4 TRIPS TO GET CIGARETS

Bert L. Ryan, 44, of 1244 Dearborn st., denied accusations of Henry C. Drechsler, manager of the drug store at 1201 N. Clark st., that he had stood in line four times to get cigarets, when he was arraigned yesterday before Judge John R. McSweeney in Chicago av. court. "It was only three times," he told the court. Judge McSweeney found Ryan guilty of disorderly conduct, fined him $2, but suspended the fine.

A fine of $5 and costs was the price paid by Maurice Guillory, 1762 N. Clark st., yesterday for a pack of cigarets he didn't get. He'd bought one pack in a drug store at 400 W. North av. and his demands for another one held up a line of customers. Judge John R. McSweeney imposed the fine in Chicago Avenue court on a disorderly conduct charge.

MAJOR CHIEFS O.K. LANDIS FOR 7 MORE YEARS

Final Action Awaits Annual Meeting.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The joint committee of American and National leaguers, who went into special session in the Palmer House yesterday for the purpose of revamping the major league agreement which expires Jan. 12, 1946, wound up its task after a few hours of discussion with a recommendation that Kenesaw M. Landis be reelected for another seven year term.

The recommendation will come before the two leagues at their annual business meetings in Chicago next month and, while there never has been any question of the majority of the magnates' desire to retain the incumbent, there remains the possibility that he may be forced to relinquish his work because of illness. The commissioner, who will be 78 next Monday, has been confined to St. Luke's hospital for the last seven weeks. Prior to his illness he had informed intimates that he planned on retiring Jan. 12, 1946, 25 years to the date after he stepped into the czar's role.

LANDIS HAS GOOD DAY.

Commissioner K. M. Landis had a good day yesterday, members of the family said last night. He has been confined to St. Luke's hospital for seven weeks.

Other Rules Unchanged.

Along with the recommendation that Landis be reelected for seven years beyond his present term, the joint committee decided not to tamper with the regulations as laid down in the present working agreement to which the two leagues and the 16 clubs are bound. Whether or not the agreement will be changed will be put to vote in the December meetings, at which time a definite expiration date will be set. If Landis is still in office at that time, the agreement will remain untouched because he, not as commissioner, but as K. M. Landis, is named in the pact. Neither will there be any change in his annual salary of $65,000.

When Landis, who later resigned from the Federal bench, assumed the baseball office Jan. 12, 1921, it was for a seven year stay. A term of equal length was voted in 1928, another in '35, and another in '42. His last term was cut to Jan. 12, 1946, because of the original 25 year major league working agreement expiring at that time.

Harridge Issues Statement.

After yesterday's brief session, at the start of which Will Harridge, American league president, declared there would be no press releases, he issued the following printed statement:

"The joint committee of the two major leagues will recommend to the clubs that the present major league agreement be extended. The two leagues also will propose at the coming joint meeting [Dec. 13] that K. M. Landis be reelected as commissioner for another term of seven years from the expiration date of his present contract."

Still Head Man

K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, can serve until 1953 if he chooses. Major league officials yesterday approved extension of his tenure for seven years after its expiration date in 1946.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 17.—Michigan should beat Wisconsin here tomorrow afternoon in the Wolverine's home final of the season. But try to find any one in the Wolverine ensemble who will crow about a pushover being in prospect.

Michigan knows that there can be such a thing as an upset in the game of football. Michigan does not have to read about such in story books. Its own log of last Sept. 30 will show the Wolverines to have been whipped by Indiana, 20 to 0. Since that woeful day the Wolverines have knocked off, in Big Nine competition, Minnesota [conqueror of Indiana], Northwestern, Purdue, and Illinois. But Michigan remembers what an upset is.

Badger Victory Unlikely.

Wisconsin has scored two victories in Big Nine competition, 7 to 6, over Northwestern and, last Saturday, 26 to 7, over Iowa. These triumphs, however, scarcely would seem to advance Wisconsin to an upset potentiality, especially when it is considered that Purdue, the Saturday after it lost, 14 to 40, to Michigan, beat Wisconsin, 35 to 0.

Observers feel that Michigan will not grow careless with the end of the season so near and with a season's end that will bring the Wolverines the championship if they can win from the Badgers tomorrow and then take Ohio State before a capacity crowd in Columbus a week from tomorrow.

Statistics Favor Michigan.

Michigan's over-all statistics for the season to date are of a magnitude designed to make one blink. But they include many yards by the now departed Bob Wiese and Bob Nussbaumer, so we'll set them down here as being especially significant. However, we saw Michigan thump Penn in the first game the Wolverines played after Wiese and Nussbaumer went away. Joe Ponsetto, Don Lund, Ralph Chubb, and Gene Derricotte, who remain, are plenty good enough for our dough, without borrowing anything from Wiese and Nussbaumer statistics.

Unfortunately the wall of Michigan's great stadium will not bulge in the home final.

SERVICE GAME TRANSFERRED TO BALTIMORE

War Bond Angle Is Not Yet Definite.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 17 (AP).—For the second time in history, Army and Navy will settle their annual football feud in Baltimore on Dec. 7, but the navy and treasury departments were unable tonight to agree just what the public would pay to see the Cadets and Middies go after each other.

The only thing clear was an official statement by the navy department in Washington, ending a week of speculation, that the traditional battle between the two great elevens would be played before an estimated 70,000 in Baltimore rather than in the semi-privacy of Thompson stadium in Annapolis with its 18,756 seats. Just 20 years ago, in 1924, Army beat Navy, 12 to 0, before 80,000 fans in Baltimore's Municipal stadium.

The present regular seating capacity is 60,000, but officials said this easily could be increased to 70,000. Since 1924 two sections of the stands which seat 9,000 have been torn away.

They'll Sail to Baltimore.

A navy official said Baltimore was selected for these reasons:

1. Baltimore's municipal stadium, tho 28 miles from Annapolis, has been Navy's normal "home field" for major games.
2. The midshipmen can be transported to Baltimore by water. This avoids placing any additional burden on rail facilities.
3. The midshipmen did not see last year's game, which was played at West Point, and they are entitled to see this one.

He did not know whether the army's cadet corps also would be allowed to attend.

War Bond Game, Says Treasury.

Immediately after the announcement that the game had been shifted, Walter N. Ruth, head of the Maryland war finance committee, said "the Army-Navy game definitely will be a war bond game, but it will be several days before a statement can be made concerning sale of bonds in that connection." Ruth said there was nothing he could say yet about the scale of bonds, if they are to be purchased to obtain seats. He had just talked with treasury officials in Washington.

At the same time Capt. C. O. Humphreys, director of athletics at the naval academy, issued a statement with Capt. Morris D. Gilmore, who handles ticket sales, saying that tickets would go at $4.80 each, the regularly scheduled price, including the 20 per cent federal tax.

Limit 4 to Customer.

Humphreys said the usual application forms would not be printed and distributed because time is short, just two weeks away. Applications for tickets will be by letter to the Navy Athletic association at Annapolis and they must give the name of the person to whom tickets are to be sent, the number required, and must be accompanied by a certified check, postal, express or telegraphic money order to cover costs. Added to the $4.80 purchase price, must be 25 cents to cover cost of postage and handling.

"Applications for a total of not over four tickets per applicant will be handled on a first come, first served basis, until the available supply is exhausted. Telephonic requests will not be accepted, nor will acknowledgement be made of receipt of applications. Tickets will be available for mailing Nov. 27," Capt. Humphreys said.

Navy officials expressed surprise when told that the game would be a war bond contest. Otherwise, except possibly in the confines of the office of defense transportation in Washington, which expressed objection to the transfer of the battle, there were loud cheers on all sides.

Taboo the harsh quip, stiffen the lip,

A neighborhood spat at the drop of a hat,
And the choicest of epithets flew.

Blood pressures mounted, tempers were tried,
There were moments you felt you might choke,
You thought more than once, "If that old so-and-so Don't lay off me, I'll murder the bloke!"

But now it's all over and done with,
The verdict has been brought in,
Died down are the tumult and shouting,
And every last echo of din.

They'd been giving a bit of "the ice,"
Pals in the office are greeting once more,
And gosh, but isn't it nice?

And that, my friends, is America.
We battle it out and then,
Once a decision is rendered,
All the lines close in tightly again!

FENGER, TILDEN PLAY TODAY IN LEAGUE FINAL

Kelly Bowl Berth Also at Stake.

Fenger High school's undefeated Titans will be after victory No. 10, the City league championship, and a chance to play in the Kelly bowl game on Dec. 2, when they meet the twice tied Tilden Tech Blue Devils in Soldier's field at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

For the Titans, whose powerhouse offense has rolled over nine opponents with only one close call, an 8 to 7 victory over Lane in the semi-final playoff last week, today's game will come under the heading of unfinished business. In 1941 Tilden defeated Fenger in the City league play-off and today Fenger will be playing for revenge. Tilden went on that year to play in the Kelly bowl, ending the three year reign of the Titans, who had two victories and a tie in three straight Kelly game appearances.

Average 33 Points a Game.

Fenger will be the favorite in today's championship contest, largely on its undefeated record and Tilden's record of two ties this year. Fenger scored an average of more than 33 points in winning nine straight contests and has allowed only one opponent, New Trier of Winnetka, Suburban league title holder, to score more than one touchdown in a game. New Trier scored two touchdowns on the Titans, but came out on the short end of a 32 to 13 rout.

Coach Chuck Palmer of Fenger will start a pony back field of Bob Biolochini, Pete Konyar, Tim Madden, and Bob Carlson. Coach Chuck Harvey of Tilden has named Eddie Kriwiel, Bill Gay, Mike Swistowicz, and Joe Dunlap. The Fenger back field averages 158 pounds, while the Tilden unit goes a little heavier. Swistowicz is the heaviest man of the Tilden quartet and weighs 185 pounds; Kriwiel the captain and passer, weighs 165 pounds. Swistowicz and Gay, who weighs 160 pounds, have led the team in scoring.

There's Bulk in These Lines.

In the line, Fenger will have Wesley Korienfck, 175 pounds, and Jack Gray, 190, ends; Paul Gullo, 185, and Walter Olson, 190, tackles; Burris Crawford, and Jim Andricopulous, each 170, guards, and Art Frangella, 210, center.

Tilden's forwards will be Frank Gurgone, 175, and Bob Hornisch, 170, ends; Eugene De Bortoll, 180, and Ralph McGeehee, 185, tackles; Bob Jaderholm, 185, and Dan Proskey, 175, guards; and Ed Ericson, 180, center.

City league coaches attending the game will be asked to select the outstanding player of the day, and on Sunday, Catholic prep coaches watching that league's championship contest, between Fenwick and Weber, will be asked to select the outstanding Catholic league player. The Chicago Prep Writers' association will select one of these two boys as the outstanding player in the championship series, and will present him with a football autographed by movie and radio celebrities.

O. K. All-Star Baseball Play for State Preps

Illinois High School baseball and softball players are free to compete in All-Star games during vacation period, Al Willis, secretary of the Illinois High School association, announced yesterday following tabulation of votes of school principals on the question.

Willis said the vote showed 326 for and 74 against an amendment to the I. H. S. A. constitution, which applies only to baseball and softball players. All-Star coöperation in all other sports still is outlawed by the association.

The issue of All-Star competition was brought to a head last summer when Alby Plain, Springfield High school athlete, played in an All-Star game in Chicago. Subsequently, he was declared ineligible by the association.

J. R. Fitzpatrick, Springfield lumberman and newspaper publisher, who named Plain to play in the Chicago game, filed a suit in Cook county court against the I. H. S. A., seeking an injunction restraining the association from declaring Plain ineligible. Plain's father, H. U. Plain, sued Springfield High school in an effort to force the school to issue a football uniform to his son.

Meanwhile, Plain transferred to Todd school of Woodstock, Ill., and while Fitzpatrick won his injunction, both suits were dropped.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 17.—Northwestern and Notre Dame will clash in the 24th game of their football series tomorrow afternoon in the Notre Dame stadium, and, if clear weather prevails, a crowd of 50,000 is expected. The Irish have defeated the Wildcats 18 times, lost three and tied two.

Both teams have hospital lists more impressive than the starting lineups, due to injuries suffered during the week.

Four Irish Regulars Hurt.

The Irish have four regulars, Half Back Bob Kelly; Guards Capt. Pat Filley and Fred Roval, and Full Back Elmer Angsman below par with injuries. Filley and Roval may be lost for the season. Kelly and Angsman will dress for the game, but will appear only briefly, if at all.

Northwestern also was hit by the injury jinx this week, losing Steve Bennett, regular left tackle, as well as Jack Doyle, full back, and Win Fisher, quarter back. Doyle will make the trip with the Wildcats, but is not expected to play.

Coach Ed McKeever has re-shuffled the Notre Dame lineup several times during the pre-game practice sessions. Today he said he would start a team composed of six freshmen, two sophomores, a junior, and two seniors.

Benigni to Start at End.

George Benigni, Mount Carmel standout last fall, and Doug Waybright, a freshman from Saugus, Mass., will start at ends for the first time this season. Two fast backs, Jim Brennan of Milwaukee, and Nunzio Marino, Windber, Pa., each weighing 155 pounds, will be at the half backs. Joe Gasparella, second string quarter back all season, will start at full.

Northwestern probably will pin its hopes on the passing ability of little Johnny Yungwirth, freshman passing star. Yungwirth has been one of the bright lights of the Western conference season to date, and since Notre Dame's pass defense has been weak all season, the Wildcats are expected to fill the air with footballs.

It topped the $100,000 purchase made two days earlier by Sig Welber of South Bend, but the Indiana merchant, shortly before Kirkpatrick entered the picture, tossed another $50,000 into the competition.

Thus, unless there is a last minute change this morning, Mr. Welber will be presented the Knute Rockne 1930 autographed Notre Dame football between halves of this afternoon's game between the Notre Cleveland, O., Nov. 17.—Undefeated Ohio State and thrice beaten Illinois tomorrow will draw the biggest crowd that has attended a football game in the United States this season. According to Chuck Flynn, athletic publicity director for Illinois, Cleveland's Municipal stadium will house a capacity throng. That means 83,627.

Coach Ray Eliot and all members of his Illini squad except three Navy men arrived this morning. They worked out in the stadium this afternoon, two hours before the Ohio State delegation arrived. The Navy athletes from Champaign—Buddy Ward, end; Walter Versen, tackle, and Ken Siegel who alternates at guard and tackle—will not reach Cleveland until tomorrow morning, because of navy travel restrictions.

It Will Be Frosty.

The weather man has promised clear skies, but advises fans to bring heavy overcoats, bearskins, and blankets, because the temperature will be near freezing. Ohio State sent its huge tarpaulin to protect the field from rain but the surface was so saturated from a two-day drizzle that ground keepers decided against using it.

The game will bring together two of the flashiest teams in 1944 football. While Illinois has lost to Purdue, Michigan, and Notre Dame, it never has failed to provide an afternoon of thrills. Its reverses have been due principally to overeagerness and inexperience. Ohio State made up entirely of civilian talent, has been the surprise team of the year. It needs victories only over Illinois and Michigan—no mean assignment—to earn a place among the all time great units of a university famed for brilliant elevens.

Young to Duel Horvath.

The players who are serving as the major attractions tomorrow are 23 year old Les Horvath, playing his fourth season for Ohio State, and Buddy Young, 18 year old Illinois freshman, who probably is the fastest man in moleskins this fall.

Let's take a look at their records, starting with Horvath's: Against Missouri in the Buckeyes' opening contest he ran 47 yards for a touchdown; against Iowa he dashed 9 for a touchdown. He scored against Wisconsin on a 1 yard plunge. Against Great Lakes he ran 34 yards to the 1 yard line and then carried the ball over. He scored again from the 2. Against Minnesota he passed 50 yards for a touchdown and scored twice, from the 4 and 25 yard lines. He passed 41 yards for a touchdown in the Indiana game. Against Pittsburgh he scored from the 14 and passed to Bob Brugge for another touchdown.

Buddy Likes to Run.

Here's the review of Young's achievements: Against Illinois Normal he ran back a punt 82 yards for a touchdown and went 24 yards for another. Against Indiana he caught a pass from Paul Patterson for a touchdown. He dashed 93 yards to the goal against Great Lakes. Against Purdue he went 24 yards for a touchdown, after taking a lateral from Lou Agase, and ran 40 yards for another. His touchdown sprints against Iowa were 63 and 31 yards. Against Pittsburgh he traveled 92 yards for one and 8 for another.

He stunned Notre Dame with a 74 yard touchdown gallop. Michigan held him scoreless for the only time this season.

Ohio State will be at full strength. Gordon Appleby, Bill Willis, and Jack Dugger, who have been nursing injuries, will be in the starting lineup.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 17.—The first contingent of Purdue university's combined operations football squad arrived this morning and drilled briefly in the afternoon in Municipal stadium, where the Boilermakers will meet the United States Naval academy tomorrow. Twenty-three civilian players, in charge of Coach Cecil Isbell and Guy Mackey, director of athletics at Purdue, composed the advance group.

Tomorrow morning the Boilermaker squad will be completed with arrival of 13 navy and marine V-12 students, including Bill Canfield, navy trainee, who is expected to start at quarter back against the midshipmen. The other members of the Boilermaker back field, headed by Babe Dimancheff, who will play full back and direct team play, as civilians. The half backs in this quartet are Stormy Pfohl and Angelo Carnaghi.

Expect 30,000 to 40,000.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 spectators will see the game, the attendance depending largely on weather. Today's cloudiness and 50 degree temperature is expected to hold until game time.

Coach Isbell made two changes in Purdue's starting lineup this afternoon, altho the decision may be reconsidered. Ed Chrobot, 185 pound civilian from South Bend, Ind., was promoted to right guard on the first eleven. At the start of the season, Chrobot was listed on the fourth team. At left guard will be Ralph Clymer, a civilian from Peru, Ind., who recently reëntered the university.

Middies Should Win.

Purdue is conceded no hope by local critics, who probably are correct in their estimate of the Boilermakers' chances, since Navy now is the nation's No. 3 eleven in a national poll. Navy has power, speed, and a horde of replacements. With the possible exception of Hal Hamberg, the midshipmen's star passer, who has not fully recovered from a pulled leg muscle, it will be a maximum strength. Bob Jenkins, who suffered a minor injury last week, is expected to play.

Washington Wins Second Indiana Title

Whiting, Ind., Nov. 17 [Special].—Ernie Zalejski three time all-state half back from South Bend Washington High school, tonight closed his high school football career by scoring three touchdowns to lead Washington to a 19 to 7 victory over Hammond Clark for the Northern Indiana conference championship. Washington also won last year's title by beating Clark.

Midway in the first period Zalejski took a 47 yard pass from George Galezkewski to score. He ran 61 yards for the second touchdown. In the third period he placed the ball in scoring position with a 33 yard run to the Hammond 4, hurdling the line on the next play for the final score. He has made 54 touchdowns in three years of competition.

Hammond Clark's touchdown came on a plunge by George Buksar after a 33 yard pass from Norb Adams to Dick Antilla had set up the play.

Dame and Northwestern elevens in the Irish stadium. As the leading Illinois contestant, Mr. Kirkpatrick is in line for the football which will be autographed by players of the team winning today.

Illinois Leads for Day.

The combined bond box score for the two states has reached $488,000, with Indiana in the lead, $280,000 to $208,000.

Presentation of the Rockne football will be made by Al McGann, chairman of the investment division of the St. Joseph [Ind.] county war finance committee. Between halves of the game, the Notre Dame band will put on a war bond show.

Participating in the Illinois upsurge was Mrs. Helen M. Owen of Chicago, who made a $25,000 purchase. Thus she qualified for two tickets on the Northwestern bench during the game. They will be given to male relatives, it was reported.

Chance for Late Change.

Yesterday's Indiana activity, led by Mr. Welber, was good for $130,000, but Illinois took the honors for the day, with $135,000.

The contest closed officially at midnight last night, but letters postmarked up until that time, tho not delivered in Chicago, are expected to swell the total. It seemed likely, tho, that the Indiana and Illinois leaders were safe from last minute competition.

The South Bend Tuckers will be well represented on the Irish bench. Morris Tucker plunked down $20,000, getting seats for himself and his son, Tommy. Morris' brother, Julius Tucker, made three individual orders of $10,000, for himself and two sons, Robert and Richard.

BRITISH, U.S. CLASH ANEW ON TRADE POLICIES

Disagree on World Bank Proposal.

BY CHARLES GOTTHART.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rye, N. Y., Nov. 17.—British and United States policies on world reconstruction came into sharp conflict again today when the British delegation to the international business conference presented a strong indorsement of the proposed world bank, a subject deliberately sidestepped by the American group.

Winthrop W. Aldrich.

After the conference adopted a report on world investments which failed to mention the projected 9 billion 100 million dollar "international bank for reconstruction and development," the British group offered its official view that such a bank would aid in facilitating sound world investments.

This clash followed previous conference conflicts over cartels and other policies favored by the British and opposed by the American delegation as unsound restraints on international trade.

Seek to Minimize Clash.

Principal figures in the opposing views were Arthur Guinness and Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank, who has opposed phases of the monetary proposals made at Bretton Woods.

Efforts were made later to minimize the significance of the clash, but the United States group made clear that its vote to permit inclusion of the British views as an addition to the conference report did not constitute agreement with them.

American opposition to the world bank is based on the contention that this country would provide most of the cash, but would get only a minor vote in allocation of funds.

Henry F. Grady, president of the American President Lines, San Francisco, Cal., and chairman of the United States delegation, said the group considered it "presumptious" to pass on the merits of the Bretton Woods proposals until the American Bankers association and others had completed their studies of the plan.

Fair Play Code Advocated.

The conference report that failed to mention the Bretton Woods proposals said development of an "international code of fair practice and business ethics" would best provide protection for international investments.

The world bank also was sidestepped in a later report on currency relations among nations, which dismissed the subject with a statement that Bretton Woods and alternate proposals had been discussed.

Presented by T. B. Weatherbee, Canadian delegate, this report called for a return of the gold standard, with post-war modifications when necessary, and asserted that dollar-sterling exchange rate agreements were a necessary first step toward world monetary stabilization.

It said lasting stabilization cannot be achieved by monetary measures alone.

Doubts Fast Ship Surplus.

Almon E. Roth of the National Federation of American Shipping, Washington, D. C., doubted, except for some tankers, that the United States would have a surplus of fast ships for distribution to other nations until some time after the war. His statement was predicated on the view that America's foreign trade would double the pre-war level, and that at least half her commerce would be carried in American ships.

The Indian delegation, frequently at odds with the British group, made another plea for a chance to become the economic equal of other countries.

The delegation also asked a "legitimate share" of post-war civilian aviation, and, rapping a British proposal, said: "The right or reciprocal air commerce would be enjoyed by British aviation while the facility for air traffic across the country has to be provided by India."

Centralia, Ill., Nov. 17 (AP).—A pool opener has been reported in the southwest corner of Hamilton county five miles from Thompsonville where Sinclair Wyoming Oil company recovered a hole full of oil in one hour on drill stem test of the aux vases sand at 3,139 feet.

BRITISH DESIGN $400 EVERY MAN'S CAR TO BE BUILT AFTER WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Britain will have a $400 "every man's car" after the war, it was reported tonight. Altho the price and specifications are similar to those of the German volksvagen, "people's car," it will be manufactured privately and buyers will not contribute weekly subscriptions toward the cost.

The car, seating four and described as revolutionary in design, will have the motor and gas tank at the rear, a self-cooling system which dispenses with the radiator, and a baggage section inside the forward hood.

W. D. Kendall, member of parliament, who plans to build the car in his factories at Grantham, proposes to begin turning out 50,000 a year six months after the war ends.

Court Accepts Dissolution for Two Utilities

A plan filed by trustees and calling for the dissolution of Commonwealth Light and Power company and Inland Power and Light corporation, both subsidiaries of Middle West corporation, yesterday was approved by Federal Judge Sullivan. Already approved by the securities and exchange commission, the plan provides for distribution of the companies' assets among senior security holders and creditors.

Bondholders of Inland Power would be paid an initial cash distribution of $2,417,618, or $66.75 for each $100 of bonds, with the possibility of an additional $10 payment after expenses.

Pay 30 Pct. on Debentures.

Holders of Inland debentures would be paid $246,660 in cash, or $30 for each $100 principal amount.

Commonwealth bondholders would get $32,226 cash, or $30 for each $100 bond.

Middle West would receive in full satisfaction of all claims against both companies, $260,788 in cash, 39,278 shares of Arkansas-Missouri Power corporation stock, valued at $315,000; 2,400 shares of Missouri Edison common stock, valued at $285,000, and a 26 per cent share of the balance in any tax escrow fund to be established in connection with the sale of Kansas Power company and Missouri Edison common stock.

Stockholders Left Out.

Creditors of both Inland and Commonwealth would be paid $30 in cash for each $100 principal amount of claim as follows: Kansas Power, $60,000; Commonwealth of Virginia, $10,942; state of Maryland, $1,150, and $268 on miscellaneous claims. A claim of Commonwealth against Inland Power was accorded no participation.

No provision was made in the plan of participation by preferred or common stockholders of Inland Power or by common stockholders of Commonwealth because the fair value of assets of the companies was asserted to be less than aggregate indebtedness.

SUGAR SHIPPING ZONE SYSTEM REVIVED BY OPA

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Zoning restrictions intended to assure equitable distribution of sugar were reëstablished today by the OPA to apply to all sugar shippers except primary distributors. The 17 zones set up to govern shipments are the same as those under a regulation suspended July 14. Shipments across area boundary lines are banned.

OPA said the curbs were restored because some western sugar had been moving east of Chicago. If continued, this would reduce beet sugar shipments to upper Mississippi valley and Illinois areas, the agency said, and supply there already has been curtailed as a result of two successive short sugar beet crops.

COLUMBIA PICTURES.

Please give me information on the recent earnings trend of Columbia Pictures corporation.—O. R.

Columbia has shared in the war time prosperity of the motion picture producing industry, with net income increasing each year since the dip in the 1938 and 1939 fiscal years, when earnings failed to cover preferred dividend requirements. A profit of $4.91 a share on the 366,268 common shares was shown in the preliminary report for the year ended June 30, 1944, compared with $4.36 in 1943, $3.84 in 1942, 95 cents in 1941, and 84 cents in 1940.

In the seven fiscal years prior to 1938, profits had ranged from $2.06 a share in 1931 [giving effect to a dividend of 50 per cent in stock in 1935] to $6.61 in 1935.

B. & O. DEBT ADJUSTMENT.

In the proposed readjustment of Baltimore and Ohio railroad funded debt what treatment would be accorded the present first mortgage bonds?—G. A.

Holders of the first 4s and 5s, 1948, would be asked to exchange them for new first mortgage bonds of the same amount maturing in 1970. The new class A bonds substituted for the present 4s would bear 4 per cent fixed interest, the B bonds substituted for the 5s would bear 5 per cent interest, of which 4 per cent would be fixed and 1 per cent "unsecured contingent" but cumulative if not paid when due. Solicitation of assents from holders of the various classes of securities affected by the plan is expected after the interstate commerce commission has acted on it.

GIANNINI LOSES IN SUIT TO PRESERVE BANK'S RESERVE MEMBERSHIP

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 17 [Special].—Suit of the People's Bank of suburban Lakewood village to preserve membership in the federal reserve system was dismissed today by Federal Judge M. J. Roche. The decision was regarded as a defeat for A. P. Giannini in the banker's conflict with the federal reserve system and government regulatory authorities.

When the Lakewood bank joined the federal reserve system it was obliged to agree that if Giannini's Transamerica corporation or any of its units, including the Bank of America, ever obtained an interest in the bank it would withdraw from the federal reserve system. The complaint said Transamerica did acquire a 500 share minority interest without the bank's knowledge.

Judge Roche said he dismissed the suit because [1] the board of governors of the federal reserve system, a co-defendant, was an indispensable part of the suit and does not come within the jurisdiction of his court because not resident in California, and [2] the complaint did not state a claim for equitable relief.

Stocks Mixed; Trade Slowest for November

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—Scattered favorites advanced in today's stock market, but numerous leaders were unchanged or declined. A little short covering near the close transformed a few losses into gains, but irregular tendencies prevailed from the start altho offerings were light thruout.

The usual week-end caution stopped many potential purchasers. In addition reconversion doubts, based on the western front push and the possibility of an early European victory, accentuated conservatism. Expectations of expanding tax selling from now on was a handicap and many customers stood aside to await congressional moves and more information on 1945 taxes. Dividends and earnings again aided some issues.

Transfers of 705,660 shares were smallest for a full session since Oct. 31.

CHICAGO LIST LOWER.

Prices were lower yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange and turnover decreased to 21,000 shares. Volume leaders included Raytheon Manufacturing, unchanged; Chicago Corporation, down ⅛; Lincoln Printing, down ½, and Commonwealth Edison, down ⅝.

RAIL BONDS EXTEND GAIN.

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—Many rail bonds extended advances today when demand continued broad. Other groups were steady. Transactions were $8,158,600 compared with $9,440,000 yesterday.

BUSINESS GROUP BACKS FREEZING OF OLD AGE TAX

Directors of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted unanimously to support the measure introduced by Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] which would freeze the old age benefit tax at 1 per cent for 1945. The action was taken at their monthly meeting in the Morrison hotel.

Directors acted favorably on recommendations of the organization's aviation development committee which would ask for legislation to empower Illinois to designate a statewide system of airports as part of a nationwide system and to authorize expenditure of state funds for airport improvement.

LUMBER SUPPLY EARMARKED FOR MILITARY NEEDS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—The WPB today ordered certain sizes and grades of eight hardwood species set aside for military use, effective Nov. 23.

The order applies to sawmills cutting 5,000 or more board feet of hardwood a day and covers white oak, red oak, birch, beech, pecan, rock elm, hard maple, and tough white ash. Grades and sizes affected are No. 1 common and better in 1¼ and 1½ inch thicknesses.

WPB Penalizes Maker of Fluorescent Fixtures

Suspension of Markstone Manufacturing company, 1470 S. Michigan av., from manufacturing, processing, assembling, or selling fluorescent lighting fixtures for three months, or until Feb. 17, was ordered yesterday by WPB which charged sales had been made on orders which bore no preference ratings and failure to keep production, inventory control, or adequate purchase records. Max J. Marks, who with Harvey Stone operates the company, said the WPB violation resulted from "misunderstanding" of regulations.

WLB ASSAILED FOR SQUEEZE ON MANAGEMENT

Montague Charges Labor Coddling.

The first step toward a proper goverment labor policy is to get rid of the government's present appeasement policy, Gilbert H. Montague, member of the New York bar, told the annual meeting of the National Founders' association in the Stevens hotel yesterday.

Denouncing the national war labor board as an appeasement rather than an adjusting agency, Montague warned that "appeasement can never be a long run national policy."

Tracing the history of the WLB from its predecessor, the national defense mediation board, Montague asserted the WLB has become a strongly pro-labor pressure agency exerting all the force of the nation at war to induce employers to yield whatever is needed to dissuade employes from instigating strikes or boycotts.

No Employer Member.

"As selected by the President," he said, "the WLB contains no member proposed by any organization of employers."

The policy of appeasement in Lincoln's time led to the Dred Scott decision and the Civil war; appeasement of fascism in our day led to Munich and World War II. and Pearl Harbor, he said.

Montague assailed the federal labor policy for permitting labor leaders like John L. Lewis to dictate terms to the nation and James Petrillo to refuse to comply with WLB directives. Labor has been permitted to ignore the WLB, but when an employer follows the same course the President takes strong action, as in the Montgomery Ward case, he said.

Milwaukee Man President.

"When this appeasement complex is deleted from our present government labor policy, American labor quickly will disown any inclination to strangle our American national life and will be willing, like all other Americans, to talk over all questions and disputes and to arrive at an adjustment on the basis of patriotism and mutual forbearance for all Americans," he said.

In its election the association chose Herman Menck, Milwaukee, as president; I. R. Wagner, Indianapolis, Ind., vice president, and L. E. Roark, secretary-treasurer.

CORN FINISHES HIGHER; OTHER GRAINS LOWER

Good war news from Europe caused an easy undertone in grain markets in early trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, but short covering and strength in corn brought a late rally. Corn was bought by commission houses on the belief less would be shipped and closed ⅜ to ½ cent a bushel higher.

Wheat rallied about 1 cent from the early low when mill buying to remove hedges against sales of flour to the army developed. The close was unchanged to ¼ cent lower. Rye lost ⅛ to ⅝ cent. Oats closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Barley lost ½ cent.

Liquidation in rye started early, but buying on resting orders checked the decline and the market rallied late in sympathy with wheat and corn.

INCREASED HOG SUPPLY SOLD AT STEADY PRICES

Mostly steady prices were paid yesterday for a hog supply which equaled the largest volume for a Friday since June 2. Scattered sales showed 5 to 10 cents gain, and some of the lightest weight stock rose as much as 25 cents, but the average was unchanged at $14.25 a hundred pounds. The practical top was $14.35, altho a few outstanding lots brought $14.40 and $14.45.

Steady prices were paid for all good steers and yearlings, in fairly active trade, but other classes were slow and weak. Lambs sold slowly at steady prices.

Keep Making Rubber, Plea by Kettering

Chemistry's valuable contribution to winning the war should encourage United States citizens to view hopefully the country's technical and economic progress in the post-war world, Charles F. Kettering, research director of General Motors corporation, last night told members of the National Industrial Chemical conference and exhibitors at the National Chemical exposition in the Coliseum.

"The only assurance I need of the welfare of the world of tomorrow is a composite picture of your marvelous exhibits in the adjoining hall," Kettering said.

Commends Chemistry's Aid.

Commending chemistry's aid in developing high octane gasoline and synthetic rubber, Kettering said rubber manufacturing should not be discontinued after the war, because science has not yet had time to make the refinements and improvements which will place the synthetic on an equal footing with natural rubber.

"Synthetic tires and tubes as they are today are war time emergency products and do not reflect the long thought out effort of industry," he said. "Some taxicab drivers tell me the synthetic tires and tubes are not as good as the old tires, and that is the reason I would like to see synthetic rubber manufacturing continue after the war. I want you chemists to prove that synthetic tires and tubes can be made as good or better than the old tires."

Urges Early Teaching.

Kettering said chemistry will represent a "great force in the world of tomorrow," and recommended that the subject be taught in elementary schools, beginning in the second and third grades.

"Almost everything we touch is a chemical, so we might as well get acquainted with chemistry early, learn its language, and learn not to be afraid of its Latin and Greek terms," he said.

Kettering predicted that out of the war would come a new concept of research. Research, chemical or otherwise, will be financed as a means of insuring the future of a given business and no longer will be regarded as a frill of the sales department or a gambling venture of a company, he said.

SMALL PAPERS' NEWSPRINT CURB BRINGS PROTEST

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Rep. Brown [R., O.], describing the WPB limitation on newsprint use by small newspapers as "assinine," said today he will seek a house committee investigation unless changes are made. He said the limitation means the difference between profit and loss for many weeklies and small dailies.

Told of Brown's statement, a WPB board spokesman said its newsprint division was considering carefully the overall problem of smaller papers.

Brown objected to restrictions imposed for the last quarter of this year when these small papers have their heavy fall and Christmas business. The saving in newsprint would be negligible, he argued.

BUYING OF GIFTS BOOSTS RETAIL SALES VOLUME

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—Retail sales last week, stimulated by Christmas shopping, were estimated at 8 to 12 per cent above last year by Dun & Bradstreet today. "Favorable weather, the Armistice day holiday and growing interest in holiday gift items were said to be responsible for the heavy trading," the business research organization said. "Almost all departments shared in the upturn."

December Oil Output Quota 5,026,400 Barrels

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—The petroleum administration for war today authorized December petroleum production of 5,026,400 barrels daily, 2,500 barrels more than the November certification, but 25,000 barrels less than the September high. The daily certification for Illinois for December was 212,300 barrels, compared with 212,200 in November.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

Howard J. Burridge of Chicago has been elected president of the National Underwriter company, insurance publisher, it was announced yesterday. He succeeds John F. Wohlgemuth of Cincinnati, who died Oct. 19. Louis H. Martin, manager of the Cincinnati office, was elected vice president and secretary, positions formerly held by Burridge. Burridge joined the organization in 1913, when he was 19 years old.

The management of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. entertained at a luncheon yesterday five employes who have been in the company's service for 50 years. F. H. Scott, president, presented watches to the four veteran men employes and the one woman in the group received a diamond pin. The employes are Miss Rebecca Goldberg, lingerie buyer; Emil L. Audy, head floorman on the second floor; Benson E. Gill, glove buyer; Lovile Mitchell, night watchman, and Lew Paulson, electrician.

Sheldon Clark, vice president of Sinclair Oil corporation, has been elected chairman of the executive committee. The new position will not cause him to move to New York, the company's Chicago office said. Clark has been associated with Sinclair since 1916.

Cudahy Packing company directors yesterday elected J. W. Breathed, vice president, to a directorship and C. J. Carney, head of the purchasing department, to vice president. Breathed succeeds L. C. Steele, resigned, and Carney fills the vacancy created by the recent resignation of V. T. Norton.

Herman F. Rook, consultant on civil works for the Great Lakes engineer division in Chicago, has received the civilian service emblem for faithful performance of duty during more than 25 years with the war department, the office of the chief of engineers in Washington announced.

L. D. Comer has been appointed director of employment for the Santa Fe railroad, succeeding A. W. Motley who resigned. Comer, associated with the railroad's personnel department for 20 years, will have headquarters in Chicago.

Carl M. Wynne, managing director of Overseas Industries, Inc. and president of the Export Managers Club of Chicago, will speak before the foreign trade group of the Chicago Association of Credit Men in the Union League club Tuesday.

The American Marketing association will hold its annual meeting Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Marketing in the transition period will be studied.

George W. Crowell has been named Chicago sales representative of Stromberg-Carlson company radio division. He had been with Philco Radio corporation.

TEXAS' RUBBER OUTPUT PASSES PEAK ESTIMATE

Helps Make Nation Self-Sufficient.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Houston, Tex., Nov. 17.—In the Houston industrial area giant plants which cost scores of millions of dollars today are producing synthetic rubber in quantities larger than estimated capacity. Thus they are helping to assure the nation that never again need it depend on natural rubber from foreign owned plantations except for small amounts for mixing purposes. Skill and knowledge gained thru actual operation have made it possible to increase output above estimates.

Houston area plants have unlimited supplies of petroleum—the most important raw material for synthetic rubber—at hand from the Texas oil fields. Texas' oil gives the state a dominant position in this new industry which means so much to America's self-sufficiency.

Newsmen Inspect Plants.

Newspaper men from all parts of the country today inspected the synthetic plants of Humble Oil and Refining company and General Tire and Rubber company at near-by Baytown. On land which three years ago was bleak coastal plains stand awe inspiring structures and equipment of fantastic appearance. Some structures are as tall as a 20 story building.

Into the Humble plants flows oil in pipes direct from the Texas fields, which is put thru complicated processes in which man's hand never touches the material. Most of the process consists of linking molecules in the hydrocarbons of the petroleum to obtain the material wanted.

Among many other products, Humble makes butyl rubber and butadiene, the latter an essential material for buna-S rubber of which tires are made.

Estimated Capacity Exceeded.

The Humble butadiene plant has produced 32,500 tons of this product, sufficient for nearly 45,000 tons of buna-S rubber. It has exceeded its 30,000 ton estimated annual capacity by about 50 per cent when a sufficient supply of butylene, a raw material made from petroleum, was available. Butylene is one of the bottlenecks in synthetic rubber production because so much petroleum must be used for 100 octane gasoline.

General Tire is producing buna-S at a rate exceeding 30,000 tons annually. The larger part is made under the new process in which carbon black, which gives strength and tread life to tires, is mixed in a slurry [liquid form] with other constituents. This process saves 30 per cent in the time needed to manufacture buna-S rubber. White buna-S is produced in plants not equipped for mixing carbon black.

Petroleum Cost Lower.

H. C. Weiss, president of Humble, an affiliate of Standard Oil company of New Jersey, said that the cost of making butadiene from petroleum is much lower than when alcohol is used. He estimated the cost of making butadiene at about 8½ cents a gallon for the petroleum, exclusive of 5 cents a gallon for plant depreciation, compared with 40 to 45 cents a gallon for grain or other alcohol.

The Humble Oil operation covers more than 2,000 acres. It includes plants owned by the government but operated by Humble which were built at a cost of about 61 million dollars. Like other plants using chemical processes it is remarkable for the few people required to carry on the intricate operations.

Officials and employes of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company opened their 6th war loan drive yesterday with a rally in the bank. Speakers included Francis M. Knight, vice president of the bank and chairman of the drive in Chicago and Cook county, and Lt. Col. Howard F. Beir of the army air forces, who has 80 missions to his credit in the European theater. The drive will begin officially Monday and will run thru Dec. 16.

Trade Outlook Far Improved, Says Moulton

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 17 (AP).—A post-war outlook "enormously better than most observers anticipated three years ago" was described today by Dr. Harold Glenn Moulton, president of the Brookings institution.

Dr. Moulton told a conference sponsored by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce "it now appears that none of the dire forbodings that the coming of a new world war would almost certainly seal the fate of private enterprises, bring a vast inflation of prices, and result in impoverishment will be realized, except in minor degree."

Emphasizes Free Enterprise.

"Instead of sealing the fate of private enterprise, the war period has brought to the American people as a whole and I believe to our government a new realization of its vital importance," he said.

"This profound change in government attitude is due to two principal factors, the remarkable achievement of private enterprise during the war and a growing recognition that employment and wages depend upon business expansion, and that we cannot get business expansion under a private enterprise system unless risk assumption is encouraged by the chance for reasonable profits."

Law Reflects Trend.

Dr. Moulton said the trend in favor of encouraging private enterprise is reflected in the contract termination law, principles formulated to govern the disposal of surplus products, and the movement within and outside congress to reduce heavy taxes on business.

October Output of Coal Shipping Mines Increases

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 17 (AP).—Coal production of 111 Illinois shipping mines in October totaled 6,211,968 tons or 881,105 tons more than September and 617,732 above a year ago, the Illinois department of mines and minerals reported today.

CREDIT CURBS HELD NEEDED IN POST-WAR ERA

Demand Far Above Supply of Goods.

Consumer credit restriction may have to be continued or strengthened "to control the rush of consumers to buy goods" immediately after the war, when a relatively small production of consumer goods will not meet pent up demands, Elmer E. Schmus, vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, said yesterday.

Such controls undoubtedly will be continued until goods become available for delivery in reasonable balance with the consumers' ability to buy, he told the convention of the American Finance conference in the Palmer House. The conference is a national organization of automobile and general finance companies.

Curbs May Be Tightened.

Schmus said such control may come as an extension of regulation W, which placed curbs on consumer and instalment credit, or present terms of the regulation may be tightened by increasing at least the down payment requirement. Altho continued regulation of credits may be desirable until supply approaches the demand for goods, such controls should be eliminated in a full pease time economy, he said.

He said that when capacity production in the various consumer durable goods industries is reached, "instalment sales finance companies should enjoy a sizable volume for a number of years, probably exceeding the peak volume of 1941."

Commenting on the possible effect of increasing bank competition in the consumer credit field, the bank executive said it is apparent that banks already in that field will attempt to extend such operations because they have proved profitable. Banks will not be able to attain a sizable volume, tho, unless they service the car dealer as the finance companies do, he said.

Hold Prior Advantage.

The finance companies hold an advantage, however, in that they were the first to recognize the high degree of safety and soundness in instalment selling and are firmly entrenched with the dealers. Also, operations of finance companies usually cover areas beyond the limits of the banks more active in the instalment field, he said.

K. B. Elliott, vice president in charge of sales of the Studebaker corporation, said automobile manufacturers recognized the "vital part instalment credit has played in the growth of the auto industry."

CIVIC FEDERATION URGES SLASH IN COUNTY EXPENSE

Move to Eliminate Police Causes Clash.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

An urgent plea for the cutting down of expenses by the Cook county government was presented yesterday by the Civic Federation to a committee of the Circuit court judges, who will decide the number of 1945 employes in 13 fee offices.

During a committee hearing in the afternoon, wrangling developed between advocates of the elimination of the county highway police force and spokesmen from unincorporated county areas who desire to increase this force. Sheriff Mulcahy has requested 30 additional policemen.

Newton C. Farr, president of the federation, said the retention of the county force when the state has its own police patrolling the same areas is a "needless imposition on the tax payers of Chicago and Cook county" and estimated that its elimination would save more than $250,000 in salaries alone.

Agrees Many Areas Need Police.

Edwin D. Lawler, counsel for a truck growers' association, argued that the state police handled nothing but highway traffic violations. He also said that if it were not for the county police large sections, including unincorporated subdivisions with thousands of small homes, would be without any police protection.

Joseph B. Ford, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, said that the subdivisions should incorporate and hire their own policemen; he added that the state had ample revenues and there was reason to believe it would take over rural policing in all forms if the county retired from the field.

Luther D. Swanstrom of the Ridge Civic council, and Harold B. Dumez of the Norwood Park volunteer fire department, insisted on the right of the rural areas to be guarded at county expense.

Asks 89 Jobs Be Dropped.

Farr, whose position was supported by several citizens representing civic and taxpayers' associations, suggested that at least 89 jobs in the county fee offices could be dropped. The fee office heads, however, have asked for increases to total 159 jobs at a cost of $345,000, which would about balance all the savings made in the last two budgets of the county.

The offices not controled in any way by the judges have more employes than the fee offices, and several departments have indicated they will ask for additional help. There is no reasonable prospect that the county can operate and pay off its old bills without going well over the pegged levy of 8½ millions allowed by the legislature —possibly three or four millions over.

Under the present law, the county can levy taxes on a rate basis to produce nearly 19 millions. Its taxing power was almost tripled a year ago when Assessor Clark assessed at full value rather than at an old ratio of 37 per cent. In the recent past the pegged levy was larger than the taxing power.

The Circuit court judges' committee is composed of Judge Denis J. Normoyle, chairman; Chief Justice Julius H. Miner, and Judge John Prystalski.

PUT UNDER SUPERVISION.

Edward Wilk, 19, convicted of stealing an antique gun from the Julian theater, 918 Belmont av., was put under supervision for one year by Judge N. J. Bonelli in Boys' court yesterday.

Carlson of Raider Fame Promoted to Colonelcy

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Evans F. Carlson, marine officer of "Carlson's Raider" fame, has been promoted to colonel. Carlson, who led marines in a raid against the Japanese on Makin Island in December, 1942, has been decorated for that feat as well as for his services at Guadalcanal, Tarawa, and Saipan. Carlson was wounded in the Saipan campaign earlier this year.

'SPEED MANIAC' GETS NEW DELAY IN FATAL CRASH

Nick Bianconi, 17, of 1310 Wentworth av., Chicago Heights, described as the suburb's worst speed violator, still was unpunished yesterday more than six months after his speeding automobile killed a 5 year old girl in a Chicago Heights business district last May 3.

Trial of Bianconi on a charge of manslaughter for the death of Rosalie Klimas, 1524 Lowe av., Chicago Heights, has been delayed by a number of continuances and a mistrial. At a bench trial in Criminal court on Nov. 14, Judge Peter H. Schwaba held that the evidence did not support the charge of 'manslaughter, but found Bianconi guilty of reckless driving.

Case Continued Again.

Judge Schwaba continued the case until yesterday for sentencing, then granted another continuance to Dec. 1 at the request of Bianconi's attorney, Herbert Wetzel. The lawyer complained that a Chicago Heights newspaper had carried a story yesterday that Bianconi would be sentenced to 90 days in jail and asked the delay to bring in a copy of the paper.

Police Chief Philip Howard of Chicago Heights reported that Bianconi still is driving his automobile about the suburb. "He has been the worst speed violator in the town," Chief Howard said. "He seems to go crazy in an automobile and pushes the accelerator down to the floor."

On May 10, 1943, Bianconi was convicted of reckless driving by Police Magistrate Silvio Piacenti in Chicago Heights and was fined $1 and costs.

Death Car Skids 130 Feet.

A week before Bianconi's car killed the Klimas girl, he outdistanced a motorcycle policeman who pursued him, Chief Howard said.

Testimony was given by Policemen Max Atkin and William Bloom at the inquest and the trial that Bianconi's car skidded 130 feet and hit two parked cars after striking the child.

Tony Queiroll, 1518 Wentworth av., Chicago Heights, who has since entered the army, testified at one hearing that Bianconi, with whom he was riding, was driving about 40 or 45 miles an hour when the child ran out from behind a parked truck and was struck. The accident occurred at Lowe av. and 16th st., in a district of small businesses.

Admiral King Invites You to "Pacific Theater"

The Navy's Sixth War Loan Exhibit

The navy's big exhibition of guns, tanks, planes, and other weapons of the Pacific war opens today at Navy pier, Chicago, with the fleet's commander in chief scheduled to appear in person.

For the first time you'll be able to operate yourself some of the training aids that make your navy the best in all the world . . . try your skill at such devices as the Gunairstructor above.

Before your eyes battle-hardened marines will stage amphibious invasions, complete in every detail . . . from landing barges to pillboxes, from flame-throwing tanks to dive bombers.

Thrilling air-sea rescues by the coast guard's new helicopters will demonstrate how navy men "take care of their own." And fire drills will show how disasters are averted at sea.

The navy's whole vast communications system—from portable walkie-talkie sets to mighty 5,000 watt transmitters—will be demonstrated by men just back from Pacific battle zones.

You can board the navy's newest amphibious vessels—tour them—inspect them—see for yourself the LCI's, LST's and other landing craft that make our island hopping so successful.

Uncensored films—rushed from battle areas direct to Navy pier—will show you in vivid detail how our navy carries the war home to the Japs from one end of the Pacific to the other.

All bureaus of the navy, marine corps, coast guard are participating in this exhibit. Don't miss it! At Navy pier—foot of Grand avenue—today thru Dec. 3, noon to 10 p. m. daily.
